Organization Spirit

HAIN control has made this an important topic today whereas yesterday it might have been considered unnecessary.

But the fact of the matter is just this:

If you are employed by one of the large or small chains it is your duty to serve them to the best of your ability—and then some.

Don't walk around crabbing that chain domination and control has robbed you of untold opportunities to get ahead in the world.

It so happens that if you are in that particular "crabbing" class you are all wet. And what's more anyone in the "know" will tell it to you.

You have more opportunities per minute in the chain organization of today than you had in a year under the independents of vesterday.

Not that we have decided to wave the "chain" flag and start a crusade in their behalf. They don't need it and we don't care enough about them to start such raving.

But we are confronted with facts. And facts are what count these days. Promises were all right once upon a time, but, doggone those grocers and butchers, they just won't accept promises in settlement for their bills, so we must deal with facts.

The better class of circuits have their divisions so arranged that each one functions almost as an independent unit. The head of these units, if he is the right man for the job, generally has the whole-hearted support and respect of every man in the outfit under him, and they should be grateful for the opportunity of showing their appreciation, by putting their shoulders to the wheel, and pushing for all they are worth to make their unit the finest in the outfit.

Such a spirit is noticable in several of the larger chain groups which have recently come to our attention. We were delighted to find that the majority of the house managers were one hundred per cent for their unit "chief" and all were trying their darndest to make their outfit the best in the entire organization.

Such marvelous morale is a mighty tribute to the men at the head and to them must go the credit for working their managers into so fina a frame of mind.

Now we would like to see such manifestations in every outfit regardless of where they might be located. To see the house managers, and all the others in the organizations, striving for individual recognition and the opportunity of stepping into higher position and more money.

Let's try to keep in mind that there IS a future in what we are doing and if you insist on walking around with a chip on your shoulder, don't be at all surprised if some one comes along and knocks it off.

to the Tampa Theater

Of the many things they have said about William Haines' latest p i c t u r e "Speedway," it at least offers an opportunity for automobile and tire tie-ups that should result in some additional business for the attraction.

We show you here a copy of a two column by seven inch newspaper ad which was run by the Tampa Theatre, Tampa, Fla., in conjunction with the showing of the picture. This idea was arranged by A. M. Roy, who was former manager of the Tampa, before he left for his Northern assignment, and the work he started was ably carried out by J. P. McKenna, the new man who took over the management when Mr. Roy left.

While on this subject it again brings to the front an important argument, discussion, or whatever you want to call our various confabs, regarding the sensible use of type in place of cuts and mats.

Here is an eye-arresting herald or circular that conveys a story told in simple language and yet we have seen similar circulars crammed full of unnecessary cuts that detracted from the purpose of the material. Therefore, we do not include this angle in determining the value of plain, attractive type over cuts and mats when making out your copy for such advertising. Too much of anything becomes monotonous very quickly and if you manage to inject some variety into your house advertising material it should prove as effective as the same principal applied to newspaper advt.

J. W. Webster Took Advantage Of Local Exploitation Angles

J. W. Webster, manager of the Carolina Theatre in Elizabeth City, N. C., certainly made capital out of the fact that Elizabeth City is the town where the original "Show Boat" started.

CAROLINA THEATRE

He incidentally played up the fact that Edna Ferber got her atmosphere for the book from the river that flowed by the town, the Chesapeake Bay.

Among his recent contributions was a fine four column green map together with a reader that must have attracted plenty of attention among the readers of the local paper for the theatre and the picture.

We also take this opportunity of showing the newspaper ad which we considered rather attractive for a town the size of Elizabeth City, and it is easy to see that Webster is receiving fine cooperation from his local papers.

In addition to this phase of his campaign, several attractive windows were dressed, including the local music stores where records and sheet music of the picture were featured conspicuously.

We rather like the way "J. H."

handles his publicity, and we would like the opportunity of passing along some more of his activities via these pages. You might enclose your photograph with your next letter, Webster, so that we can incorporate it in the next story we publish about you. Thank you any way in advance.

Alder Theatre Another Link In The Fox W. C. Outfit

There is no denying the attractiveness of this marquee and sign in the front of the new beautiful Alder Theatre in Portland, Oregon.

The simplicity of the front, helped accentuate the brilliancy of the marquee itself, and we can only wish the folks of the new Alder Theatre all the luck they deserve, and to say that we would like to see the same entrance line of customers continue indefinitely.

However, boys, if there is anything you are doing in the way of exploitation or showmanship that you believe might be a little helpful to your brother managers, why managers, why not pass it on to them via the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages in MOTION PICTURE NEWS?

Plenty Of Tie-Ups Available For All Naborhood Houses

The house manager in the average neighborhood theatre located around so many of the larger cities who still maintains that merchant cooperation and exploitation is dead because they cannot get the proper cooperation is either dying on his feet or should be out selling vegetables from a push cart.

We have continually maintained that the managers in the neighborhood houses of the larger cities are in just as good a position as the manager of a small town theatre where most of these tieups originate.

We once more offer as evidence of our statement the recent tieups with large and influential stores which were effected by Harold Garfinkle, Manager of the Century Circuit Avalon Theatre in Brooklyn, N. Y., and we are sure you will agree that these eye-arresting windows must have attracted plenty of attention from the passers-by.

The opportunity for these and other types of tieups are absolutely unlimited, and it was only recently that we passed the neighborhood of this progressive theatre and found a beautiful woman's wear window, with a crowd standing in front taking in every detail of it. It was just another of his tieups and just another bit of evidence to prove that there are plenty of merchants ready to greet the neighborhood house manager with open arms if he will but show the slightest signs of encouragement.

We are grateful to Mr. Garfinkle for these three photographs, and we will be delighted to set forth his further activities if he will favor us with the necessary details in the future.

"Lobby Laffs" By DICK KIRSCHBAUM

"Bless our helpful 'ittle patrons?"

A Correction

In the issue of Nov. 2nd, on the Club pages, we set forth the details of an unusual tie-up involving 47 windows dressed on a single attraction for Loew's State Theatre, in Memphis, Tenn.

We referred to Arthur Campbell, Jr., as being responsible for this fine piece of showmanship, but it now seems that it was done under the direction of Cecil E. Vogel the housemanager, who was assisted by Campbell, then floormanager of that house.

We are entirely to blame for this error and hasten to extend our regrets to Mr. Vogel and Mr. Campbell. In checking back on our correspondence we find that the details of this tie-up were pinned to a letter from Arthur and we, in our haste at the time, credited the wrong member.

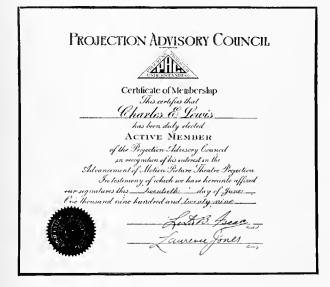

We hope this straightens everything out "Oak" and that both of the above members will overlook our mistake. What say boys?

M. R. T. C.

'Progress Thru Understanding'

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I inform our members that their Chairman was elected an Active Member of the Projection Advisory Council and to tell both the Council and our own readers that I am too per cent in accord with their own sentiments, that much can be accomplished through their own slogan, which is "Progress Throught Understanding."

We have commented so frequently upon the necessity for co-operative tactics between house manager and projectionist, that this should merely serve as another argument in favor of that discussion.

It shall be our pleasure and privilege to aid the Projection Advisory Council in every way since we are entirely in sympathy with their own views, and believe that there is much to be accomplished through this fine organization.

C. D. Haugh Used Police Angle To Exploit Picture

C. D. Haugh, manager of the Publix Strand Theatre in Birmingham, Ala., used good judgment in taking advantage of the police angle on the picture "Alibi." Through his keen showmanship he arranged a preview for the Acting Chief of Police, as well as other important people of the city, and secured letters from various officials of the police department concerning the picture and all good for advertising

He also secured permission through the traffic department to place life size police-cutouts in the heart of the city. Signs were placed on these dummies reading: "Stop, No Alibis For Violating Traffic Regulations. See 'Alibi'-Strand Theatre."

This comprised but a small portion of his thorough campaign for this attraction and, needless to say, it clicked at the box office right up to his expectations.

Great stuff, Haugh, how about sending us some more?

Marquee Display Worked Out Well For London House

Here is an unusually attractive marquee display used by the Carlton Theatre, in London, England.

Under proper lighting, you could easily imagine this as being a "human billboard" gag at night, and it was very well handled by the showman who engineered the exploitation and publicity for this theatre.

We welcome every opportunity to publish the activities of foreign showmen and we believe that many of the boys right here in the United States can take a tip from these foreign exhibitors. Let's hear some more from the Carlton Theatre in London, and we will all find out that there are some good exploiteers in that country.

Big Four Campaign A Success For Mgr. Walter Morris

It has often been our privilege and pleasure to have submitted for an opinion various types of campaigns by showmen from all over the world, but we must take this means of expressing our profound respect and admiration for Mr. Walter Morris, Manager of the Publix-Stanley Theatre in West Palm Beach, Fla., for the marvelous "Big Four Production Campaign" successfully created and carried out under his personal direction.

Walter was very thoughtful and sent us a complete analysis of this wonderful campaign and in looking it over we rise to the occasion and say that without a shadow of doubt, here is a wideawake showman who will make his mark in the business and who is headed in the right direc-

Many thanks and congratulations, Morris, and we certainly appreciate your thoughtfulness and CLUB spirit in sending us the analysis. Let's hear from you again soon.

(Editor's Note: We shall pass on some of the details of the "Big Four Campaign" in subsequent issues of the NEWS. Watch for them as they contain many valuable items that you can surely convert for use in your own community and theatre.)

Earl Wellman says:

"Received my Club pin, and most say that it is very attractive. It is an emblem that every member should be proud to wear any place or time.

More power to the CLUB! It sure is growing, and the pages in the NEWS are becoming pricelesss reading matter."

Calliope Sold Sound For Gillis Up In New England

Here is a photograph of a calliope used by Al W. Gillis throughout the Fox Poli New England Theatres as a ballyhoo for the various theatres on that chain.

We certainly agree with Al that it was a marvelous flash, and he was able to engi-

Al has been transferred up to Waterbury, and from that point we expect to hear a whole lot more about how he is engineering some real live showmanship to boost business for the outfit he is representing. Best of luck, Gillis, and be sure to keep in touch with us all the time.

The group of two column stories, and one of the coupons in connection with this "Believe It Or Not" contest will give you just a small idea of how he successfully engineered this stunt.

The point we liked about this entire affair was the fact that he worked out an

Chambers' Bally-Hoo Was Good for B'way, Newburgh

L. L. Chambers used a ballyhoo for two days that was productive of excellent results in advertising the "Hottentot" playing at the Broadway Theatre, Newburgh, N. Y.

The ballyhoo, simple in manner and nothing out of the ordinary, nevertheless, gave added impetus in selling the picture. A boy dressed as a jockey rode a horse that was bannered on both sides. Copy on the banner read, "I can ride this horse but you'll laugh at Edward Everett Horton trying to ride the HOTTENTOT at the Broadway Theatre.

The jockey and horse was on the go for two days and covered every principal street in the city as well as several of the outlying neighborhoods.

Here is C. A. Grissinger, General Manager of the Shapiro Theatre in Mt. Union, Pa., and a member of the Club.

George Curtis Can Make 'Em Like His Theatre And Shows

Step up and meet George Curtis, manager of the State Theatre, of Springfield, O., and the theatre which is better known as the ace house of the Chakeres Circuit in that State.

The State Theatre, by the way, is a new house only two years old, with a policy of de luxe talkies and organ novelties.

As you can tell by George's photo, he is another of the young go-getting type of showman and we are certain that his present position is but a stepping stone to greater achievement in the show busi-

With this send off, we would like to be able to follow it up with an interesting article about his activities and trust he will find time to keep us posted on what he is doing out there in Springfield.

So long for the present, George, but we are watching the mail bag from now on.

Wellman's Latest Clicks All Around For Liberty Thea.

Earle Wellman, manager of the Liberty Theatre in Watertown, N. Y., engineered an unusually successful baby contest in connection with the photoplay, "The Very Idea."

As you will note from the accompanying advertising of the Hardman Woolworth Company, the tieup was a real cooperative on e and undoubtedly brought the theatre a tremendous amount of extra business and attention.

Ouite a few stories found their way into the local papers and we have just selected one at random, which we are reproducing here in part, and will further convey how Mr. Wellman handled this idea.

This live-wire showman has been responsible for many original stunts and suc-ceeds in keeping the Liberty Theatre before the theatre - going public in and around Watertown to such an extent that much of the success of the theatre is to be credited to him.

M. B. Hustler Was Well Named When It Comes to "Pep"

M. B. Hustler, Manager of the Capitol Theatre, in Sacramento, Cal., and a recent new member of the ROUND TABLE CLUB sets forth to show his interest in the organization which he just joined by sending us his campaign on "Speedway.

The small photographs to the left of this article show the various types of cars and the peculiar model which they were able to line up, to make their "Speed way" parade a knocout.

To give you a better idea of how successful this parade was, we need only call your attention to the photograph below which is ample evidence of the success which surrounded this exploitation activity.

Apparently this manager has been well named because he seems to be not only a "hustler," but a demon when it comes to live-wire exploitation and publicity.

Lest we get too far away from the face of plain facts, we want you to know that they started out to launch an "Old Car Parade," which as you can see was a huge success. It was, according to local opinion, one of the greatest collections of old cars that was ever assembled in Sacramento in many, many years. As a matter of fact, it was one of the most unique stunts of its kind ever pulled and therefore attracted wider attention than usual. One of the best features of the stunt, was that several times during the parade they had to stop as one of the old cars kept breaking down, which, of course, aded to the humor and novelty of the entire stunt.

One hundred per cent co-operation was accorded by all the City authorities, and, in addition, this stunt gave them an opportunity of tying-up with many accessory automobile companies located throughout the city.

This Double-Truck Played Up Some Unusual Angles

In this double truck on "Hollywood Revue," which Sid Lawrence successfully put across in Lockport, N. Y., for the Palace Theatre, you will note that he added the contest touch in such a way, that it brought about a tremendous response.

In these days of single and double truck events, special editions, or what have you, this ad gives the "little different" angle that is necessary to put across such tie-ups that will satisfy the merchant in every way. Here is one that everybody can use to good advantage on any picture warranting a double truck tie-up.

Thank you for again keeping us in mind, Sid, and keep up the good work. We hate to lose sight of you old timers, for any great stretch, and if you keep on posting us about your activities, we know you are still alive, kicking and always thinking of the CLUB.

Irwin R. Waite Moves To Queens In Galveston, Tex.

Irwin R. Waite who was formerly at the Publix Arcade Theatre in West Palm Beach, Florida is now managing director of the Queens Theatre in Galveston, Texas.

The ROUND TABLE

CLUB hastens to extend to Irwin our best wishes for his continued success and we would certainly like to show some of his activities on these pages besides this one we picture

here which happens to be on "Two Black Crows," (gosh, what a raft of stuff this picture is getting away with in the line of exploitation) but at any rate, we have always given—and gladly—of space on these pages for Irwin's various shindigs and we would certainly like to continue the habit. All you have to do, Waite, is to send us the stories and the pictures. We'll struggle along with the rest of the burden which will probably be one of those stories that all our members and readers like to follow.

How about, it Waite, don't you think you might find the time to pass along some of your interesting activities for your brother members and managers?

R. B. Hamilton Is Putting Theatre Back On The Map

Something new in theatre house organs was brought to light when Manager R. B. Hamilton, of the Palace Theatre, Norwich, Conn., one of the new Warner Bros. New England Thea-

Knowing Norwich as we do, we need only say that Hamilton deserves a lot of credit for putting this idea across, and we were not surprised to find that the Palace Theatre makes much greater strides under his direction, than ever before in its past history.

"R. B." is a real dyed-in-the-wool showman, capable of accomplishing great things for any theatre he is operating, and we are certain he will be glad to pass on some of his activities via these pages. How about it, Hamilton? And you might include a photograph of yourself with your next letter.

Manager Harry Herman has just completed a Working Girls' Popularity Contest that kept the Paramount Theatre, Cedar Rapids, Ia., on the front page of the Gazette-Repubarticles as luggage, shoes, clothes and a diamond ring. Any working girl in Cedar Rapids was eligible to enter providing she was over eighteen years old. For a week the Gazette-Republican stimulated interest in the contest by featuring the rules and prizes on the front page. The paper also published an entry coupon which gave the contestant 1,000 votes from the start. After that votes could be obtained only by purchasing tickets to the Paramount Theatre or clipping out the coupon daily in the paper. The number of votes varied from 5 to 25 depending upon the price of the ticket. The coupon published daily in the paper was good for one vote.

Theatre tickets, being the best vote getters, the contestants got busy and worked up theatre parties asking their friends to cast their votes for them when at tending the Paramount Theatre. Theatre. The contest hadn't been under way a week before the merchants employing the girls entered into the spirit of the contest and arranged theatre parties for all their employees casting performance. There were at least twenty smaller parties. How many other parties there were, of which I was not aware, I am unable to state."

An idea of the success of the contest may be found in the fact that the winning candidate secured a total of 367,122 votes, which was 141,777 more votes than her nearest rival. It took a lot of tickets to make that many votes.

The photo on the left represents the front display created for this attraction. You will note, how effectively the sign above the door is worked out so that an illuminated "X" appears on both sides of the entrance. The photograph on the right shows what was originally intended for the advance labby display, but Harry Herman moved this remarkable art cutout to a bookstore window during the run of the picture. The inner portion of the letter "X" was cut out in bright red silk cloth and illuminated from behind.

The only cost to the theatre was the railroad fare to Hollywood in return for which they received a two-column head or better on the front page for five weeks. The hotel was promoted. By working through a chain of hotels, the Alexandria Hotel in Los Angeles gave the winner a free room in return for the splendid newspaper representation they gained.

On the night the winner was announced and introduced from the stage of the theatre, it was necessary to call the police to preserve order in front of the theatre. Manager Herman claims the receipts were increased at least $500 on this one night.

Jollimore Is Hunting For Ideas To Sell The 'Silents'

Elliott P. Jollimore, publicity manager for the Magna Theatre in Dorchester, Mass., has just joined the CLUB and is anxious to follow. the. activities. of. the other members through the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB in the NEWS.

His chief concern at the present time is the proper selling argument for a silent attraction and we need only refer him to the varied activities as set forth on these pages week after week for efficient "meat" to provide him with all of the angles he needs.

We can offer you this little suggestion, Mr. Elliott: that you keep in mind that the exploitation stunts printed on these pages are not married to the pictures with which they were used. As a matter of fact, you can take any of these ideas and revamp them or remould them to fit any attraction you are playing regardless of whether it is silent or sound.

Try this little suggestion for a few weeks and see how it works out. I am certain you will be delighted with the results and if you in turn will be able to pass on the details of how you are selling pictures for the Magna Theatre.

We are glad to welcome you into this CLUB and we hope that you become a steady and active contributor to these columns. We might include one of your own photographs with the next letter you send us so that we can give the boys an idea of what you look like. How about it, Jollimore?

Ken Hoel Tries A "Nut" Stunt To Pep Up Findlay

The Town's Goin' Nuts!

The Sequel to "WHAT PRICE GLORY"

Co-Starring VICTOR McLAGLEN - EDMUND LDWE

The illustration with this article represents the front of a paper bag, which contained a lot of peanuts and therefore tied in with the top line of the advertising copy.

This unique stunt was put through as a marvelous tie-up by Ken Hoel, the resident manager of the Harris Theatre, Findlay, Ohio.

Incidentally, Ken did not lose out on the opportunity of using the back of the envelope with a clever inch and a half sticker, announcing the coming of Al Jolson's new picture, with a special Sunday mid-night show.

You don't have to save this one until you show "Cock-Eyed World" because it can be used in connection with any other unusual comedy feature that you may have listed among your coming attractions. As a matter of fact, the town can "go nuts" over more than one production and that is why we push it ahead of a whole lot of other material, because it is timely and worth the attention we give

Ken distributed these nuts by putting a young man on the streets in a Marine uniform passing them out to the folks throughout the town.

SUNDAY MIDNITE, OCT. 20th

Thanks, Ken, and your letter arrived just in time to stop us from shooting you a wire inquiring what had happened to your active membership in the CLUB. We are glad to see these signs of activities, and would like to have you keep us posted at frequent intervals on your various other stunts. You might enclose one of your own photographs with the very next letter you send us.

Dick Dorman Is Another To Cash In On Living Sign

With the aid of the new living billboard of six foot letters erected on the side of the Plaza Theatre in St. Petersburg, Florida, man-ager Richard Dorman of the Publix Florida Theatre in that city stopped traffic dead with this unusual stunt.

The letters of this sign were covered with silver metallic, each letter was matched by a girl. There were nine girls in silk bathing suits on a platform built behind and on a level with the top of a sign. This exhibition was maintained from 7.15 to 9.15 p.m. daily and attracted such large crowds,

"Rio Rita" Press Book

We have before us a copy of the pressbook turned out by John Moynihan for the R-K-O Distributing Corporation and we will say right now that as a means of aiding the exhibitor to put this picture over, this press book is as near 100 per cent perfect as any that has ever come to our attention.

It has been rather discouraging to look through a lot of press books recently and to find that the old hash is still being served with or without superfluous trimmings, so when we went through the "Rio Rita" book, there were so many things that were outstanding in its makeup, we would never be able to spare the necessary space to enumerate them.

If you are going to play this picture, lay your hands on this press book as soon as you can, because you will find it a real aid in making your campaign outstanding and successful from the box office angle.

that traffic had to be diverted to the side streets. With the aid of a huge spotlight and color wheel from the Florida Theatre opposite the display was properly lighted and made it stand out against the dark Plaza Theatre.

This, as well as many other outstanding stunts, featured this campaign and much free publicity was gained through the cooperation of the managing editor of the local paper.

We certainly appreciate Mr. Dorman's CLUB spirit in sending us this contribution, and we hope he follows it up by sending us many more like it. Thanks at lot, Dorman, and keep up the great work.

Louis P. Carroll Now At The Park In Reading, (Pa.)

When Louis P. Carroll entered Reading, Pa., to take over the management of the Park Theatre, he was treated unusually nice by the different newspapers in that city and given a marvelous send-off.

Knowing Lew as we do, we are certain that neither the Park Theatre nor Reading, Pa., theatregoers will regret his arrival in that progressive and enterprising city. He has the knack of winning his way among the folks in any theatre or community that he is affiliated with and we are certain that the same high-grade of showmanship displayed by him in the New England states will find it's way to the surface of his activities in Reading.

We are proud to number Carroll among our active members and we are certain that his future activities in Reading will be the basis for many an interesting article on these pages.

The ROUND TABLE CLUB hastens to convey their sincere congratulations to Mr. Carroll, and to wish him plenty of his success in his new undertaking.

Fred Plessner says:

"Flam Is On The Job"

We should refer to Dave Flam of the Fox Metropolitan Playhouses as "Tol'able David" because it seems to us that he is just that.

Dave has had more than his hands full in lining up all those neighborhood weak sisters and trying to give them another lease on life. Apparently he is succeeding since we have seen so many signs of activity around them.

What with big city newspaper tie-ups, grocery stores all over the city wrapping up the sugar and potatoes in bags imprinted with Fox Theatre plugs, bakery tie-ups, and following the activities of the Managers' Round Table Club, (besides encouraging the boys on his circuit to do the same) Dave has been on his toes right along.

But then, we had heard so many complimentary things about Flam that we were not so surprised, and anyway, he knows his job and is producing results, and that's what counts on any man's circuit.

Earle M. Holden's Activities Show Real Showmanship

We have published short articles and feature stories about Earle M. Holden, the now well-known manager of the Publix Fairfax Theatre, in Miami, Fla., but this has really been our first opportunity to show you what this gentleman looks like, as well as some of his most recent activities.

We would like our members and readers to know that Earle entered the employ of Publix early in 1927 as assistant manager of their Dixie and Temple Theatres, in Ocala, Fla., before he was appointed to his first managership at the Avalon Theatre, in Avon Park, Fla. He remained at this theatre for a short time and was transferred to the Florida Theatre, in Daytona Beach, Fla., and the last move was the one which brought him to the Fairfax.

He owes no little credit to his having been in the newspaper business previous to his entrance into the theatre game, and it has proven to stand him in good stead through many of his original and unusual exploitation angles.

In passing along the activities of Mr. Holden on the

The program for this particular production took them away from the general routine of a movie theatre program, in that the front cover was unusually attractive and the inside was laid out exactly as a musical comedy program should be set up. You will notice that the cast and the scenes are presented in their exact continuity.

Harmonica Competition A Great Gag For Eddie Kelly

Some of you may recall the harmonica contest engineered over in New Jersey in connection with Educational Big Boy Comedies.

In the event that you don't recall that one we are rather proud to present the one which was successfully executived by Eddie Kelly, manager of Smalley's Theatre in Delhi, N. Y.

We show you various portions of his campaign which includes among other things some of his newspaper advertising and free readers which the newspaper played up for him in connection with this marvelous contest, we also show you one of his bill-boards and also a special board arranged on the side of one of the buildings, all playing up the famous harmonica contest.

Of course, in reading about this type of tieup the material used in connection with it is generally self explanatory and in this respect we can honestly refer you to what Mr. Kelly has accomplished and advise you to try and follow the idea yourself.

We could not pass up the opportunity of having you meet Eddie personally, so make his acquaintance for the present from this rough snapshot and as soon as we are successful in talking him out of a better photograph, you will have a still better opportunity of seeing what this young showman looks like.

We are passing through some unusual conditions in the show world now and among the problems that are constantly confronting the average exhibitor is the fear that the Kiddie business, so profitable in the past, may be lost in the shuffle of talkies and sound.

This is all wrong and wherever managers are making a play for such trade the results are almost always satisfactory from the B. O. viewpoint.

This particular angle in connection with the Harmonica Contest is but one of the many successful ways of stimu-

"Chick"

Another Club Booster!

Harry A. Goren, Manager of the Earl Theatre, Allentown, Pa., just dropped us a few lines to say:

"This photo of my office will give you an idea of where the Membership Certificate is hanging. I might mention at this time, also, that the CLUB pin looks very good and it is a treat to have one. I am sure that the rest of the members feel the same way about it."

Thanks, Harry, for both the photograph and the letter, and we certainly appreciate the fine position that your membership certificate occupies and we are certain that those who enter your office are seriously impressed with your affiliation with this organization. We would like to have you communicate with us more often and tell us what you are doing in the way of exploitation or showmanship that might be of interest or value to your brother members and managers of the ROUND TABLE CLUB.

lating the trade of the youngsters (and we have records to prove that this extra business can reach into the hundreds for a single Saturday matinee) so why pass up any opportunity that presents itself to cash in on something that the other fellow has found good?

In this particular instance it might be fair to say that the fine co-operation offered by the Educational Exchanges and exploitation departments meant a whole lot in putting it over with a bang and we are sure that the managers who solicited their aid are appreciative of this fine service.

Any other members or readers interested in ascertaining how successfully this harmonica contest stunt can be worked, can address their questions either direct to Mr. Kelly or to your Chairman at CLUB headquarters, and all material and information will be cheerfully sent.

Thank you for your trouble, Eddic, and let us hear from you at the earliest possible moment.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

F. P. Harpster Is Doing Good Work Out in Lorian, O.

F. P. Harpster, managing the Palace Theatre in Lorain, Ohio for the Stanley-Davis-Clarke outfit, drops us a line inclosing a peach of a double truck which looks unusually good to us.

Incidentally, we might say at this writing that he sold the space to the merchants personally, and by working out this arrangement he was able to get a special rate from the newspaper for the portion of the ad that he himself used, which accounts for the Palace "spread" over the greater portion of this double truck.

Harpster deserves credit for the way he swung the makeup of the merchants' ads so that every one of them made some mention of the attraction. BUT we are still trying to dope out the closing paragraph of his letter in which he says "Tell the Brown brothers to try this over on their piano."

However, we're not good at riddles, so we'll wait until we find out what it's all about in person on the 19th.

Thanks, "F. P." and we were glad to hear from you again as well as to take note of your most recent activities. Keep up the fine work, and be sure to keep us posted.

F. F. Smith's Tie-Up Helped Put The Picture Over Big

One of Manager F. F. Smith's best bets in publicizing "Gold Diggers of Broadway" playing at the Tivoli Theatre, Chattanooga, Tenn., was a tie-up with the local agency of the General Electric Refrigerator.

The Refrigerator agency devoted their most prominent window to the display of the electric refrigerator together with art cards, lobby posters, cut-outs and stills on the picture as well as neatly lettered cards giving the title of picture, name of theatre and play dates.

In addition to the excellent window medium, the agency also ran a 65-inch ad with copy reading, "See the GOLD DIGGERS OF BROADWAY" now showing at the Tivoli Theatre. This splendid picture was made in the apartment of Miss Nancy Welford and Miss Helen Foster, and shows the beautiful all-steel General Electric Refrigerator in actual use, etc."

In return for the window display and co-operative newspaper ad, the agency was permitted to place one of the refrigerators on display in the theatre lobby during the run of picture.

The tie-up worked to the mutual benefit of both parties and especially to the theatre in getting valuable publicity that it might not have gotten otherwise.

All of which, when properly boiled down, means that Brother Smith grabbed for his theatre some choice free advertising and thereby helped bring the "dough" to the good old B. O. (Better referred to as Showmanship among the 'elite' or what have you).

EDWARD K. AHRENS owns and operates the Paramount Theatre in Elizabeth, Louisiana. We shall certainly look forward to hearing from this wideawake showman at frequent intervals, and we are certain that he finds the CLUB pages of tremendous value in preparing his exploitation and publicity camaigns. How about it, Ed, tell us some of the theatre news from down your way.

--- Wear Your Club Pin!!!--

DENNY B. DIXON manages the Belmont Theatre, Nashville, Tenn., and has already been the subject of an interesting item on the CLUB pages. There will be more about this young showman in subsequent issues, and in the meantine we want to take this means of asking Denny to continue his CLUB spirit and keep us posted on everything he is putting across successfully.

---Wear Your Club Pin!!!---

IRVING FEINMAN is assistant manager to Monty MacLevy at the Fox Parkside Theatre in Brooklyn, N. Y. and under the guidance of a showman like Monty, we are sure that he will blossom forth very shortly as a full fledged manager of one of the Fox Meropolitan Theatres,; we would, however, like to know a little more about his activities and just what he is doing along the lines of showmanship. Keep us posted, Irving, and we will then be able to know how you are getting along.

-Wear Your Club Pin!!!-

ROBERT SUITS is no stranger by any means to your Chairman because we remember Bob as a youngster slowly but surely mounting the ladder of success in the show business, via the hard school of experience. Now that he has made a mark for himself in the theatrical game, we are certain that his peppy activities will appear on these pages at frequent intervals. How about it, Bob, and also how about one of your photos, so that we can show the gang what a good looking guy you are. And we are not kidding either.

STANLEY PATCHETT is connected with the State Theatre in Syndey, Australia, and comes to the CLUB through the proposal of Mr. Webb, whose acquaintance we made while he was in the United States. We shall have many interesting things to tell you about this Australian showman and we are sure that his activities will be of great interest to all of us.

-Wear Your Club Pin!!!-

WILLIAM RESNICK manages the Old Colony, Plymouth and Princess Theatres in Plymouth, Mass., and we are only hopeful that he will become an active contributing member, so that we other active showmen can hear how he is exploiting his theatres and the attractions they are showing. How about it, Bill, and why not send us a photo, so that your first story will give the boys an opportunity of seeing what you look like. Show the real CLUB spirit and start things right.

---Wear Your Club Pin!!!--

FRANK LA BAR, JR., manages the Plaza Theatre in Asheville, N. C., for the Publix chain and we have already seen many indications of his musual ability as a showman. We would now like to know a little bit more about his past experiences, how long he has been with Publix and if possible to get one of his photographs, so that we can give him a better introduction in an early issue of the NEWS. How about it, Frank, let's hear from you soon, won't you?

--- Wear Your Club Pin!!!--

FRED A. WALTER, manager of the Jackson Theatre, Philadelphia, Penna, comes to the ROUND TABLE CLUB proposed by Charles Dutkin of the Grand Theatre. We are certain that there are many interesting things to tell about Fred, and we would appreciate a brief letter from him setting forth just what he has been doing the past few years, and how long he has been identified in the show business. How about it, Walter, and you might enclose one of your own photographs at the same time?

Come Out In The Open!

THIS is the age when we should be seen as well as heard. Don't crawl away into the cellar and do the disappearing act.

The Managers' Round Table Club was created so that exhibitors all over the world could exchange ideas and suggestions for improving business and theatre operation. But we also want to see what you look like.

We are just as anxious to publish your picture as we are to print your story or "stunt"; so, please see that we receive your photo as soon as you can send it on.

Western Electric Reproducer Set

THE Western Electric reproducer set is built to weather the shocks and jars of many years of constant use. It stands four square on one base—no auxiliary pedestal to jar out of line. It combines highest quality sound reproduction with projection room requirements of durability, dependability and ease of operation.

These 12 points explain the world-wide popularity of the Western Electric reproducer set with exhibitors and projectionists:

- 1. All mechanical drives, no belts.
- 2. Highest quality reproducer, scientifically balanced to provide proper tracking.
- 3. Motor control box, exclusive Western Electric feature, guarantees uniform speed, eliminates changes in pitch.
- 4. Switch enables change from constant to variable speed when silents are shown.
- 5. Special foot brake and switch for quick stopping of machine.

- 6. Machine rests on ball joints, insures good mounting.
- 7. Rubber eushions eliminate shocks and jars from turntable.
- 8. Permits easy adjustment of machine to all projection angles.
- Photo-electric cell amplifier, rubber cushioned and suspended on springs to eliminate noises caused by jars and vibrations.
- 10. Film-disc transfer switch enables projectionist to prepare machine for film or disc at time of threading rather than at moment of changeover.
- 11. Specially designed lower magazine, including a scientifically adjusted hold-back sprocket, eliminates" flutter" often caused by unevenfilm pull.
- 12. Scientifically designed mechanical filter system in turntable drive eliminates all noise due to action of gears.

ORDER IN; CHAOS OUT

The following address was delivered by the editor of "Motion Picture News" at the banquet of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Ohio, held in Columbus on Tuesday, November 19. In view of the spark of cooperation kindled at that convention, the text is printed as a matter of record and further as a message to the industry at large.

THESE are serious times for the motion picture industry. Outside forces of mistrust are mustering on the fringe, constantly growing more prepared to set the mark of their unfriendliness upon this business.

The large corporations engaged in production, distribution and exhibition of motion pictures are amassing a net earning power which grows with each year and at a gait so rapid that even the most sanguine in the industry had failed to envision.

Coiled And Ready To Strike

Looking into this picture of prosperity are groups in which is rampant envy tempered by unreasonableness. They are marshalling their resources—and they are plentiful—and are getting ready to strike. The next two or three years will be stern ones. Legislation in all forms and in most states will seek to fasten on the industry burdens which cannot lightly be tossed off.

In other commercial fields, organization is being developed with an exact, scientific skill to the end that if onslaughts should come those industries at least will be prepared. In this business, the picture is this:

You find two of the three major elements banded together in an association which today represents and speaks for something like 85 to 90 per cent of the producers and distributors of the nation.

The third group, the exhibitor group, remains largely as it has been since the beginning; a vast and potentially powerful factor articulating with difficulty through two different mouthpieces. This third angle in an industry triangle continues unharnessed, yet until it is welded into a chain composed of strong links, the future of this industry cannot be held to be secure.

Producers and distributors, through their whollyowned or affiliated theatre holdings, today control 51 per cent of the nation's seats. These theatres contribute 70 per cent of the total intake in the form of film rentals. The remaining 30 per cent is derived from all other exhibition sources organized and not.

Of this 30 per cent, as nearly as can be computed without argument, 10 per cent goes to distributors at a loss. On five per cent there is an even break and on the remaining 15 per cent, a profit. This 15 per cent represents the money from which the producer and the distributor pay their dividends.

Now even in the face of their formidable hold on theatres, it is important that the small houses which contribute that 15 per cent margin of profit are kept alive. It seems to this speaker that producers and distributors realizing the facts for what they are, should be willing to lend a willing ear to the complaints of the small showman.

The problem is a joint problem. One needs the other for the successful conduct of this business as a whole. One needs the other so that this industry can present to its outside critics and enemies a common denominator which spells unison.

Forget The Swaddling Clothes

It seems further that to continue internal squabbles is to reveal merely the fact that the industry has not yet grown up. It is inconceivable that the component parts of a business with national and international ramifications cannot set aside traits of selfishness and aggrandizement long enough to organize itself for its own good from within and without.

At this very dais tonight are present those representing the conflicting groups in the industry. They are all serious-minded men giving to their appointed jobs an honesty of effort which few will question. Why those individual viewpoints cannot be blended into a composite which adequately represents the objectives of each is something which this speaker will forever stand before in amazement.

It can be done. Certainly, it should be done. Gentlemen, I bespeak your joint constructive, sympathetic, and honest efforts on behalf of an industry that can and must learn how to keep its house in order.

An Insider's Outlook

ON'T raise your hopes too high. The millennium seems to be peeping up over the horizon, it is true, but the show-me boys in Allied are going to prove tough hombres before any Maypole dancing begins with the M. P. T. O. A. and the Hays group.

This loud speaker isn't pro-Allied. It isn't pro-M. P. T. O. A. And it isn't pro-Hays. Merely an official observer fortunate, perhaps, in its ability to lean back and survey calmly and rationally—it hopes—the swiftly moving events of a swiftly moving industry.

In Columbus this week, several things happened. Harry Reichenbach, roastmasted at the banquet Tuesday night, when platitudes were hurled out of the window in favor of undiluted facts.

The Pettijohn Restlessness

Charley Pettijohn traveled from New York to Ohio's seat of government with a rather fixed idea that something had to happen. He was plainly tired of recriminations, left-handed compliments and rash statements. He may be wrong about those at whose door he laid charges, but he felt that way about it anyway.

So into the Ohio confab he went geared for action of some kind or other. On the other side of the fence and riding high on the crest of their accomplishment in ten months were Abram F. Myers, Al Steffes and H. M. Richey, flanked rather formidably by Jim Ritter and Glenn Cross, stalwart Michigan sons. They didn't admit they expected Ohio to throw its luggage in with Allied's, but the common talk was that the move was on.

Kent Stops The Show

Maybe somebody figured on Sid Kent to come through with the keynote. Maybe not. At any rate, Kent, last of a list of twelve speakers, some good and others something else, found himself in the spotlight. It was up to him to close the show with a smash. And he did.

For almost half an hour he hammered home his points. No comedy interlude. Nothing like that. A straight business talk drawn from the rich fount of his experience. He declared cooperationthe friendly kind-was the only open

So good was he that hardly had he taken his seat, Myers was whispering in his car. And right at that point, the kindling wood of cooperation burst into

So it is that Myers, Lightman and Hays—represented by a committee of exhibitors, probably five in each—are to meet and attempt to work out a formula. This Myers chap is very quiet, says little but is bullish on thinking power. He knows that Allied was built up from a nucleus of twelve states to representation in thirty-one. He believes the exhibitor arm of this business has a right to swing as lustily and in as many directions as the producer-distributor appendage. Moreover, he is a lawyer and has been swimming through the breakers of political Washington for many years.

On The Dotted Line

If this olive branch does bear fruit, Myers may be expected to have the ensuing agreement reduced to writing. No guess work for him. He will want it where he can always see it.

The Hays group with Pettijohn as spokesman made it rather clear at Columbus that a constructive get-together would be welcome. For once this business, at least, takes on the characteristics of a grown-up.

The answer—if one is reached—won't be arrived at easily. Bearing earmarks of a successful undertaking, it is true, you must expect the opposing groups to tussle mightily for what they hold to be their prerogatives. That, of course, is as it should be. The principal and direct result of the Ohio conclave, therefore, was the planting of an amicable seed. Plenty of sunshine, a modicum of rain and a lot of gentle nursing will cause that seed to flourish. Tramplings by a heel shodden with steel will stifle it.

There is in New York town a certain fellow who is extremely obdurate about a certain important matter in which a number of companies are directly interested. Said fellow has been holding his ground for some time now. But the point is how long will the other folks hang on to their patience? This column asks, thinks it knows, but won't tell.

Fox Theatre Dept. Shake-UpRumored

Reports of an impending shake-up in the theatre operating division of Fox have been rumored for more than a week. It has been stated unofficially that John Zanft, who has been in charge of the Fox theatre operating division prior to the acquisition of the West Coast circuit and more recently the Poli theatres, is slated to retire from that post. Harold B. Franklin, president of the Fox West Coast Theatres, is slated to come east, according to the same reports.

Lends Color To Report

Frank Whitbeek, general publicity director for the West Coast Circuit, was in New York this week on a flying trip. It was stated that his activities were in connection with the future of the Horace Heidt Band which is now playing in the vicinity of New York, although it is an organization that was sponsored by the West Coast organization and groomed by them for years before leaving their native state. However, his appearance in New York at the time of the Franklin rumor lent color to the report.

Zanft has been a very close associate in personal matters of William Fox, even prior to his joining the organization.

Zanft could not be reached for a denial or affirmation.

Additional Fox Shares For Purchase Of Libson Chain

Fox Film Corporation has made application for the listing of an additional 51,360 shares of Class A common stock on the New York Stock Exchange, the additional shares to be used in the transaction through which Fox acquires the Lihson & Heidings circuit of twelve theatres in Cineinnati, Dayton and Columbus.

The ground work has been laid. That is as far as the effort has gone. As a result of a private conference held between Charles C. Pettijohn, general counsel for the Hays association, and William James, president of the Ohio organization, into which H. M. Richey, business manager of the Michigan M.P.T.O. was called as a leader of Allied, a second meeting was held late Wednesday. Present were Abram F. Myers, M. A. Lightman, Ike Libson, Glenn Cross, James C. Ritter, J. J. Harwood, P. J. Wood, Pettijohn and James. Motion Picture News learns exclusively that the following program was agreed upon:

1. That Myers would confer with Allied leaders and appoint a committee, in all probability of five, to confer in New York as soon as possible in an effort to work out a satisfactory formular.

2. That M. A. Lightman would appoint, on behalf of the M.P.T.O.A., a committee of five for the same purpose.

3. That Will II. Hays will name a group to represent affiliated theatres, the fifteen to hold a joint meeting as rapidly as the arrangements can be made.

Kent Speeds Cooperation Thought

Sidney R. Kent proved the pivotal figare around whom the entire development program developed. Lightman, addressing the Ohio exhibitors the afternoon before the banquet, was the first to sound the cooperation keynote.

operation keynote.

"Two factors can bave differences and different viewpoints and both he entirely honest in their contentions," he said. "I am talking to you as an individual not as the president of the M.P.T.O.A. Any time that Allied, Hays or the producers call me in on a constructive program I go—51 per cent and more. But I refuse to become involved in wrangles over differences in our own ranks or broadcast our troubles to the outside world. If we turn our energies to the difficulties confronting us, we can solve them. This goes for Allied or anybody else."

At the honement, the goesney hid for here.

At the banquet, the second bid for harmony came from William James, president of the Ohio M.P.T.O. who expressed the hope that a merger of the two exhibitor groups would be possible.

Pettijohn, in his address, traced a sketchy history of exhibitor organization and climaxed his remarks with an offer from the affiliated theatres to join any well-officered and properly constructive exhibitor bodies.

"The exhibitor quarrel between these two national groups is the exclusive quarrel of these two groups and none of my business," he said. "I do undertake tonight, however, to state frankly and openly the position and attitude of the so-called affiliated theatres with reference to exhibitor organization, as that might (Continued on page 20)

Allied Now in 31 States

Aboard "The American," En Route from Columbus to New York.—Allied States Association is now operating in 31 states and is preparing to invade sections of the country where it is not now represented, Abram F. Myers declared in an exclusive interview with a representative of Motion Picture News.

The organization formed on January 17, 1929, began activities with twelve states and, since that time, has added nineteen more.

Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Vermont are banded together in the Independent M. P. T. O. of New England, Inc. The Northwest Exhibitor Association embraces Minnesota and the Dakotas while included as a third group under one association banner are Arizona, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Colorado, New Mexico and Wyoming functioning as the Inter-Mountain Theatre Owners Association. Other states in the line-up are New Jersey, Maryland, West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania, Texas, Oklahoma, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Montana, Washington, Oregon, Louisiana, Mississippi and those portions of Nebraska which are served from Denver.

"The affiliated theatres of the United States, approximately 4,000 in number (and they are all pretty good theatres), wherever they are located, irrespective of the companies with whom they are affiliated, desire to join and support enthusiastically in every proper way, each and every one of the local exhibitor organizations in the United States where their purposes are constructive and where they are honestly and sincerely officered by men who are concerned first, with the solution of exhibitors' probelms.

"Representing these affiliated theatres I suggest that exhibitor organization should be by distributing zones, so that there may be an exhibitor organization in each of the recognized thirty-two distributing zones, comprising the membership of all affiliated and all so-called in dependent theatre owners with purposes in common and with ambitions alike for constructive service to the dependent theatre owners with purposes in common and with ambitions alike for constructive service to the industry.

"Such problems as protection, zoning plans, overseating or over-building and all other problems that exist in the industry today or may arise in the future, can be solved fairly and squarely, if all branches of this business will but honestly and sincerely organize for such purpose and for no other purpose. The vehicle by which this definite accomplishment can be achieved and through which all industry problems can be solved must of necessity be available at all times for all occasions and can only be launched on each occasion by honest organizations serving the industry in such capacities.

"Producers and distributors are so organized. They are not only ready and anxious for such co-operation from the exhibition field of this husiness but anxious osee you obtain it or establish it or build it, if you please; but anxious and willing to give you any help or assistance that we can give you to these ends as you may desire it.

"All such questions must be solved at all times with or assistance that we can give you to these ends as you may desire it.

"All such questions must be solved at all times with due regard for the interest of the public. You theatre owners have passed the time when your public will be satisfied with the mere unwrapping of a can of film and the running of it through a projection machine in theatres that are unwholesome, poorly kept, operated and expected to run themselves without showmanship behind them.

and expected to run themselves without showmanship behind them.

"There is an immediate necessity for all branches of this business and all factions of all branches to get together, study each other's problems as well as their own and build an united industry front. The neces-sity is brought about as much by strife within the in-dustry as from attacks from without."

Myers Proves Receptive

Myers, who spoke next, made it clear that Allied will never relinquish the rights of the exhibitor. Admitting the possibility of a friendly arrangement, he pointed out that its terms would have to be open.

"Since joining with Allied," he said, "I have tried to resolve in my mind what is meant by the word 'constructive.' I have always considered that I was constructiveminded, although there may be a difference of opinion about that. I have always thought that it was a constructive thing to build up an organization which represented only the interests of those in the industry who performed the exhibitor function.

"I have thought that that could be accomplished without encroaching upon anyone clese's perogative. I have thought that that could be accomplished without

Speaking As One

Columbus .- II. M. Richey, Affied leader from Michigan, sounding his association's willingness to work out a joint constructive exhibitor program, told Ohio exhibitors:

"We are wiffing to co-operate with others in the hope that from the chaos will come a solution. This will be ample compensation for our heartaches and our efforts. It must be worked out across the table. Exhibitors must learn to speak as one unit. Producers and distributors are afready one unit. Then, finally the two groups can work it oat.'

giving rise to any animosity; I have even hoped that such an undertaking would be welcomed by other branches of the industry because I had heard that there was a sincere desire for a definite exhibitor organization with which they could deal.

"Now it has been pointed out and it is, of course, true that there are points that the theatre owners who are entirely independent of any producer-distributor affiliations and the exhibitors who are not affiliated with or controlled by producers must differ. It seemed to me that exhibitors of all kinds could approach those questions and align themselves on those questions fairly and bonestly in accordance with their interest. Such clash of interest ought not to give rise to animosity.

"I do not know what lies behind the announcement so gravely made this evening. From the manner of delivery I assume there was an implication beyond the mere words that were employed. If that is true and my surmises are correct, I think we should welcome this as a further clarification of a situation that has been to many of us altogether too obscure. There are many issues that call for definition and that probably is one of them.

Holds Cooperation Is Possible

"A house divided against itself cannot stand. An industry cannot exist that it half slave and half free. The most sacred right that an American citizen has is his independence of thought and action. "I can only speak for one organization of motion picture exhibitors. It now comprises in its membership organizations in thirty-one states of the Union, and I can and will say for it that it will never relinquish is right to speak out in defense of the interest of the theatre owners of the United States and will never compromise their rights, on the one hand, and on the other it will never, so far as I have any thing to do with it, take a position that cannot be vindicated in the court of public opinion. That, to my way of thinking, is a constructive program. Anything short of that, to my way of thinking, would be pusillanimons.

"The arrangement to be made, and there would be no selfish position taken on our side, would have to leave the theatre owners have; and it would have to leave the theatre owners have; and it would have to leave the theatre owners have; and the representatives which they choose. It is not an easy thing to define our position particularly and without preparation."

It was Komt the last speaker openly de-out preparation.

It was Kent, the last speaker, openly declaring that, so far as his company was eoneerned, he was willing at all times to confer with Myers or any other exhibitor group, who finally put over the get-together movement. His address, which deviated from a prepared text, and which is published elsewhere in this edition, was straightforward, competent and caused widespread comment among all throughout the entire assemblage.

Clear Path To Cooperation

Kent openly charged Myers had never made an attempt to see him and asked how co-operation could be accomplished on that sort of basis. After the dinner, Myers, who sat next to Kent, is understood to have said that he had made no direct attempt at communication because of indirect information that his request would be turned down. Kent, in rejoinder, is understood to have told Myers such was not the case.

With that misunderstanding cleared away, it became a simple matter to cement the relationship. Myers was heard to say at the conclusion of the dinner that he held Kent to be "most able."

On Wednesday, it was agreed privately that a committee would be formed to continue discussions. When the convention resumed in the afternoon, H. M. Riehey, of Michigan, was asked to speak first.

"Sidney Kent closed the door on the past last night and opened it on the future," he said, in part. "I'm willing to forget the past. There is no need to spit in each other's eye,"

He urged those present to appreciate the value of strong exhibitor organization and

"Pusillanimous"

Columbus .- "Pusilfanimous" was one of the six syllable words pulled by Abram F. Myers here. Many Ohio exhibitors looked askew at each other and wondered what it meant. Charley Pettijohn said the biggest word he ever used before an exhibitor convention was "co-operation" and admitted good-naturedly that Myers and pusilfanimous had completely floored him.

Myers admits he knows a few more and, by way of rating, puts pusiltanimons down as a mere forty-ceot word.

pointed out how his own association had saved Michigan exhibitors $6,785,000 in taxes last year and 150 honses from going out of business. He said Allied has been constructive and pointed to the franchise. "If it has done nothing else, it has brought down the price of other films," he remarked.

Myers followed Richey. He explained that exhibitor had held Allied to be necessary; therefore it came into being.

Many of the problems confronted today, he said, existed because Allied felt the real matters of importance could not be ferreted and brought into the light of day.

reted and brought into the light of day,
"I know the pride of authorship. I can appreciate the feelings of those who had set up a selling system, found it worked for a number of years only to now have it questioned by one who is a newcomer to the industry. I can appreciate the impatence that exists when there are some who hold that that system is illegal. It makes a perfect cause for misunderstanding, I believed that some features in the existent distribution system were unlawful. The Government challenged those points prior to Allied's inception. So at least we cannot be blamed for that, "I admit there must be a standard contract and arbitration, but without those very definite features with which we find fault."

Pettilohn was the last speaker at this

Pettijohn was the last speaker at this session. He declared no one man or two men could solve the troubles of the industry.

could solve the froubles of the industry.

"Kent gave an opportunity to close the door on the past," he said. "Kent you may not know, will need help for some of the ideas he advanced last night. If something doesn't work out here today, I'm through, I am not an exhibitor and I don't represent exhibitors and there is no reason for me to be here today.

"The opportunity, as I see it, is not for a 100 per cent solution of your problems, but for most of them. You haven't got a bigger thing to face today than protection. Distributors are with you. They get more money for their pictures if exhibitors don't get so much protection. Yet the problem can be solved. We worked a zoning plan out in Cleveland with Jack Harwood. Ask him, he's sitting right here. We worked one out with Richey in Michigan and it was effective. Richey is sitting here. He won't deny it.

"But the Government tells us we must stop zoning. That puts distributors and independent exhibitors on one side of the fence.

Contract Far From Perfect

"Yon've heard a lot about the contract. I'm not in love with it. I never said it was perfect. It is 200 per cent too long and half of its clauses are unnecessary. That is its biggest defect.

"I never said arbitration was perfect. That, too, is too long because everybody's ideas are in it.

"Another serious situation is that confronting this industry on taxation. The dollar sign has been used so frequently on box-office records and costs of theatres that this industry has been made a wide open mark for traxation of all descriptions.

"I never said that Kent or Hays or Pettijohn would not sit down with Myers and the one who told you so (turning to Myers) is a liar."

The committee then retired for private

The committee then retired for private deliberation at the conclusion of which the convention was informed no statement would be forthcoming. The convention then came to a close.

Kent Dominates Columbus Convention; Holds Industry Cooperation Is Vital

Let's Get Down to Brass Tacks Says

Sidney R. Kent

Columbus.—Highlights of Sidney R. Kent's address before the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Ohio:

"I have yet to see any reform in this business secured by coercion or legal procedure. . . . Steps taken in com-mon-sense co-operation have come through a group of men sitting openly around a table and discussing their mutual problems.

"This is the day of widespread chain operation in every branch of organ-ized industry. . . . The fierceness of chain operation and competition doesn't exist in our industry to anywhere near the degree that it does in where near the degree that it does in other kinds of merchandising.

"Today, your theatre patron is not satisfied with many old shooting galleries, improperly kept and improperly run. You must give the public entertainment in comfortable seats, among clean and beautiful surroundings and in an up-to-date maner.

This doesn't mean that the smalltown operator must build a theatre entirely out of proportion to the possibilities of his town, but it does mean that no matter how small his theatre may be, he must conduct it so it pleases as many of the senses of enjoyment of his public as they demand.

"If the chain operation of small theatres is not conducted on a very careful and wise basis, these theatres will pass back into the hands of independents without any question of doubt.

"Chains are here, whether you like or not. And they will expand. Itow far depends entirely upon the wisdom and business sense of those who operate them.

"Prices for sound films are becoming more and more adjusted to a commonsense level. While the exhibitor committed himself to a block or year's supply of pictures, in many cases at supply of pictures, in many cases at impossible prices, the producers jointly made an investment running into $500,000,000. They have commitments that run for 15 years, not just for one year and they must pay for at least five years whether profitable or not.

"Larger towns and larger theatres. to some extent, are sucking the business away from small towns and smaller theatres. It is my opinion that this will continue in spite of all that can be done.

"The obligation this industry owes you is to get film rentals on the basis of a fair percentage of what the exhibitor takes in at the box office. I expressed this view in Motion Picture News five years ago and have had no occasion to change my mind since."

Able Address Builds Foundation For Allied-M. P. T. O. A. Discussions—Sees Rough Sailing For Small Man

Columbns.—Spitting in a man's eye and the next day asking him to co-operate with you is no way to bring about industry co-ordination," Sidney R. Kent told Abram F. Myers, H. M. Richey, Al Steffes, J. C. Ritter, Glenn Cross and other leaders of Allied at the banquet which marked one of the highlights of the Ohio M. P. T. O. convention and pointed the way toward a possible solution of exhibitor

"Mr. Myers," said Kent, "you have made no effort to see me. My door is open to you as it has been to Mr. Lightman and as it is to any organized exhibitor body. When a man sits across the table from me and talks to me I can get somewhere. When a man makes no effort to see me I ean't.'

Kent was the final speaker on a long list. Charles C. Pettijohn, in an earlier address, pledged the affiliated theatres of the nation to exhibitor organizations provided such organizations were headquartered in the 32 distribution zones of the United States functioning on a constructive program and properly officered.

Myers, in reply, made it very clear he would never relinquish the rights of the exhibitor as vested in Allied. Then Kent arose and for almost half an hour captured and held the assemblage in what old campaigners and film men agreed was one of the most able dissertations on industry matters ever delivered.

Outlines Industry Problems

He spoke of chain operation, the need for eo-operation, percentage, the difficulties over sound and applied the trend of general business to motion pietures in an endeavor to demonstrate how vital a bearing outside factors wield on the progress of or retrogression of exhibition.

Some of the ground he covered was preiously covered and cross-sectioned in his Memphis address. Much was new.

"My experience, much of it outside the motion picture industry, taught me long ago that the problems within this business, eannot be solved without common sense cooperation on the part of all branches of the industry," he said early in the speech.

"The fact that producers are on one side and the distributors on the other means just this: that although we are ou different sides of the fence, when it comes to our commercial negotiations for film, we still have this much in common-that it means a livelihood for both of us and for us to stand like opposite armies, sniping at each other is as silly as one army divided gainst itself, one side fighting the other.

"I have yet to see any reform in this business secured by coercion or legal procedure, while on the other hand, those steps that have been taken in common sense co-operation have come through a group of men sitting openly around a table and discussing their mutual problems.

"Too many discussions in the past bave been marked by unnecessary bitterness. If any fair-minded man is not willing to admit today that the time has gone by for these old-fashioned, old-time methods, then I think all of the constructive work that has been done is indeed futile. But I cannot believe this to be the case. Each side must recognize the problems of the other or there can never be any fair basis on which minds can meet.

"We have lately had the greatest example that could be given to business throughout the world of what open and frank discussions means in settling old and aggravated problems. When Ramsay MacDonald came to this country and sat down on the levee by the Airgina River with the President of our own country, problems from which civilization had suffered for centuries, were brought out into the open and a settlement now seems imminent. In a few days what old-fashioned diplomats had failed to do in fifty years was well started on its way.

"What is the future of the small, independent exhibitor? When I say independent, I mean that type of exhibitor standing alone, making his living out of the operation of his theatre, with no open or under cover affiliatious upon whom he can draw for support.

"Today, one must be a student of economics in order to realize what is going on in the world of husiness. Influences outside of our own lusiness. This is the day of wide-spread chain operation in every branch of organized industry. Even the banks, the last to succumb, have finally gone in for chain banking throughout the states. Banking is being done today on the chain basis, and only a few years ago, everyone thought it was impossible. However, this doesn't necessarily mean that all the independent banks in the country are going out of business. The live, up-to-date, alert hanker will maintain his place in the community, and in my opinion, will have an advantage over the chain bank.

"Just the same, as I believe, the alive, independent exhibitor today, you will find the course he is taking is not much different from any other widespread operating industry. Thousands of small, independent exhibitor today, you will find the course he is taking is not much different from any other widespread operating industry. Thousands of small independent exhibitors and small chain operators, have sold their business at tremendous prices. Others who have stayed still are hound to lose their place in the sun unless they keep pace with the amusent demands of the public.

"There is a certain psychology back of this all, if one wants to recognize and se are going to fail, even if they get their film rental for nothing.

"If you will refer to the recent report of Dr. Klein of the United States Department of Commerce, you will find that in a survey made of the independent operators in many lines of business throughout the country, that are actively in competition with chain stores, he made the statement that sixty per cent of the failures were due to the fact that the men themselves were not fitted for the husiness they were engaged and would have failed in any event in time.

"As a matter of fact, the fierceness of chain operation and competition doesn't exist in our industry to anywhere near the degree that it does in other kinds of merchaudising.

Analyzes Small Town Situation

"Many of the small town exhibitors are at a tremendous disadvantage in operating their theatres due to the fact that they haven't been able to purchase sound equipment, either at a price satisfactory to them, or to get the quality machines they desire at a price they can pay. This condition, in my opinion, is only temporary and will be remedied within the next few months.

only temporary and will be remedied within the next few months.

"However, even with the installation of sound equipment, the exhibitor must recognize that there is a different way, and I will illustrate what I mean. You all remember the story of the Ford car. The hest car for the money was put out hy Ford, and yet he was forced to change his model, the colors, the upholstery and the gear shift to please the sense of value. He had to please the sense of value. He had to please the sense of value. He had to please the sense of value. He had to please the sense of value. He sense of comfort, the sense of color and of style.

"It is no different with your theatre patron today. They are not satisfied with many of the old shooting-galleries, improperly kept and improperly run, that answered the purpose a few years ago. Today, not notly must you give the public entertainment. You must give it to them in comfortable seats, among clean and beautiful surroundings and in an up-to-date manner. This doesn't mean that the small-town operator (Continued on page 32)

Ohio Ind'pts Out Seen Via Mergers

Columbus.—Merging of their individual theatre interests to seeme the henefits of chain buying was urged upon Ohio exhibitors assembled here this week by P. J. Wood, business manager of the organization. Predicting that chain operation has been so successful that the present major groups in the industry today will grow rather than diminish, Wood recommended that his association's members take similar steps.

Unless such a procedure is adopted, Wood sees further difficulties for the unaffiliated exhibitors in this state. He terms the step as "a matter of self-preservation."

Find Rentals Still High

The introduction of sound brought a new and unknown factor into the business, he pointed out, adding that even today after many months had elapsed the readjustment process has not been completed. The problem of high film rentals continues to be serious, Wood maintained, and has not as yet been entirely solved. He sees further improvement as more and more theatres install sound, thereby giving distributors a wider market for their pictures. It is his opinion that today distributors are attempting to secure from approximately 40 per cent of the theatres, 100 per cent in revenue as a result of which the small showman is paying far too much for his film.

Competition from first runs has made it impossible for the small theatre owner to raise his prices, Wood argued, because the little house cannot compete in types of entertainment put on by the de luxe theatres, thereby adding additional woes to the small operator's bundle of trouble.

He told of an Ohio meeting held in Columbus on June 6 at which 350 theatres were represented and how William James and he were appointed a committee to confer with distribution executives in New York on the matter of adjustments. Shortly after distributors announced a committee to make the necessary revisions in contracts of exhibitors who had overbought on sound.

Praises Allied on Franchise

RKO and Tiffany have saved exhibitors hundreds of thousands of dollars on rentals as a direct result of the franchise evolved by Allied, Wood continued, "I arge every exhibitor," he said, "who has not as yet tied-up all of his playdates for the coming season to give the most serious consideration to the purchase of one of these franchises in order that he may guarantee himself product on an equitable basis—for the next five years,"

Commending Allied further, Wood deelared this organization must be eredited for the action of RCA Photophone in building their "Type G" equipment for houses up to 500 seats at a price which he described as "within the means of the small theatre owner."

Sidelights on the Ohio convention appear on page 33.

Praise For Hays

Columbus.—Two years ago, Harry L. Reichenbach toastmasted at Mid-Western Exhibitior Convention at which he repudiated Will II. Hays and, was, in turn, repudiated by the latter.

At the Ohio exhibitor banquet, Reichenbach mentioned this and added:

"I believe in Mr. Hays' honesty and know that he has the best interests of this industry at heart."

Ohio Stays Unaffiliated; Pending Conference Result

Columbus.—The M.P.T.O. of Ohio stands on its own. It was expected the state would go Allied, but pending the further deliberations between that organization, the M.P.T.O.A. and the Hays group, no action has been taken.

New System Of Taxation In Ohio May Benefit Theatres

Columbus.—Voters of Ohio, by an overwhelming majority, have voiced their approval of a change in the state's taxation system.

Under the present law, taxation is uniform. The same rate is applied to intangible assets as well as real estate, but the former escape levies because they can be hidden whereas real estate is taxed at full value. Theatres naturally are largely affected.

James Heads Ohio M.P.T.O. 6th Time

Columbus.—Despite his desire to retire from office after a five-year tenure, the M. P. T. O. of Obio re-elected William

James, of Columbus, president this week. J.J.Harwood, of Clevelyand, was elected vice-president at large; Ike Libson, of Cincinnati, first vice-president; Henry Beiberson, Jr., of Delaware, second vice-president; J. L. Damm, of Wads worth, third vice-president; Caldwell H. Brown, of Zanesville, treasurer; and George M. Fenberg, of Granville, secretary.

"If You Can't Beat It, Sell"—Woodhull Advises

Columbus.—"If you can't beat it, sell to a sucker" was the cryptic manner in which R. F. Woodhull, former president of the M.P.T.O.A. and now minister plenipotentiary for General Talking Pictures, sized up the present situation confronting the small town exhibitor. He told the Ohio theatre men that good roads and better entertainment in larger towns were two factors they had to consider.

Water—Dirty, Backed And Otherwise

Allied States Association, in a statement just issued, says, in part:

"C. C. Pettijohn of the Hays organization sounded the only discordant note in what was planned to be a harmony banquet at the meeting of the Ohio exhibitors in Columbus, November 19.

"Mr. Pettijohn declared that the affiliated theatres representing fifty-one per cent of the seating capacity and seventy per cent of the business, for which he spoke, would adopt the policy of joining and paying dues to such state associations as were deemed to be constructive.

"The manner in which this declaration was made, the lowered voice, and the grimaces all made it plain that he did not regard organizations affiliated with this Association as constructive. Moreover, the ground work was laid by the obliging Maurice Kann of the Motion Picture News in the preceding speech and the affiliated theatres in Ohio had a short time previously, of their own motion, solicited membership in the Ohio organization."

The history of this strange interlude in the peace warble sounded at Columbus and what happened thereafter is interesting.

The Allied statement, to begin with, was not written by Abram F. Myers, although he takes the responsibility for it, as he must since he is president of Allied. It was written by an Allied leader who left the Ohio convention city after the dinner on Tuesday night. He has swiped enough headlines all over the land. Therefore, his name is omitted.

Of the incident, Myers in a telegram to Motion Picture News declares:

"The manner in which Mr. Pettijohn accommodated his remarks to the speech of Mr. Kann indicated a degree of cooperation which I do not now believe existed. This office, therefore, desires to withdraw the reference to Kann in its bulltein dated November 20."

That's gand. It makes Myers out a good sort; stamps his unnamed associate with the stigma of irresponsibility and, from a publishing slant, is pleasant in that it attracts additional attention to Motion Picture News.

Perhaps we were obliging. However, let this be said:

If by being "obliging," this forum can advance the cause of harmony and cooperation among branches of an industry that should have enough of common sense to do so without perpetual outside prodding, we are both young enough and sufficiently debonair to live it down.

Allied For Parley Between Exhibitors and Gov't on Contract, Arbitration

Contract And Arbitration Both Under Discussion

(Washington Bureau, Motion Picture News) Washington. - Modification of the standard contract and arbitration agreement required under the decision rendered in the New York Federal Court last month by Judge Thacher was discussed this week at a conference between Gabriel Hess, representing Producers and Distributors of America, and officials of the Department of Justice.

The New York decision held that the control of the contro several of the provisions were in violation of the Sherman act, but left the way open for amendment of those provisions so as to bring them within the law, Judge Thacher holding that the arbitration system as a whole was of value to the industry.

Hess was in Washington for the purpose of taking up with the department the changes which can be made to accomplish this end and, if an agreement is reached, will be submitted to the court for approval and a decree will be entered.

Two Contracts For Arbitration Snag

Washington, D. C .- Two contract forms, one containing voluntary arbitration clause, and the other calling for advance deposits, may prove the ultimate means to a solution of illegalities under the Sherman anti-trust law of the present arbitration system.

E. P. Grosvenor of the firm of Cadwallader, Wickersham and Taft, is continuing conferences with the government for the purposes of ironing out legal wrinkles in the arbitration sctup. Gabriel Hess, of the Hays office, came here Tuesday to attend the conferences.

Says Tiffany Adjusted On Own; Not "Sold An Idea"

Columbus .- An industry get-together in New York to discuss existing problems and to be participated in by all branches of the industry as suggested by Oscar Hanson, general sales man-ager of Tiffany, will not develop. The idea had small chance of adoption when advanced at the Ohio exhihitor association banquet and petered out entirely in view of the sympathetic discussion held on Wednesday between Messrs. Pettijohn, Myers, Richey and Myers Group Holds Distributors Are Violating the Law Under Current Systems and Face Court Order

Washington.-Open negotiations under government auspices between exhibitors and distributors is seen by Allied States Association as the solution to the condition presented by Judge Thacher's decision on the standard contract and arbitration, which Allied contends establishes that the contract is illegal under the anti-trust laws. Allied maintains the contract is illegal because imposed upon exhibitors of the Meetings of the board of arbitration have been suspended. George P. Aarons, secretary of the M. P. T. O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware, is of the opinion that if the arbitration clause is found illegal, it will not in any way invalidate other covenants in the contract.

He believes that two forms of contract will be offered to exhibitors, one providing for voluntary arbitration, the other for compulsory arbitration.

Exhibitors Resist Arbitration Effort

eountry by "the combined action of the producers acting through and under the leadership of the Hays organization." The association believes that there must follow from Judge Thacher's decision a decree finding that the defendants are engaged in a conspiracy in restraint of interstate trade and commerce in violation of the

Sherman anti-trust law and enjoining them

Minneapolis-Arbitration still is at a standstill in this territory despite several efforts made by distributors to resume it. Exhibitor arbitrators here were among the first to "walk out," following edict of Allied States Ass'n, that arbitration be discontinued. W. A. Steffes, head of the Northwest exhibitor unit and a leader of Allied, has been stumping the country attacking the present arbitration system. Following his visit to several cities, notably in the West, exhibitor associations have withdrawn from arbitration.

Fox Studio, Ahead On Release, Cuts

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News) Hollywood-Fox studios having passed production peak, the company has radically cut down staffs of sound department, cameramen, technicians and research depart-ment. Contract players, writers and directors are not affected and there is no indication of general reorganization, as this step is merely in line with economies practiced by all studios when production is at ebb. It is expected that full scale production will resume in January.

George Abbott In Town

George Abbott is in New York for a stay after completing "Half Way to Heaven" for Paramount.

Fence Straddlers

Columbus.-"The exhibitor must decide on one side or the other," Abram F. Myers told Ohio exhibitors. "He cannot stay on the fence forever. There should be no criticism of the theatre owner for taking his rightful place in this industry. It reminds me of the aviator who got into the air and didn't remember whether he was in a sea or a land plane so he landed in

New Star Crop Expected Thru Screen Revues And Musicals

The question of where starring material for screen entertainment five years hence is to come from was presumably decided by a group of picture producers gossiping in the lobby of the Winter Garden after the premiere of the "Show of Shows."

Seemingly there was almost an unanimous opinion that the ranks of the chorus now employed in Hollywood would have to furnish them. One thing seemed certain now employed in Hollywood would have and that was the screen stars of today, who are entertaining in the revue type of screen entertainment now heing presented, are attracting audiences because of their reputations made in the past. With the development of singers and daneers from the ranks they will fade, in some opinions.

Present stars are managing to handle dialogue nicely, it was granted, hnt singing voices are not as easily developed, nor is the knack of putting over a song something that is acquired over night. That can come only with long training and that training will have to be in the ranks of the ensembles, it was argued.

Chances Seen Coming Slowly

However, it was admitted that the opportunities will not come as easily as they did on the stage. It will be more along lines under which extras were picked from the mobs in pictures and developed into boxoffice bets.

In the "Show of Shows" it was two stage personalities that carried off the greatest applause at the finish. They were John Barrymore and Frankie Fay. Of the women it was Beatriee Lillie and Winnie Lightner, both stage stars, who ran away with the honors, although the Costello sisters, in the number which introduced sixteen famous sisters of the screen, were the only pair that registered heavily either as to singing or dancing. Their harmony vocalizing carried them along to an extent that surprised the hardboiled first night audience.

M.P.Academy Data On Sound Available To Entire Industry

The statement was made following erroneous reports that results of technical research through the Academy would be available only to members.

Warner Earnings At $17,271,805

Record earnings for a picture company are shown in the annual report of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., for the year ended August 31, with net profits of $17,271,805. This includes profits of the Stanley Company of America and First National Pictures, Inc., subsidiaries, and profits of $2,757,177 earned by subsidiaries during the period, but prior to date of their acquisition.

The net for the year was 744.6 per cent greater than that of the preceding year, which were reported as $2,044,841. Per share earnings reported to $6.28 on 2,627,405 shares of common stock outstanding, after deduction of preferred dividends, for the last year, as against $3.72 a share on the 550,000 combined Class A and common stock outstanding on Aug. 31, 1928. The company split the common stock on a two-for-one basis last June, and recently increased dividend rate to $4 annually.

In a letter to stockholders, Harry M. Warner, president of the company, said: "On the hasis of the first two months of the current fiscal year and contracts which have been written, it is expected that the net profits for the current year will show a substantial increase over those for the year ended Aug. 31, 1929.

For The Record

Hollywood.—Apropos of the recent stock market gyrations, Harry Richman is quoted in the Los Angeles Record, as stating:

"Irving Berlin was so perturbed during the recent stock crisis that he re-wrote 'Alexander's Rag Time Band.'

"And, I hear that Sid Grauman perspired Chinese theatres for two days."

Mrs. Winter Going Slow In New Post

Hollywood—Ground work for her functions as representative in the film industry of organized clubwomen of America is being laid by Mrs. T. G. Winter, former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who was named to the film production post at the recent M. P. Conference held in New York under auspices of Will H. Hays.

So far as co-operation on production is concerned, Mrs. Winter to date has done but little, due to necessity of establishing close contact with the organizations she is to represent. Associations affiliated with 50 national women's organizations, it is understood, are to be a party to the program outlined. Mrs. Winter has visited and addressed a number of women's organizations of the state, since accepting her motion picture assignment.

Claim Censor Violations

Philadelphia.—State censors have warned exhibitors against showing material in sound pictures which had been ordered eliminated, following discovery of several violations throughout Pennsylvania. A cheek on operators to see that proper cuts are made has been ordered by the board. Failures to comply with board requirements were blamed on exchanges which, it is said, did not notify exhibitors of eliminations ordered.

"Medals" Wins A Medal

Paramount gambled—and won!

It steps into a new story field with "Medals."

The picture was decidedly daring to attempt—and Paramount production executives realized this fact before it was ever started. The play by Sir James M. Barrie had been rated as "highbrow"; there is not one spark of youthful love interest in any part of the story; and the ending is an unhappy one.

and the ending is an unhappy one.

Regardless of these conditions, "Medals" has been finely done—it earries intense interest throughout, and provides several characterizations that will be acclaimed among the outstanding performances of the year.

Gary Cooper is starred, with Beryl Mercer stealing the greater amount of acting honors as the old lady. There is a humanness and delightful atmosphere about the rather simple story of mother-love that eannot fail to raise the picture to one of the best of the year. both artistically and commercially.

"Medals" conclusively proves that there are new fields of story background for talking pictures. Perhaps, it is an indication that the cycle of murder mysteries, court room dramas, backstage stuff, and other hackneyed settings are definitely out of future consideration as film material. If producing officials study "Medals," we will have a new era of refreshing stories for the talkers—and they are needed.

The Greta Garbo Gamut

Hearken to James Oppenheim's "psychoanalytical portrait" of the great Garbo in the current issue of Screen-

"She helongs to that comparatively rare group that Dr. Jung calls the soul-image type. The soul-image type woman runs the gamnt of what women have been, from the shady to the light, from the demoniac or devilish to the divine. She is Mona Lisa and Cleopatra. She is a mystery even to herself. She is an introvert. She is a woman of moods. She is a lover of solitude."

And so on for several thousand words. But Elinor Glyn said more in a two-letter word.

Pay $969,158 For Control Of Marks

Cash totalling $207,575 and common stock of a market value of $761,583 on the basis of Friday's closing price of 51, is what Paramount will pay for a controlling interest in Marks Brothers Theatres, Inc., owner of the Granada and Marbro in Chicago, it is revealed in application by Paramount for listing of 32,136 additional common shares on the New York Stock Exchange this week. Publix Vs. Fox In Boulder, Colo.

Boulder, Colo.-Publix will enter the loeal situation in competition with Fox. Boulder recently became a seven-day town, following a referendum on the "blue"

Sunday question.

Fox operates the town's only two houses, the Isis and Curran. Options on three lots have been acquired by Publix. Opening of the Capitol at Cheyenne, Wyo., is another step in the competitive battle between the two chains in this territory.

Publix Opening In Syracuse

Syraeuse-Publix early in December will open the Temple here, recently acquired. The house, which now is being reconstructed, will be managed by Andy Roy.

N. Y. Safety Commission Planned To Safeguard Public Audiences

A Greater New York Safety Commission is to come into being shortly after the first of the year, according to plans that are now being formulated. Its personnel will include the Commissioners of Health, Police, Fire and Licenses with the possibility that the latter will be the chairman, and also Houses included in the string taken over include the American, Express, Homewood, Liberty, Emerson (elosed), in Minneapolis; Fargo, State, Garriek and Orpheum, in Fargo; and State, Grand and Lyrie in Mankato.

American has been operating under working agreements with F & R and Publix for several years.

Wins Wage Suit From Publix

Omaha.-F. J. Clark, former stage manager of the World Theatre here, won a suit in municipal court for $484.20 in wages from Publix Theatres Corporation. The case will be appealed.

Clark contended that Publix was bound by a contract between the former operators of the World and the stage hands union, which does not expire until January 1, 1930. Publix took over the house in August and changed the combination policy to straight pietures, dismissing the stage erew.

W. E. Victor In German Suit Against Triergon

Berlin .- The decision of the Cancellation Court of the German Patent Office declares the patent of the Triergon Co. on a resistence coupled amplifier null and void. This is a victory for the Electrical Research Products, which brought the suit attacking the validity of the patent.

This litigation was not involved in the injunction which the German film interests have secured against Western Electric equipment in Germany under which three theatres using it were closed, as that case has not as yet come to trial. It is. however, the first and only decision handed down by the German courts, based on the actual merits of the patents involved.

the Presidents of the five boronghs, Complete surveys will be made of all of the theatres, halls, armories, ball parks and amphitheatres in the city in an effort to make certain that they are free from all hazards. Fire hazards will receive particular attention.

With the Commissioner of Lieenses as Chairman of the Safety Commission the final word on issuing lieenses for auditoriums for public gatherings will come before him. The Police, Fire and Health Commissioners will act with him before a lieense is issued with the Presidents of the Boroughs also working with the Commission as a part of it there will be little likelihood that pressure could be brought to bear where a "fx" is needed. Under the new system it would be difficult for a minor official to put his okay on the issuance of a license, because there will be at least four different investigations made before a permit to operate is issued.

There is a report that the cabinet of Mayor Walker might be revised after the first of the year for his second term and that a man thoroughly familiar with the theatrical conditions in the Metropolitan area might be selected to fill the post of License Commissioner.

There have been many little dodges used by various circuits operating in Greater New York whereby they managed to have an alleged "political fixer" on their staffs. One of the bigger theatre operating companies is said to buy eoal from a certain leader's son and thus have a "fix" planted for themselves. It is at this sort of thing that the new Commission is said to be aimed.

Stench Bomb Hurlers Get Six Mouths In Work House

Columbus, O .- Arthur Stanley and Kenneth Mettle, the latter a motion pieture operator, have been sentenced by Judge Berry in municipal court to serve six months in the work house and pay fines of $200 and costs as the result of being convieted of throwing stench bombs in theatres operated by J. Real Neth. The ease was an outgrowth of Neth's refusal to grant a $35,000 yearly increase demanded by local operators last September.

W. E. Up To 3,705

World-wide installations of Western Electric equipment for theatres now number 3,705 according to the survey completed on November 9 and just made public. Of this number there are 814 installed in foreign lands, while the balance are in theatres in the United States.

Economic Conference Omits Films

Washington.-Captains of industry and finance are to cooperate with President Hoover in creation of a business council which will seek to maintain the confidence of the public in the country and eliminate business disturbances such as followed in the wake of the stock market crash.

Yet, the one medium which reaches the greatest number of people at one time through two senses—the eye and the ear—has not been called upon for its suggestion or aid. So far as can be learned the motion picture industry has to date been ignored.

On November 17, the following telegram was sent to Herbert Hoover by Motion Picture News:

"It is respectfully suggested for your consideration that the agenda for the forthcoming economic conference called by the President and slated to be held in Washington on Thursday, November 21 include a spokesman for the motion picture industry to the end that the industry's resources in theatres and as a national force for the moulding of public opinion might be used to further whatever program the conference may determine upon. As the one medium reaching the greatest number of people at one time, 15,000,000 pass through the doors of motion picture theatres daily, thereby making available to the conference a rostrum of significant potentiality for constructive good. The President's plan to impress the American public with the stability of American business perhaps might be appreciably aided by the adoption of this suggestion."

Writing under date of November 18, Lawrence Richey, secretary to the President, replied:

"Your kind telegram of November 17 has been received and placed before the President. He requests me to thank you for your sugges-

Sound Brings Change Must Regulate Volume

(Washington Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Washington .- Revolutionary changes in the industry brought about by sound films have caused the work of the Motion Picture Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce to undergo considerable modification from what had been originally planned, it is declared in the annual report of the director of the bureau, just submitted to Secretary of Commerce Lamont.

The advent of sound diminished in value much information previously colleeted but of use only to producers and distributors of silent pictures and heavily increased the demand for information on the prospects of marketing both sound films and reproducing systems abroad, with the further result of widening the division's circle of contacts through inclusion of companies making sound apparatus.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, last, covered by the report, many important services were rendered by the Motion Picture Division, chief among them being a survey conducted to determine the contribution of the motion picture industry to the prosperity of other industries; co-operation with State Department officials in dealing with legislative problems affecting motion pictures in a number of foreign countries; the procuring of representative industrial films for use at the Seville exposition; advice in the establishment of the foreign sales organization of a manufacturer of sound-recording apparatus, and preparation of lists of theatres abroad of a type in which reproducing apparatus might be installed.

In M.P. Division Work According To Audience

Columbus, O .- Changing acoustical conditious due to filling and emptying of the auditorium constitutes one of the greatest problems with which the exhibitor has to contend, and the solution, so far as a uniform quality of sound reproduction is concerned, appears to be found in having volume control manipulated from a vantage point in the auditorium, Dr. Lee DeForest told exhibitors in an address before the eonvention of the M.P.T.O. of Ohio. Practiee along this line, having the volume control operated by a person seated in the auditorium or through a system of reporting directly from the auditorium to the projection room, has proved so successful that it is an established custom in some theatres, he said.

The inventor said he could see no reason for the theatre man to be concerned over the growing popularity of home talkies, because home talkies at the hest will "never equal the variety and reproduction possibilities of the theatre any more than the amateur motion pictures of today have caused loss of patronage." Sound has placed the theatre man in the most favorable position he has ever enjoyed and the only menace to profits comes from the competitor who is giving his patrons the best available reproduction of sound, he

To Review Texas Conspiracy Suit

Dallas-Damage action of R. J. Stinnett et al versus Paramount is to be reviewed by the State Supreme Court. Stinnett, who charged that a "freeze-out" kept him from getting quality pictures and so forced sale of his interest in the Capitol here, originally was awarded a verdict of $318,770. This judgment, however, was reversed by the Court of Civil Appeals, and the case remanded for trial, but Stiunett has been granted a writ of error from this verdiet, throwing the ease into the Supreme Court for review.

First National Reorganizes Its Corporate Structure

The corporate structure of First National Pictures has undergone a reorganization. The surrender of the authority of First National Pictures, Inc., a Delaware cor-poration to do business in New York, brought out the fact that two New York companies had been organized to carry on the business of the company as subsidiaries of First National Pietures, a Maryland corporation with a nominal capital of $100,000. First National Properties, Inc., has been formed as a holding company for the studio property of the company at Burbank.

Doubling In Brass

El Paso .-- A movie-struck girl, returning to her home here from a fruitless quest in Hottywood, atighted from a Sonthern Pacific train and was greeted by a group of girl friends. One of the welcoming committee pointed to a man sitting at a window of a drawing room as the train pulled out and exclaimed:

"That's D. W. Griffith."
"D-," retorted the would-be star. "I had dinner with him last night and he told me he was a shoe satesman. If I had known who he was I would have strutted my stuff and landed a

W.B.-W.E. Resume Arbitration Soon

Arbitration deliberations between Warner Brothers and Western Electric which have been pending for many months are to be resumed after December 1.

Under the contract between the two companies, differences in opinion must be determined by arbitration and recourse to a court of law was expressly forbidden. Warners' original charge was that the price of W. E. sound equipment was too high, which retarded installations and limited the potential earning power of Warner and Vitaphone attractions.

Suit On Over Deal For State Rights

Denver-J. B. Melton, Colorado exhibitor, is named defendant in a suit filed by Mrs. Wallace Reid, Cliff Broughton and Willis Kent, in which Melton is charged with disposing of South Dakota rights to "The Road to Ruin," which he had purchased, it is claimed, for distribution only in Colorado. Hollywood.-Shepard Camp, stage and film actor, is dead from injuries sustained when the horse he was riding in a scene for "The Song of the Flame" at the First National studio dashed into a tree.

It's News In Hollywoodland

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood.—News certainly does take a long time to climb over the Rockies and filter into Hollywood. Back in Columbus, Frank J. Rembusch claimed a lot of important coast people as starring fodder for the Motion Picture Congress of America and yet, strangely enough, they don't know they've signed the contracts

Rembusch says they have.

For instance. Dorothy Mackaill's representative states she is under contract for some time yet with First National. Managers of Betty Compson, Louis Wolheim, Madge Bellamy, Charlotte Greenwood, Irene Rich, Estelle Taylor, Betty Bronson and Olive Borden, declare no discussions for their services with Rembusch representatives have taken place. The directors named, also say they know nothing about it.

Harry Hoyt, handling details here during absence of George Stout, head of Equitable Pictures Corp., which plans to make films for the Rembusch organiza-tion, said nothing about contracts having been made with players and directors named, but says the proposition has backing of three prominent Wall Street bond houses who will make $5,000,000 available when Rembusch produces a "sufficient number of contracts."

Columbus.-Frank J. Rembusch's organization thus far is understood to have sold about 100 franchises. When he closes for $200,000 worth of business, Motion Picture News learns, his backers will supply $200,000 required for production. And so on. Production costs when the contracts are delivered. Looks like a lot of work with 26 pictures a year planned.

Warner Mgrs. Meet With "Round Table" Editor As Honor Guest

Pittsburgh.—Before a large and enthusiastic audience, composed of the executives, staff and house managers of the division of Warners' Theatres under the direction of "Ace" Berry, Charles E. ("Chick") Lewis, chairman and editor of Motion Picture News' Managers' Round Table Club, delivered an address and intimate talk dealing with the house manager and his problems, the relationship of a trade paper to the bouse manager and the necessity of loyalty to organization.

Lewis stressed above all other things, the great importance of managers working for chains, to get behind the men above them and fight to put their group at the top of the list, to make "theirs" the outstanding unit of a national chain, and to show loyalty to their organization and their "chiefs." At the open forum which followed his address, many topics of management were brought out, keeping the spirit of the meeting up to the fast tempo with which it started.

Pleasure In, Business Out

The "get-together" was resumed at 6.30 P.M. in the Crystal Room of the William Penn Hotel, where Berry combined "Chick's" visit with a "pep" dinner for the entire group.

It was definitely ruled that husiness was tahoo at the dinner. This angle was adhered to until Larry Jacobs introduced a smalltown exhibitor who 'happened' into town and wanted some advice about the installation of sound equipment. The remarks of this man soon had the meeting in an uproar until Jacobs introduced the "small town" exhibitor as none other than Luke Barnett, one of the cleverest impersonators in the country.

Many Showmen Present

Among the theatre executives and managers present at the afternoon meeting and again at the dinner in the William Penn

Hotel:

Bow And Vallee Failed To Break Paramount Record

The combination of Clara Bow in "The Saturday Night Kid" and Rudy Vallee in person failed in the try for a new record at the Paramount, New York, this week. In advance the combination was looked upon as certain of creating a new record figure for the house.

On Friday a hurried check on the week showed that the theatre had fallen short by about $3,000 of the figure reached on the occasion of Vallee's first appearance at the house in conjunction with "The Letter." The figures for that week were in the neighborhood of $86,000.

Highlights Of The Pittsburgh Party

By "Chick"

A CE" BERRY'S ability to make a bow-?

S OL HANKIN'S remarkable pronunciation and good nature. Who can tell—? Don't worry Sol, I'll not say a word about the good time you had that night!

C HARLIE HAGUE'S insistence that he would turn out a darned good day's work in spite of all prevailing indications.

T OM FORDHAM'S appointment as supervisor of the houses in Northwest Penn.—and who will doubt his ability to make 'em sit up and take notice?

R ALPH WALSH, who supervises the Ohio houses, may be short on hair but doggone his hide, he's long on showmanship and pep. And that's what counts.

DICK POWELL as master of ceremonies at the big Stanley Theatre was one of our most enjoyable recolections. Here is a boy that has looks, a singing voice that will make "Rudy" take a back seat, and what personality! Wow—he certainly has the female population of Pittsburgh at his beck and call and they just hang on his every word. If this M. C. don't land on Broadway when Warners open their new house, take it from me, it's their loss even more than Powell's. He'll click on Broadway like nobody's business and gain a national rep. for himself and the house he is in. I'll eat my words if I'm wrong on this one. He certainly has "IT."

A. KAY, production man for the big houses in Pittsburgh, has more than come up to expectations. He is putting on some mighty fine shows at the Stanley and Enright Theatres and the customers are falling for it, too. A fine, likeable chap and he'll be heard of some more before long. You'll see.

Vallee Premiere Advanced

The opening date of Rudy Vallee's "Vagabond Lover" has been advanced one day to Tuesday evening, Nov. 26, RKO announces.

An Appreciation

Fifty exhibitors—actual, genuine theatre men—at an exhibitor convention has many times been called "a large and representative gathering." For that number, and more, of theatre executives and managers to honor an individual not only is unusual, but is an equally "large and representative gathering" in a highly complimentary way.

Motion Picture News wishes to convey to "Ace" Berry, Larry Jacobs and all the managers of their division of Warner's Theatres, its appreciation for the remarkable reception they gave the exhibitor member of this staff, "Chick" Lewis.

It was a splendid and highly encouraging tribute to The Managers' Round Table Club of Motion Picture News, and to Mr. Lewis for his work in conducting it.

Sunday Victory In Mo. May Set A Precedent

Kansas City.—After working three years on the problem, Jack Moore, manager of the Princess and Kennedy Theatres in Kirksville, Mo., finally has succeeded in operating Sundays without interference from state or county authorities. His accomplishment may set a precedent for other theatre owners in the state, as Missouri exhibitors have been watching the Kirksville situation with interest.

hibitors have been watching the Kirksville situation with interest.

In a letter to E. C. Rhoden, division manager for Fox Rocky Mountain Theatres, of which the Kirksville houses are a unit, Moore explains the plan of action under which he has succeeded in keeping open Sundays despite opposition from local churches.

The theatre was opened August 11, Moore explains, under agreement with the county prosecuting attorney to close should serious opposition develop. A petition from religious bodies was presented on August 16, and thereafter Moore closed pending investigation of the law. This led to the discovery that the law was not a religious statute, and Moore convinced state officials that it should not be enforced against the picture show.

"In order to do this," he continues, "it was necessary to go to the attorney general's office and get the opinion from there and from judges of the supreme court. This I did, first going there with an attorney and getting it all set, then by taking the county prosecuting attorney to Jefferson City and having him interview them. Then we returned and told local preachers that we were going to open again and if they would not take any action we would not operate between 6 and 9 P. M., but if any action was taken we would operate continuously, which we did after the churches presented a petition against the Sunday shows. We have been running continuous Sunday shows since Oct. 27 and have heard nothing more from these petitions, and believe we will not as they have been informed that there can be nothing done about it."

Fox, Atlanta To Open Xmas; Will Be Largest In South

Harold B. Franklin, head of the Fox West Coast Theatres will come east to attend the opening here as will a number of executives from the Fox organization in New York.

The house will have a capacity of 4,500 which will make it one of the largest theatres in the south devoted to motion pictures. There will be Western Electric equipment throughout for sound pictures and the stage presentations will be furnished by Fanchon and Marco who will route their coast productions through Atlanta on the way east.

Claim Texas Exhibitors Seek Arbitration Despite Ruling

Dallas—More than 50 per cent of the independently-owned theatres in Texas are in favor of the principle of arbitration, and desire to see the system maintained, a survey made by the Film Board of Trade shows, according to Don. C. Douglas, secretary. $5,000,000 Combine Of Sound Companies

A $5,000,000 combine of American and foreign sound interests headed by the General Talking Pietures Corp. is being brought about by the Schlessinger brothers. Max Schlessinger, who will return from Europe next week, has sueceeded in forming an alliance while abroad with Klangfilm, British Talking Pietures, Tobis and Juchenneister Internationale, and with them has formed a corporation of international scope.

Several of the smaller American sound organizations are reported included in the plan, which is to make available to the various foreign organizations the DeForest patents for sound-on-film which the General Talking Pictures Corp. control.

The formation of this corporation will mean a combination of sound interests both here and abroad that are generally reported opposed to Western Electric and which may bring about a continuance of the litigation now being waged between the opposing forces on both sides of the Atlantic.

"Remote Control" for M-G-M

Talking pictures rights to the mystery melodrama "Remote Control" have been acquired by M-G-M.

Judge Thacher's decision, Douglas says, has not resulted in any disregard for nor breach of contracts in the territory. If the matter is not agitated, the situation will be worked out satisfactorily, Douglas believes

"By this I mean," he says, "that arbitration will be maintained, perhaps with some alterations, and distributors and exhibitors will earry out their contracts, as a matter of contractual and moral obligation.

"More and more exhibitors are beginning to realize that we cannot dispense with arbitration in the industry," Douglas continues. "That class of exhibitors, and they are a decided minority, who labor under the happy idea that arbitration will be abandoned, that contracts cannot be enforced and that distributors will be helpless both to enforce existing contracts or to secure new contracts are, of course, picturing a condition which will never exist in this trade any more than it does in any other industry.

"Arbitration has afforded a satisfactory security to distributors and to the fair, honest and intelligent exhibitor it has afforded double security."

The Texas unit was the first to withdraw from arbitration. After that, says Douglas, distributors ascertained that all local independent exhibitors except two were in favor of arbitration. At Fort Worth, he declares, all independents favored arbitration.

Following this, six independent exhibitors were named by the mayor to serve as arbitrators. After several meetings of this board, a temporary injunction restraining enforcement of awards against members, was secured by the Texas unit. This injunction was dissolved, so that arbitration in Texas has been suspended only for two weeks since the difficulty began, he says.

Merger Control Sought In Bill To License Interstate Trade

Washington, D. C.—Legislation placing in the Federal Trade Commission full control of mergers in industry as well as the regulation of interstate trade is urged by Representative George Holden Tinkham of Massachusetts.

Tinkham proposes that any person, firm or corporation intending to engage in interstate commerce shall first secure a license to do so from the commission, which terstate connerce shall first secture a he shall issue such license only after "diligent inquiry" shows that "such interstate commerce does not constitute an unlawful monopoly, or an unreasonable restraint of trade or commerce, or unfair competition; or a detriment to the public." A license issued by the commission shall thereafter constitute a complete defense to any prosecution or proceeding under the anti-trust laws, unless revoked, after a hearing, on charges that the licensee is conducting business as an unlawful monopoly.

It is provided that nothing in the antitrust statutes shall be construed to forbid the acquisition or ownership by any corporation of the whole or part of the stock or other capital of another corporation "if the commission is satisfied that such acquisition will not constitute an unlawful monopoly, an unreasonable restraint of trade or commerce, unfair competition, or a detriment to the public."

Tinkham's legislation is proposed as a restraint upon merger activities, since every amalgamation would thus be brought under the scrutiny of the commission. It also is pointed out that it would greatly simplify the merger problem, now very unsettled by reason of the Department of Justice attitude.

Producers Hit By Color Craze

The entire production field seems to be on the hunt for one color process or another. Reports from two of the larger organizations are to the effect that the color experimental work they have been carrying on has come to naught. Another organization has offered $1,000,000 to secure the American and Canadian rights to a color process recently been imported from England, but has been unable to close with the importer who holds the rights.

In the meantime the Warners are producing via Technicolor, their latest being the "Show of Shows' which came into New York this week. In that production, however, there seems to be lacking sharpness when it comes to the long shots, or even medium long shots.

Fox is reported to have been thoroughly dissatisfied with the color process used in "Sunny Side Up" and is casting about for another. Pathe, although it has its own, is said to have made a deal with Photocolor which recently turned out a couple of short productions for Columbia, using the RCA sound studios and their system of sound recording in the making of the picture. The results were stated to have been quite satisfactory.

Technicolor, through its contract with the Warners, is virtually sewed up with that company as far as its present equipment is concerned.

More Color Films Planned By Warners

Warners are planning a substantial increase in the production of all-color films on the 1930-31 program. While the exact number has not definitely been decided, indications are that there will be at least ten to fifteen on the new schedule. Public interest in current color pictures released by Warners is named as the reason for the move.

All-Color Soon, Lasky Says

Jesse L. Lasky, vice president of Paramount, declared that in a short time all the company's productions will be produced in full color, and predicted that wide film will bring color realities that are "beyond the imagination of anyone who has not seen the results of experiments along this line," in an interview from the Los Angeles Burcau of The Wall Street Journal, and printed in that publication last week. "Once the andience has become used to color it will object to a return of black and white," the Paramount production chief said.

Wesco Preparing For Early Use Of Wide Film By Circuit

Los Angeles—Wide film as a great competitive force, adoption of which is imminent, is seen by Fox West Coast Theatres, it is emphasized by an article on Fox Grandeur pictures in current issue of "Now," house organ of the circuit. The first tests of the Spoor-Bergren widefilm process with sound was made in the studios of the RCA Photophone in New York several months ago with the filming there of one act of a musical comedy.

Wide Film For RKO Feature

Hollywood—Wide film will be used for the first time by RKO for Bebe Daniels next starring production, "Dixiana," according to reliable information. If the picture should shape up according to advance expectations, it is understood that RKO will present the wide film as a long run attraction on Broadway in a specially-equipped house.

"Dixiana" will be directed by Luther

"Reed, ace RKO director who made both "Rio Rita" and "Hit The Deck."

St. Louis Musicians Vote No On Compromise Submitted

St. Louis.—The local union of the American Federation of Musicians has rejected terms presented by the theatre managers in an effort to settle the strike now in progress. They may now ask the assistance of projectionists and stage hands. Under the mutual protection agreement, the musicians can ask the affiliated unions to walk out in sympathy with their cause.

A move of this nature on the part of the musicians' local was threatened several weeks ago, but was delayed pending efforts of National officers to bring about a settlement.

It has been stated here that William P. Canavan, president of the I. A. T. S. E. in New York had the matter almost straightened out on several oceasions during the last ten days but that Spyros Skouras was responsible for the dumping of the apple cart at the last minute.

Delmar In Production

Harry Delmar is producing another tworeel talker for Pathe based on Margaret Echard's and Al Bridges' farce, "Her Hired Husband," with the following in principal roles: Noel Francis, Ethel Norris, Jarry Norris, Austin Farnam, James Coughlin, and Harry McNaughton,

The camera used in the process is equipped with a new type lens, which records a large scope image, using 70 mm. film, twice the size of the present standard film. Paramount's Magnascope film is 56 mm. wide and the Berrgren wide film 62 min. wide. While a standard-size aperture has not been agreed upon among producers of wide film, it is possible, states the article, that the Fox Grandeur projector mechanism will fit the present projector base. The present wide film mechanism is provided with a special-designed film gate which curves toward the lens. This curve, it is claimed, maintains the film in a flat plane as it passes the light, thus eliminating buckling.

Fox Grandeur film will give a picture 50 feet by 32 feet and smaller, according to the theatre requirements. The pictures are taken at the rate of 90 feet per minute and projected at 78 feet per minute. The sound sprocket is regulated to run at 360 r.p.m. and a special 12-volt exciter lamp with a wider filament is used. The slit is twice the ordinary size. Horns are placed at either end of the picture, instead of the center as enstomary. Projector changes call for enlargement of all working parts.

Increased pieture size calls for increased illumination so that from 150 to 200 amperes will be required. Cooling devices have been developed to reduce heat at the aperture, caused by use of the high amperage. A special high intensity lamp has been designed to accommodate the increase in illumination.

"Trespasser" Big L. A. Second Week

Los Angeles.—With a gross of $26,200, making a rating of 194 per cent for the house, "The Trespasser" playing its second week at the United Artists, was the leading box-office performer here last week. "Disraeli," second week at Warner's Hollywood, took $22,500, representing 161 per cent husiness.

Other grosses for the week were: "Sunnyside Up," Grauman's Chinese, $16,197, 101 per cent, second week; "They Had to See Paris," Fox Carthay Circle, $13,600, 109 per cent, ninth week; "Dynamite," Fox Criterion, $11,800, 118 per cent, second week; "The Virginian," Paramount, $24,350, 97 per cent, third week; "Marianne," Loew's State, $28,900, 107 per cent; "Sophomore," R-K-O, $19,760, 124 per cent; "Is Everybody Happy," Warner's Downtown, $17,050, 114 per cent, second week; "Flight," Fox Palace, $11,080, 123 per cent, first week.

Need Cooperation, Kent Maintains

must build a theatre entirely out of proportion to the possibilities of his town, but it does mean that no matter how small his theatre may be, he must operate it in such a manner and so conduct it that it pleases as many of the senses of enjoyment of bis public as

as many of the senses of enjoyment of Dis public as they demand.
"With good roads and the automobile, with a natural tendency away from the small town to the big centers of population, it becomes all the more vital and necessary that the small town exhibitor he alert and be a modern merchandiser in every sense of the word in an ultimately operated theatre, in order to offset the natural disadvantages inherent in small town operation today

"These are not impossible situations to meet, as attested to by the fact that many independent exhibitors are doing better today than ever before, especially where sound has been installed.

"If the large operators, who today control hig circuits, did not build them, someone else would have built them. The general tendency in business has been in this direction since the war and no matter what the ambition of anyone in the industry might have been, this husiness could not have remained in the status that it is considered almost old-fashioned today in operating a nationwide industry.

"These are conditions that you may not like; but that neither you nor I can stop. How far they will go depends upon the brains and wisdom with which they are handled. If the chain operation of small theatres is not conducted on a very careful and wise hasis, these theatres will pass back into the bands of independents without any question of doubt.

Misunderstanding Over Sound

"There has been a great misunderstanding among all of us with regard to sound. What the industry went through in all its branches needs some analysis. First, a change was necessary and the old silent him was dying and no one now can refuse to admit this fact, so that it was vital to the producer and the exhibitor as well that this new form of entertainment be generally admitted. Exhibitors rusbed in in the beginning and signed contracts way beyond their ability to pay. These were not contracts fraudulently forced on the exhibitor by the distributor. Many of the impossible prices that were taken came out of this new situation through the inexperience of both sides not knowing what its real possibilities were These are becoming more and more adjusted down to a common sense level.

this new situation through the inexperience of both sides not knowing what its real possibilities were These are becoming more and more adjusted down to a common sense level.

"While the exhibitor has committed himself to a lock or year's supply of pictures, in many cases at impossible prices, the producers in this industry jointly made an investment running into $500,000,000. They have commitments that run for fifteen years, not just for one year, and the producers must pay for at least five years of that term whether profitable or not. You must realize the gamble was not taken by just one side. It has been a gamble, and a big investment spread over all branches of the industry.

"There is no use to deny the fact that the larger towns and the larger theatres are, to some extent sucking the business away from the smaller towns and the smaller theatres. It is my opinion that this will continue in spite of all that can be done.

"However, there is a definite obligation that this must be the small independent exhibitor. We may not, beyond a point, be able to help the plight of those who find themselves in difficulties after having done everything within their power—and if a percentage of these small operators are to go out of the business, I say that they should go out under the most humane condition possible. As I said before, there are many who, in my opinion, cannot succeed if they get product for nothing, but on the other hand, you and I have seen many on both sides of the industry sit back in their seats and collect easy and fat profits. Those days are gone forever.

"The obligation this industry owes you is to get film rental on the hasis of a fair proportion of what you take in at your box-office; and this type of consideration which is owing to the small, independent exhibitor, can best he secured, in my opinion, by a franch and open discussion of the problems in all of its phases and by common sense cooperation. It will never be brought about spitting in other fellow's eyes.

Obligation To Theatre Man

"I believe that the test of the good faith of the entire industry will be its treatment of the small-town ex-hibitor in the years to come; and I believe that the treatment accorded this type of exhibitor will be the m asure of greatness and wisdom accorded the leaders of the big companies of our industry in the future.

of the big companies of our industry in the future.

"I have heard it said that there are certain greedy and grasping individuals on our side of the picture. Our recent meetings in New York showed a very fair disposition to recognize the problems of the small man; but if in your mind there is any doubt as to the attitude of any one among the producers and distributors, certainly the quickest way to find that out is in the round-table discussion where the facts are laid before everyone.

"A man may sit in his office and plan most anything he likes; but get him in the open, in the presence of several fair-minded men, and it is pretty hard for him to take an unfair position, and if anyone does, at least you will know who he is.

"I hope the work of co-operation that has been started will carry on. I still hope to see some agency

Newsreel Theatre Adds 500 To Mail List Daily

The Newsreel Theatre in New York has started to gather a mailing list from its patrons. A simple desk with pads and pencils in the lobby is doing the trick. There is a small sign asking those who are interested in being advised when new subjects are shown to leave their names. The result was that on the first day Bill Rudolph the house manager, added 500 names to his list.

Finishing out the third week of its policy the house looked to better the business done on the second week, doing just over $10,000. The first week was in the neighborhood of $10.250, the second $9,677. The third week's show ran forty-eight minutes.

Stage Presentations Are Returning To Kansas City

Kansas City.-Stage presentations have been resumed in Kansas City at Loew's Midland after more than a year's policy of straight pietures. According to the announcement there will be five acts of vaudeville under the new plan.

Other changes in this city include the opening of the Empress with pictures and burlesque, and the inauguration of a pieture and stage show policy at the Liberty, both downtown houses.

New Officers Installed By Empire State Operators

The Empire State Motion Pieture Operators' Union, Inc., have installed the following officers: Arthur Farkash, president: James Addesso, vice-president; William Santarsiero, recording secretary; Wallace Topping, field secretary: Joseph Blatt, husiness agent; William Sierveld, sergeant-atarms; Ernest Maure, treasurer. get up where the small-town man can come with any type of complaint that imposes an unfair burden upon his business, for a hearing where justice will be ren-dered him.

"There has been too much inclination, however, to lay the ills of the exhibiting end of the industry on the chain operation methods, Film Boards of Trade and Arbitration, without analyzing the economic factors in this industry that affect all types of operation today, and which are not conditions imposed by one side upon the other. the other.

Every man in this industry started at least with an equal opportunity. Every man or corporation that ever owned a chain of theatres started with the first one. Many men, by choice, have not expanded, and in not expanding have lost their opportunity. Marcus Loew started as humbly as anybody in this business. All have had the opportunity of adding to their holdings in years gone by, who worked towards that end and were deserving of it.

"There is no must the deserving of it.

"There is no way today in any business that I know of to bring the advantages of the big operator down to the basis of the small operators. The difference in huying power existing today between the small theatre owner and the chain operator presents the same disadvantage that the retail grocer faces when he buys against the chain grocer; but I repeat, the industry does owe this type of operator the most humane and just consideration that can be given him.

"Our business can be played two ways. One is by just consideration that can be given him.

"Our business can be played two ways. One is by getting the best out of the industry—by working out, in a friendly manner, the problems that are constantly concerning us, and the other way is to make it a political game. One is sure to have some benefits to both sides as nearly as anything can be sure, and the other has proven, by happenings in the past, to be without constructive possibilities and greater trouble for all."

Ex-Stanley Heads Back In The Field

Philadelphia—Bringing back into the local field as partners a number of former leaders of the Stanley chain, the Arcadia Amusement Co., on Thanksgiving Day will reopen the Areadia, downtown house, under a first and second run policy, as the first of a chain said to be planned in Philadelphia and vieinity. The house, formerly operated by Stanley, has been completely redecorated and refurnished.

Included in the group associated in the Areadia firm are: Abe and Lou Sablosky, John J. McGuirk, former Stanley president; Harry Schwalbe, Charles Segal and Sam Shapiro. Schwalbe now has several houses in this territory. Long aequaintance with and experience in the Philadelphia situation are expected to make the new group a formidable factor here if seheduled development of the chain materializes.

Albany Mayor Intends To Enforce "Blue" Law

Albany.-"'Blue" Sunday ordinance here is to be enforced, despite action of the mayor's secretary in issuing permits for henefit Sunday shows, which have been cancelled by the mayor as the result of protests from ministers. At one church, the congregation rose in a hody to commend the mayor's action. Theatres previously had advertised the scheduled Sunday shows.

Ohio Holds a Convention

Columbus.—Plenty of celebrities adorned the dais at the dinner Tuesday night. Bill James and Pete Wood did a good job, and here are the names that prove it: Governor Myers Y. Cooper of Ohio; Sidoey R. Kent, general manager of Paramount; Abram F. Myers, president of Alhed States Association; Dr. J. L. Clifton, Director of Education of Ohio; Harry L. Reichenbach; Charles C. Pettijohn, general counsel of the M. P. Producers and Distributors of America; Henderson M. Richey, business manager, M. P. T. O. of Michigan; Al Steffes, president, Northwest Exhibitors Association; Dr. Lee De Forrest, General Talking Pictures Corp.; M. Van Praag, general sales manager, Universal; Oscar Hanson, general sales manager, Tiffany.

The Four Horesmen of Allied were reduced to three for the Ohio convention. Myers, Richey and Steffes were present, but II. A. Cole remained on the home ground running the annual convention of the M. P. T. O. of Texas.

Harry Reichenbach was in fine fettle. His stories rocked the diners into gales of laughter. There were several occasions where Harry had to think fast to match the remarks of previous speakers, but "The Roastmaster of the Industry" came through as usual.

Andy Hettesheimer, of Cincinnati, was twice as busy as usual doubling for A. J. Ackerman, president of Cincinnati Exhibitors' Association, who couldn't be present.

Bill James' geniality put everybody at ease right from the beginning of things. Together with Fete Wood, James kept the meetings moving along on schedule.

Ed ("Red") Mott, of Wooster, had a good time. It would have been better if it weren't for the fact that the convention started on the opening day of the pheasant season.

George Palda, of Cleveland, admitted that this was his first convention. George brought along with him the dignity which everyone attaches to him.

Honors for the shortest speech on record went to George W. Erdmann, secretary of the Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors' Association, who rose to his feet and said, Welcome.

Sam Lind, of Zanesville, has retired from exhibition, but that didn't prevent him from attending. Sam goes to all of 'em in Ohio.

Harry Bieberson, of Delaware, maintained an air of solemnity during the meetings, which those who knew failed to get. It developed, however, that he had reserved his comedy for the board of trustees' meeting, held Monday night prior to the sounding of the gavel.

Harry Dodge, now with Electrical Research Products and a former exchange manager in Cleveland, did plenty of circulating among old friends.

Paul Gusdanovic, Cleveland showman, came to Columbus to work. His rallying cry was, "When do the meetings get under way?"

There was a good deal of choral work done in Charley Pettijohn's room in the early hours of Wednesday. The warblers included Pete Wood, H. M. Richey-Richey of Michigan, and in the room of the Hays representative, mind you—M. A. Lightman and Dave Palfreyman. Wood, it developed, has a passion for China blue pajamas.

Sid Kent was the last to talk on a long program. The hour was late, and the guests a bit restive. But Kent's address was so loaded down with logic and fact that the interest not only did not lag but was actually revived. After the dinner, the rush to congratulate Paramount's general manager started simultaneously from all corners of the baltroom. The gate was a knockout and a pacemaker for the get-together spirit that pervaded the meeting on Wednesday.

Charley Pettijohn surrounded himself with a batch of feficient Film Board secretaries. Alma Walton was there from Memphis; Georgia Moffett and Nativa (note—this is correct); Suckow from Cleveland; Edna Pfister from Chicago, and Evelyn McNamee from Cincinnati. Part of a finely operated organization and all splendid types of women. Charley is proud of his gang. He should he.

One of the mast frequented equipment displays at the convention was Perfectone's. P. J. Stern, sales manager of the Kautz Manufacturing Co., of Cincimati, and A. E. Klein, Northern Ohio sales manager, had a crowd around their booth all through the sessions. Perfectone is a made-in-Ohio product.

Ruhe Traube, who draped the convention hall with Tone-O-Graph banners, carried a half dozen signed contracts away with him.

Fred Johnson, well known in Ohia theatre circles, and who recently traded Marietta for Oil City, Pa., wired regrets at his inability to attend.

M. Van Praag, "U's" general sales manager, who has been touring the Middle West, made Columbus for the meeting. He spoke at the dinner. Other Universalites present included Leo Devaney, Middle Western division manager; Jack Osserman, Cleveland manager; Mannie Gottlieb, Cincinnati manager.

Andy Sharick, Universal exploiteer in Ohio, beat his competitors by usurping choice display space in the Deshler lobby for Universal placards.

Caldwell Brown, of Zanesville, maintained a complete silence this year. At the 1928 session he delivered a fine talk on sound and how to build it into the program.

Walter Brandt, First National's Cleveland manager, planned to attend, but a regional conference called him to Chicago. The Notre Dame-Southern California football game might have had something to do with it.

Harry R. Skirholl, of Educational, earned the reputation of being the world's quick-change artist. The banquet was no sooner over than Harry changed from soup and fish to a very natty brown ensemble.

Where was Pete Woodhull while the banquet was under way! One of the convention mysteries.

The late Henry Lustig was honored at every session. Bowed heads in his memory opened the meetings, and a resolution of regret at his passing read at the final business parley.

Ed Hiehle, of Newark—Ohio, not New Jersey—Jim Platt and Harry Smaot, of Mt. Vernon, had themselves photographed in front of the hotel. The reason why failed to come to light.

Mark Goldman, of Tiffany; Leo Devaney, of Universal; C. J. Loewe, of Independent Pictures; Jack Osserman, of the Laemmle forces; Eddie Fontaine, of Paramount; George Jeffreys and Herbert Kaufman, of Columbia, were included in the exchangements contingent. Cincinnati was represented by Eddie Booth of M-G-M; R. Silverberg, of Tiffany; Ray Cloud, of Warners; W. C. Bachmeyer, of Fox: Andy Smith, of Paramount; Bob Buros, of Standard Flim; J. M. Johnson, of Fischer Film; Mannie Gottlieb, of Universal; J. Kear, of Educational, and Jim Harris, of Pathe.

Mrs. J. J. Harwood, Mrs. Ernest Schwarts, Mrs. H. E. Horwitz and Mrs. B. Z. Levi, chaperoned their husbands at the convention.

Dr. George Kohe helieves in silent pictures and is backing that belief by playing them in all of his four Cincinnati houses.

Jack O'Connell, of the Vita-Temple, Toledo, sat in on all the mectings, but restrained himself from putting over any exploitation campaigns. The Vita-Temple has been running sound pictures since 1926, and was probably the second theatre in the United States to go talking.

Al Mertz of RKO came to Columbus on Monday in order to be on time for the convention debut on Tuesday.

A. C. Himmelein was the Sphinx of the convention. The Sandusky exhibitor wasn't heard to express an opinion on any subject.

Mark Goldman of Tiffany asked and secured a chart of the ballroom so that he could find his way out of the banquet hall. Reason unknown.

Denny Harris of Pittsburgh and Ike Libson of Cincinnati had their heads together often. Many wondered why.

Senator Joseph N. Ackerman of Cleveland, strong friend of the Ohio M.P.T.O., in a speech advocated the showing of pictures as a means of demonstrating to the public how its money is spent on public works.

Mrs. Georgia Moffett, secretary of the Cleveland Film Board, for once was not introduced as a memmer of "Pettijohn's Follies."

Incidentally, easily one of the highlights of the dance that followed the banquet was the winning of Pettijohn a disciple of Terpsichore, Charley danced with all of his Film Board secretaries and displayed some steps that nobody at the Hays office could have imagined he knew.

Bob Cotton, well known in Cleveland circles, staged a come-back and attended the convention. He has been out of the business for the past two years.

relations between exhibitors and distributors.

The national committee thus proposed would confer with producers and distributors on a common meeting ground. No strings appear to be attached to the suggestion and, so far as Ohio is concerned, it is apparently unimportant what the exact make-up of this committee is to be so long as the intent at constructive service is clearly defined.

The state unit contends that many changes have asserted themselves in the operating machinery of the industry since the standard exhibition contract was drawn up two years ago, all of them to the detriment of the independent exhibitor. It was pointed out that the independents have suffered in numbers and financially and the claims advanced that they will continue to do so as chains grow stronger. It was, therefore, suggested that if the plan is adopted the interests of the unaffiliated exhibitors be borne in mind first.

Wood expressed the belief that it was not in the minds of producers-distributors to force an unfair or confiscatory contract down the throats of the independent theatremen and that, therefore, producers-distributors should evidence their fairness by agreeing to a contract which, while protecting their own interests, would treat fairly the interests of the independents.

Shuberts Pass Dividend Due To Reduced Earnings

Shubert Theatres Corp. has passed the quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on its common stock. The reason given is that earnings have been reduced because of general conditions. After the meeting of the board of directors of the corporation the following statement was issued:

the following statement was issued:
"At the meeting of the directors, the quarterly dividend on the common stock was not declared. Although the company has available earned surplus in the neighborhood of $2,000,000 and cash in the neighborhood of $1,000,000, the director considered it advisable to conserve working capital and to omit a divideod that was not being currently earned. Early in the season labor difficulties with musicians and stage hands kept our theatres closed in several hig cities. This and general conditions have affected earnings."

Roxy Theater Earnings Declared Up This Year

Considerable increase in earnings of Roxy Theatre Corp., for the year ended Oct. 31, is being predicted. Last year, the company earned $607,676, equal to $4.86 a share on the 125,000 shares of Class "A" outstanding.

Earns $2.08 A Share

The reported earnings for Columbia for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1929, are $227,048 net after charges and reserves for Federal taxes, which is equivalent to $2.08 a share on the 100,000 shares of common outstanding.

This compares with a loss of $22,441 for the corresponding quarter of 1928.

All Quiet On The B'way Front With "Love Doctor" At $80,500

Capitol failed to stir up excitement. Extended run business went along as usual.

Top money on the street went to "The Romance of the Rio Grande," with $103,-782, which wasn't any too hot at the Roxy considering what the house can do. "The Love Doctor" at the Paramount really got the best return on the avenue, $80,500, but an anniversary show plugged it. The Capitol, also anniversary celebrating, had "So This Is College" which came through with $71,395. A surprise was the rather seanty $27,500 which fell to the lot of Colleen Moore in 'Footlights And Fools,' at the Strand. Another was the real box-office drag developed by 'Shanghai Lady'' at the Colony where $16,489 was taken and the picture held over. The second week of the "Graf Zeppelin World Flight" at the Cameo showed up nicely with $6,428 in the till.

Two Run Films Drop Off

The two extended run grinds, "The Trespasser" and "Welcome Danger," both showed a drop. The former at the Rialto did $48,700 as against $67.800, the first week, totalling $116,500 on two weeks; the latter dropped to $29,500 in its fourth week at the Rivoli, the week previous having been $40,400.

In the extended runs at $2 top the only picture that seemed to hold its pace was 'Disraeli," which appears to be attracting a patronage other than the regular run of pieture fans. The dough there for the week was $23,446.25 and it's the seventh week for the picture. "Gold Diggers of Broadway'' finished an eleven week run at the Winter Garden with $19,612, the "Show of Shows" coming in Weduesday

"Paris" Draws Heavily

The new Irene Bordoni production, "Paris," which came into the Central, pulled a corking business of $15,016.25 for the week there. "Rio Rita" at the Carroll got $14,987, while "The Hollywood Revne" went off to $14,619. "Applause" moved out of the Criterion with $7,900 on its final week, while the "Song of Love" with Belle Baker got $5,712 in four days at the Cohan, a good showing considering every "Woman To Woman" was put into the Globe for two weeks. It failed to show any strength there the opening week, getting $7,611, while "Sunny Side Up" at the Gaiety dropped to $10,542. "Condemned" at the Selwyn is pulling strongly with $17,-976 last week.

Cartoons Held For Long Runs

Hollywood.-Disney Cartoons are on the programs of four Fox West Coast Theatre extended runs locally at the present time. "Mickey's Follies" has been at the Carthay Circle for nine weeks with "They Had To See Paris": "Springtime," a Silly Symphony cartoon, is at Grauman's Chinese with "Sunnyside Up"; "Jungle Rythm" is on the supporting bill with "Flight," at the Fox Palace; and "Jazz Fool" is current at the Criterion with "Dynamite."

It was a quiet week on Broadway. Even anniversary bills at the Paramount and

Publix Units Out Of Loew O. Houses

Publix stage shows are to be replaced by Loew stage units in Loew houses of Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Columbus and Cleveland, under expansion plans mapped for the Loew presentation circuit, heretofore confined to Greater New York.

Starting Dec. 14, Loew units will go to Baltimore and Pittsburgh, with Cleveland and Columbus to be added to the route later. At present the Loew units are routed to the following five Greater New York houses: Capitol. Paradise, the Bronx; King's and Pitkin, Brooklyn; Valencia, Jamaica, and Jersey City, Jersey City. The route scheduled will give Loew units eleven weeks, with the time to be increased to twenty weeks at an early date. Under the plan, masters of ceremonies, organists and symphony leaders, the trio traveling with the unit show, will be circuited. This innovation will be lannehed Nov. 30 at the Bronx Paradise.

Meanwhile, Loew's has been adding to its vaudeville holdings, changing all-picture to combination policies at Rochester, Richmond and Kansas City. By means of the arrangement, a performer may play the roadshow circuit, then play an additional 25 to 30 weeks over the vandeville eircuit, making a total booking possibly of from 40 to 50 weeks.

Syraeuse, N. Y .-- Addition of vandeville to programs of Loew's Rochester, starting Saturday, is expected to greatly aid Loew's State here, relieving the booking isolation of the latter.

Equity Votes No On Sunday Performances

Proposed Sunday opposition to motion picture theatres in New York by legitimate show performances went down to defeat by a 3 to 1 vote at the hands of 1,500 members of Equity at a meeting held Monday at the Astor.

In refusing the plea for a seven day week as an "economic necessity." the actors' organization adopted a resolution blaming the economic condition of the legitimate theatre on the theatre officials themselves and held the motion pieture theatre up as a model of courtesy. The resolution declared that managements must deal more fairly with the public, by selling a good proportion of the best seats at box office prices; inaugurate a system that will establish a fixed premium on tickets bought through agencies, and stop discourtesy by box office attendants.

"In" Is Out InIndependent Savs George W. Weeks

THE "in" is out in independent. There is no longer on independent exhibitor. an independent producer or independent distributor.

Nor has there ever actually been an individual or organization really independent. The term is out-of-date, So states George W. Weeks, executive vicepresident of Sono Art-World Wide Pictures, who hits the term several body blows in a letter to his soles staff. It

THE first admittedly dependent company in the business—that is the way I think of our outfit.

As soon as we'd hung out our shingle, and told the world that we were going to make and sell pictures with the hopeful object of getting a living out of it, our thoughtless friends immediately tagged us as "another independent." We appreciate the compliment, but regret that it is undeserved.

THE American idea of independence has been described as the ability to look any man in the eye and tell him to go to h—l. This may be okeh as a political proposition, but it's N. G. in

WE hear that the "independent" pro-ducers, "independent" exhibitors "independent" exchanges are being crowded out. Maybe the reason is that they tell their customers to go to h—l too often. The customers simply won't go there—they just go to a competitor.

* * *

I NDEPENDENCE is the worst policy for any business. To have one's customers regard him as dependent is much more profitable. Customers love a con-cern they can depend upon. They respect the salesman's word when they can de-pend upon what he tells them. They believe and act upon dependable advertising in dependable publications.

SO I want you men in the field to broadcast the fact that Sono Art Pictures, Inc., is a dependent company, and proud of it.

THIS company's success and your personal advancement are dependent on the kind of product we make, and the dependability and kind of service we give our customers.

 $S^{\rm O}$ let us be different and dependent—and we'll make it pay.

Talk In Hollywood

By Walter R. Greene

 $M_{ m most}^{
m ARIE}$ DRESSLER is becoming the most consistent "honors stealer" in talking pietures. The famous stage comedienne finds the talkers right in her own backyard and seemingly repeats each outstanding performance in every production.

In Rudy Vallee's RKO picture, "Vagabond Lover," Miss Dressler "stole the picture." At a preview of M-G-M's 'Roadshow'' recently, she stopped the show cold on three different occasions. It is understood that the comedienne repeats by her performance in Clarence Brown's production of "Anna Christie" with Greta Garbo starred for M-G-M; and currently Lillian Gish has her for opposition in the cast of "The Swan" for United Artists.

OUISE FAZENDA, outstanding as a silent film comedienne, has appeared in a total of twenty talker productions since the advent of sound. It must be some kind of a record, at that.

ALAN CROSLAND will employ a total of 9,000 actors, a chorus of 1,500 voices, 100 dancers, and 100 Cossack horsemen; besides 100 exterior and 35 interior scenes for Warners' filmusical operetta, "The Song of the Flame." This comprises the largest total of people employed so far in a sound production spectacle, and equals the numbers used in individual silent productions previously.

HERE cames the $2.50 film production! M-G-M figures it has that kind of an attraction in "The Rogue's Song," a filmusical light opera starring Lawrence Tibbetts. After a sneak preview at San Bernardino, for a tryout, it is understood the audience reaction was so favorable that M-G-M executives figure it worth a $2.50 top in all the large cities.

In staging the preview, the picture went into the house cold, without any theatre advertising as is the general rule. Reaction from the audience for an operatic filmusical was most enthusiastic-and the audience was decidedly average, not at all highbrow. About a dozen studio executives made the trip via train to catch the reception at San Bernardino.

STUDIO employees, from executives down, are nearly as rabid football fans as the regular college students. One studio official refused permission for the erection of a radio loudspeaker on the lot so that employees could catch the radio broadcast of the Notre-Dame-U. S. C. game in Chicago. So one smart employee with a builtin radio in his car, drove the car up in front of the studio entrance and tuned in for the game. Among the crowd of nearly a hundred who listened in via the car radio, was the executive who refused to allow the loudspeaker on the lot.

Sharland Joins RKO

Reginald Sharland, English musical comedy star, has been signed by RKO and has been assigned the lead in "The Fire Walker'' opposite Sally O'Neil as his initial venture. Bert Glennon will direct.

Garbo In "Ex-Wife"

Nick Grinde and John Mechan will team in the direction of "Ex-Wife," which M-G-M is preparing for production. No east has been selected, although it is reported that Greta Garbo may be starred.

Laurel-Hardy Vaudevilling

Show Of Shows

(Warners-All Dialogue)

Biggest And Best Revue To Date

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

THE Warners brought their "Show of Shows" to the Winter Garden. If the old Winter Garden shows were worth $5 top, then this one is worth $50.

Our hats are off to Jack Warner for having come through with this revue. He has mauaged to outdo a combination of Ziegfeld-Earl Carroll-Jake Shubert and John Murray Anderson. More than that no one can do.

The screen has contributed 58 names and personalities to this tremendous entertainment, not counting Rin-Tin-Tin; the stage 16, and the prize-fight ring one.

One cannot list the names of those who appear. Suffice to say that everyone from John Barrymore down the line are on hand and either sing, dance, or recite. Sixteen dazzling full stage scenes follow one another, with bits in "one" in the most approved revue fashion, breaking up the hig scenes. There is a tree breaking up the hig scenes. There is a tre-mendous smash with Monte Blue at the head of the 192 girls in a cadet drill on a huge stairof the P/2 girls in a cadet drift on a high statr-case. Then a burlesque "Floradora" sextet with Alice Day, Lila Lee, Sally O'Neil, Patsy Ruth Miller, Myrna Loy, Marian Nixon, Ben Turpin, Heinie Conklin, Bert Roach, Lloyd Hamilton, Lupino Lane and Lee Moran. That will give you an idea of the scope of things.

There is only one thing to say about the "Show of Shows" and that is: Barnum was wrong. This is the greatest show on earth.

Entertaining Mixture

(Reviewed by E. G. Johnston)

TFFANY took no chances on this one. It's got everything that Hollywood has recently turned out in the way of recent successes -back stage, court room and circus-topped off with a splendid performance by Joe E. Brown.

Despite all the generously served side-dishes the picture is essentially all Brown's from the moment he unobtrusively slides into focus. But credit Al Rogell with neat direction. RCA Photophone with excellent recording, also Helen Foster, Barton Hephurn and Dorothy Gulliver for substantial efforts.

Nothing new about the theme. It's another Pagliacci yarn. But Brown's work and excellently provided atmosphere pulls the film out just another" class. Picture opens backvaudeville stage where between acts a man is shot to death. Circumstantial evidence plausibly pins guilt on a performer. Then the interior of the jury room. Brown acts the role of a "squarehead" clown, dumb but obstinate. Apparently nothing can move him from his "not guilty" opinion. At length the others consent to hear a story upon which will rest the verdict. A flash-back to a circus. (Excellent stuff here for the kiddies.)

Straight concedy and musical shorts suggested for accompanying bill.

Produced by Tiffany from an original story by Frances Hyland. Adapted by Frederic and Fanny Hatton, also dialogue. Film editor, Richard Cahoon. Directed by Al Rogell. Photographed by Benjamin Kline. Leugth, 6665 feet. Running time, 1 bour, 25 mins. Release date, Nov. 20, 1929.

Outstanding Attraction

(Reviewed by Don Ashbaugh)

PARAMOUNT has taken Sir James M.
Barrie's delightful play, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" and made a picture which easily rates outstanding classification.

There is not the faintest spark of romance in the film—but there is humor, pathos and a delicious human tale which holds an audience all the way and leaves them drippy-eyed at the finish.

Gary Cooper, with recent popular successes, naturally must be used as the BO "draw" but once the audience gets into the house it will talk plenty about the picture. Cooper is finely cast as the ne'er-do-well, hard-boiled, kilt wearing member of the Black Watch, and turns in a fine performance.

Beryl Mercer gives a perfect portrayal of e poor little spinster charwoman—childless and heart hungry to have some part in the war. Inimitable characterizations are contributed by Daisy Belmore and Nora Cecil as the proud charwomen with sons in the war, and by Tempe Pigott who also has that honor-and a taste

Song Of Love

(Columbia-All Dialogue)

Belle Baker A Female Al Jolson (Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

BELLE BAKER, long a vaudeville headliner, comes through in her first all talking fea-Josons through in her first all taking teature motion picture production as a female Al Jolson. Picture fans won't know her, but they will like her after they have seen her. Wise managers will go after the vaudeville fans for they know Belle Baker and will come to see her. The picture is real heart throb mother love story, only in this case it is a vaudeville mother, who goes out and wins the folly for both her hysband and her son fight for both her husband and her son.

Belle Baker is cast as a vaudeville headliner, who does an act with her husband at the piano and her little son singing from a box. The three are happy together until the mother comes to the realization that her boy must have his chance in life. That is schooling and an oppor-tunity to play like other normal boys. That leads to her retirement, while the husband continues with a new woman partner. That brings about a break in the family relationship, but in the end the trio are reunited and are happy. Miss Baker sings five or six songs in the production. One of them "Take Everything Away, But You," is heavily plugged.

There is singing and music enough in the feature so that surrounding shorts should be of a comedy nature.

The Kiss

(M-G-M-Silent) Garbo Triangling Again

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader) THERE is no doubt that this would have made a swell talking picture. It has everything that a talkie should have, especially the controom scene. But it isn't. It is Greta in a love triangle in silent form. They may come to see it because it's Greta, but the chances are that that would be the only reason. Anyone else other than this torch mommer wouldn't have a chance at the b. o. with it in silent form.

The story is laid in France. Miss Garbo is a party to a loveless marriage which she is willing to step out of providing she can convince her young admirer that he should take her to the city. But he is too noble-minded, so he goes away alone. In the meantime, her husne goes away alone. In the meantime, her hus-band suspects her of carrying on an affair with a young boy. When he finds the youngster trying to kiss her the row results in his death. Of course, it was all a mistake. But the widow is tried and acquitted, only to confess to later she really committed the murder. This lends suspense, and the audience is finally told how the hyperd died. the husband died.

Peppy musical sharts, one with a flash chorus if possible, and a good comedy will be needed to give the required sound touch.

Dance Hall

(RKO-All Dialogue)

Average Entertainment

(Reviewed by Walter R. Greene)

THE basic story of "Dance Hall" is quite ordinary, but the treatment, direction, and characterizations provide a freshness which makes the picture acceptable as program entertainment.

A nickle-a-dance palace is the setting for a puppy love romance wherein the boy falls hard for the girl, but with the latter transferring her affections to the trifling heavy. Everything smooths out at the finish when the girl realizes her love for the boy, and the heavy hooks up with a blonde.

Arthur Lake is typically himself as the lovesmitten youth, and turns in a most convincing performance. Olive Borden is satisfactory as the girl, but Joseph Cawthorne scores again with a German characterization that provides plenty of opportunity for comedy—and Cawthorn gets the laughs. Lee Moran is fine.

In the week run houses, "Dance Hall" will need support to help carry it through on account of lack of big names. As a regular program feature in the split weeks, the picture will stand up as satisfactory entertainment.

Musical shorts and cartoons are recommended for surrounding show.

Produced and released by RKO. From story by Vina Delmar. Scenario and dialogue by J. Walter Rueben and Jane Murfin. Directed by Melville Brown. Photographed by Jack Markensie. Length, about 5,700 ft. Running time, about 60 minutes. Release date not set. THE CAST

Half-Way To Heaven

(Paramount—All Dialogue) Not So Hot

(Reviewed by Al Meyers)

JUST another added to the stories of back stage life. Only this time it would be best to term it back-tent life. It is circus stuff. Unfortunately every circus picture cannot be another "Variety." Equally unfortunate is the fact that this is the slimmest kind of a yarn. It appears that it is built around a gag instead of a running idea-the result is average program-nothing more.

A trapeze troup, two men and a woman, jealousy—a seeming accident to one of the men-a new man to take the slain one's place. The stage is all set for another such "accident"— but the trick is sprung as a surprise.

If there be honors to strew on the performers they must go to Paul Lukas. He makes a sinister and convincing heavy. Buddy Rogers is acceptable as the boy, but no more. Jean Arthur as the girl is pleasing. Nestor Aher as Buddy's kid brother is excellent.

A strong laugh short should be used in the

A Fair Picture

(Reviewed by Freddie Schoder)

CLARA BOW will be the box-office magnet here. The story won't send them out rav-ing, although it will entertain. George Abbott and John V. A. Weaver are credited with hav-ing turned this out as an original. Maybe they did. But the story appeared in the Satevepost more than a year or so ago. Be that as it may, Eddie Sutherland, who directed it, managed to give the camera's eye a couple of flashes of the girls when they weren't wearing so much and that is what is expected of Bow. Jimmie Hall plays opposite the star with Jean Arthur lending satisfactory assistance.

The story deals with two sisters, both employed in a department store. Clara is in love with a boy, but the younger sister sets out to cop him, which she succeeds in doing. Clara has given up to the younger sister in all things; but this stealing of the boy she loves is too much, so she laces into sis, compels a confession from her as to what a dirty little double-crosser she is and finally gets the boy in the end.

Jazzy stuff in shorts with this. You'll attract the flaps and they'll want lively stuff. A Rudy Valce short with it will go well.

Fair Program Offering

(Reviewed by Walter R. Greene)

THIS picture presents another instance to prove that current stage successes do not always make as entertaining film productions. Although capably done from the standpoint of adaptation, direction and cast performance-the picture is hardly better than program standard.

Taken from the George Kelly play "The Show Off," the story details the antics of a wise guy who is unconsciously funny in his "know-it-all-attitude," and his attempts to be a big shot through conversation.

The picture fails to evince more than ordinary audience interest, and it will be accepted as a fair piece of entertainment. Hal Skelly satisfactory in the featured spot, with the balance of the cast above average.

A strong supporting bill of shorts are needed to help this one along. "Draw" subjects will be necessary in the week run houses, especially

Waterloo

(Ameranglo-Silent)

Historical But Great Battle Scenes

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

THIS German made feature based on historical facts leading to the downfall of Napoleon at Waterloo, with a net love tale inter-woven, is one of the best of the foreign pictures that has been shown in any of the little "arty houses in New York in several months. It is the best from the standpoint of acting, continuity of story, photography and direction. Just what its value will he at the box-offices in the regular houses is questionable, but for the art theatres it should be stre fire.

The love tale is hinged about the affair of the aide-de-camp of General Lleucher as he is sent to Vienna to the Congress in session there after Napoleon has been shipped to Elba. While a great hall is at its height in Vienna word comes that Napoleon is again in France and that the troops and people are rallying to his banner. Then comes the march to Waterloo, the great battle staged there and the rescue of the British from defeat by Blucher.

"The Talkies"

Amusing Slapstick

GOOD comedy of the knock-a-hout type A that may be spotted into almost any program. It deals with the misadventures of a pair of would-be comics who try to crash the talkies. They succeed in guinning up every scene in which the director tries to use them. The laughs are the kind that register with all types of audiences, young, old, or what have you, because it is the obvious stuff well executed and timed Monty Collins and Vernon Dent have the principal roles. Running time, 17 minutes.

Will score well in connection with a program headed by a feature of the serious, dramatic

(Vitaphone-1 Rec1)

Has Belly Laughs

E DDIE GREEN and a company of two col-ored players send over this comedy skit. It is a straight talking short, with the uneducated negro's desire to use big words without understanding their meaning, the basis. There are a number of good belly laughs in it. Running time, 10 minutes.

II'ill fit into almost any type of program.

"Ozzie Of The Circus"

(Universal Sound Cartoon-1 Reel)

Amusing

THE writer will not attempt an analyzation of this as to story. Suffice that it is the familiar conglomeration of funny looking animals engaged in some sort of endeavor, with Oswald the Rabbit as hero. The last half of the reel brings out some amusing stunts in the way of eartoon production. Good program

Will fit nicely into almost any type program.

"The Barber's College"

(Pathe LeMaire Dialogue-2 Reels) Makes Old Gags Seem New

EORGE LEMAIRE has relied on the old, familiar harber shop gags to pull this one along, and with the addition of dialogue and a slightly different treatment has turned out a singhly different treatment has turned out a very fair job. The story deals with the graduation of a student from "Barher College" and his first "chair" in the business end of the racket. Most of the entertaining action takes place in a shop where some weird tonsorial tor-ture is endured by patrons. A surprise visit by the wife forms a climax. Lew Hearn is teamed with LeMaire, the latter being featured player, director and producer. Ought to get the laughs.

THERE'S no use talking, this Judy, heroine of the Sporting Youth series, has more lives than a cat. She turns detective this time and almost single handed captures a desperate hi-jacker. Of course, the rest of her gang are with her, now and then. In this one we have a police chase, the "Log Cabin" roadhouse where most of the action takes place and, not too far away from her, "Bert," A fair enough followup on this series.

"Dangerous Females"

(Christie Talking Play-2 Reels) Packed With Laughs

THIS easily rates as one of the best sound shorts released to date, and warrants strong feature billing for the team of Marie Dressler and Polly Moran. The pair have been together in various feature productions—each time goaling audiences for rounds of laughs. They repeat in this one to make it outstanding as a comedy attraction.

Marie Dressler as the Widow Sarah Bascom and Polly as the psalm singing, soul saving, sanctimonious spinster Tibby Cramp will hand any andience—however hard-boiled—a laugh a minute. The coming to town of Tibby's favorite evangelist at the same time as the escape from the local jail of a desperate killer provides ample room for mistaken identities, and plenty

"Screen Snapshots" (Columbia—1 Reel) A Good Laugh Getter

THIS issue of Screen Snapshots has two masters of ceremonies. It starts with Sammy Cohen and ends with Eddie Quillan. Sammy starts the tour with a visit to the home of Joe Brown, where the sons of the star are in the midst of an argument with Jack Boyle, Jr., over the dancing abilities of their respective fathers. Jack Boyle claims his dad is the best and then Brown, Sr., is hauled forth to demonstrate his ability. Boyle carries all the talk among the youngsters. From this the tour is to one of the openings with the stars arriving and then to Eddie Quillan's home, where the whole family is paraded. Looks as though it would never end. Music and laughs for the finish. Altogether very interesting. Running time, 10 minutes.

This release lends itself to any number of combinations for program building.

"Good Medicine"

(Educational—Coronet)

Diverting Sketch

THIS sketch featuring Edward Everett Horton is up to style and standard of the Coronet series. Enid Bennett and Olive Tell complete an excellent cast whose talents are used to fine effect in enactment of a wellplotted little playlet about a young doctor who is starving to death and about to quit for the job of grocery clerk when a patient, a wealthy woman, enters the office. She claims every illness, but Horton, honest to the last, refuses the opportunity to make a meal ticket of the ease, tells the truth, loses a patient but finds a patron—the woman is seeking an honest doctor to head the staff at a hospital she has built. Cleverly constructed plotting very cleverly played. Running time, 20 minutes.

A good number for a high class program.

"Pathe Review No. 31" (Pathe Sound-1 Reel) A Strong Number

A N exceptionally good number, well diversified. In it is included the trapping of a leopard in an East India jungle, a demonstration of "Theremin," a weird electrical instrument produced by RCA, which can be induced to conduct true pusical potes through the wave to render true musical notes through the wave of a hand, and an Apache dance act by Islode and Alexis that is one of the hest this writer has witnessed. "Theremin" is demonstrated by its inventor and this and the dance act are the two best subjects.

"Dangerous Days" Universal Silent-2 Reels

A Western For The Kids
YES, Universal is still making them-Westerns-this one came out of the mold only three weeks ago, and we venture that there is still a good market for this type of picture, narticularly for those houses catering to kid trade. Sure, it's the old familiar stuff, hero, bad man, heroine and, of course, young Bobbie Nelson, who certainly packs a mighty wallop when doing his he-man deeeds. The theme is of the triangle species, villain seeking to lower the heroine's estimation of the hero by ruthless tactics. You know the rest. The kids will enjoy it, and maybe others.

You'll need strong surrounding numbers here.

AD TIPS—This feature proved very popular for several reasons. The audience is carried to various parts of the world, the acting and dialogue are superb, the story develops into a sheik picture and it is a thrilling romance with a touch of naughtiness that does not offend. Warner Baxter and Lois Moran are highly acceptable but there is a Scotland Yard characterization that is impressive. Will be liked by all ages and all classes.—Avalon, P. J. AD TIPS-As indicated by the title, this is a newspaper story in which underworld ac-tivities and a murder mystery play a part but it is different in that the murder takes place right in the newspaper office. There is a right in the newspaper office. There is a drunken husband, a reporter, and his conscientious wife, also a reporter. The newspaper office is typical to the small town and there are other realistic phases, with speedy dialogue and comedy relief. The story holds attention but adults will like to see it rather than children.—Imperial, Ray Tubman, Mgr., Ottawa.

AD TIPS-This picture required little special boosting as the town seemed to be waiting for it and there was a rush from the first per-formance to the last. Mention should be made of the fact that Ronald Colman gives the most magnificent acting of his lengthy career and he is also outstanding in the matter of voice. You cannot go too far in promising melodramatic thrills and it is undoubtedly superior to the original stage play. The whole cast is ex-cellent in voice and acting. AD TIPS—This is a modern theme but care should be taken to avoid giving the impression that it is a story of flappers or college boys. Feature it as domestic problem piece, treated from a different angle, and there are several names to play up, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Loretta Young and Carmel Myers. AD TIPS—Use large, laughing head cut in all ads, directly in center, with star's name in big type directly beneath and title under that. On left set: The Dean of Comedians TALKS and how. On right, set: Mystery thrills, comedy romance, a million laughs. Under title set: Official Laugh Week. The fastest, funniest, all talking comedy yet made. A family frolic. Follow the happy crowd. Hear him—see him. Audience appeal, to all classes because this comedy has much for everyone to laugh at.—Loew's Stanley, Charles Raymond, Gen. Mgr., Baltimore.

There could be only one big exploitation angle to this and naturally that is Harold Lloyd. Play up big the fact that this is his first all-talking comedy with plenty of laughs and plenty of thrills. Use a large head cut out of Lloyd in the lobby. Audience appeal, everyhody and especially the children.—Victor B. Lowrey, Mgr., Melba, Dallas, Texas.

Lloyd is all that is necessary to advertise, he'll pull 'em without help in Houston. Used catch-line "a family frolic," and "365 laughs, enough to last a year." Also stressed the first talking picture of Lloyd. Appeal is to old and young, every class and station.—E. E. Collins, city mgr., Publix, Houston, Tex.

Featured this as the Canadian premiere of Harold Lloyd's first talking feature. As Lloyd had not been seen in a new picture for some months, cutouts of his head were hung by cords in various places to intimate to the people that a Harold Lloyd picture was in town. "Welcome Danger" is not all comedy as there are many thrills. It is a great one for matinee crowds and a special effort should be made to encourage adult attendance at night. Great as a family feature.—T. R. Tubman, Mgr., Regent, Ottawa, Ont.

Just tell them Harold Lloyd is there in his first talkie. Use art of Lloyd without makeup. Run excerpts from other reviews. Appeal to all types of audiences, young and old.—Robert Blair Mar. The Seattle Seattle.

AD TIPS—Advertising of the previous week at one of the larger houses held over for the second week and the announcement was merely made that this was Harold Lloyd's first talking picture. The picture did very well for second week for first four days, but did not come up to record of "Gold Diggers of Broadway," which did big business on second week. General audience.—L. A. Carter, Mgr., Strand, Des Moines.

AD TIPS—This is a story of collegians and the characterizations are very appropriate. It has plenty of youthful pep, romance and comedy, with here and there a tear. The college revue is strikingly staged and there are wonderful costumes. The plot is not the least important part of the picture, however. The singing and dancing are a treat. This is a feature that will appeal to college students and bald heads, as well as the public generally.—J. M. Franklin, Mgr., B. F. Keith's, Ottawa, Ont.

"PROGRESS"

ITH every man on his mettle to show the men "up high" how good they are, it stands to reason that they must not permit themselves or their theatres to fall into a rut at any time.

Now, more than ever before, is it necessary for a house manager to show his employers that he is on the alert every minute to turn in more profits and to improve the operation of the theatre.

That's what the bosses are looking for all the time, and that's what they are entitled to get from every man on their payroll.

Why not?

These mergers or consolidations of various groups of theatres are business practices that must create good paying dividends for the large amount of monies invested, and since the house manager is generally the man directing the destinies of the theatre, it is to him that the "big shots" look for results.

We care not whether your house is part of a nation-wide chain or whether it is one of a very small group, the possibilities remain the same. If you are doing a good job there are always some people who shout your praises among other showmen and executives, and before very long you may have to answer a call to a better and bigger-salaried position.

There is only one way that you can expect such a call, and that is by watching every conceivable angle in the operation and exploitation of your theatre, and always being right on the jump to cash in on each and every local angle that might present itself in the course of your everyday tasks.

Invariably when we meet a manager who is crying about being "held down" by his bosses and not getting anywhere in particular, it is a manager who is content to sit around and expect the people to break the doors down in an effort to get into the house.

Well, it won't be long before men of this type will be discussed in the "past" tense among the go-getting type of managers who are never content to stay hidden in an office and look forward to the next pay day all the time.

Just a plain demonstration of trying your ntmost to make your house a profitable one for your bosses is all that is asked of any man. I know of half a dozen managers right close to New York whose theatres have not been out of the red for months, but they are doing their damndest to put the house over and their superiors realize it is not the manager's fault that the profits are not there right now.

Progress, as we would play around with the word, constitutes keeping abreast of the times to watch what your brother managers are doing — and then try to go them one better.

TRAILERS

The subject of advance trailers on your coming attractions has always been one for heated debate among various types of theatres and theatre managers.

There are some who believe that trailers depicting scenes from the photoplay itself are most desirable especially with the advent of sound whereby the actual excerpts from scenes of the picture are not only seen but heard.

However, there are still others whose contention it is that the trailer should be used as a teaser plug rather than as a direct canvass or advertising medium.

In our many visits to different theatre managers, which have recently been confined in and around New York City, we have felt out the different managers on this subject and found a diversified opinion as set forth above.

We have found, also, among many houses that they prefer to go in for the announcement type of trailer which carries nothing but an artistic background and wording, rather than actual scenes either still or in action from the photoplay. However, it shall always remain a toss up which angle is the better, and since in many cases these things are decided either by the home offices of the chain, or in some cases by the individual manager, the deciding heads will have to pass final judgment on all of these matters.

One thing, however, is certain. Trailers are absolutely a necessity in any kind of a theatre in some form or other. It you are not making use of this angle then you are not getting everything out of your screen that you are entitled to.

We would appreciate opinions from our members and readers on this subject which we promise to give prominence to on these pages.

Paul O. Klinger Exploits This One From Many Angles

Paul O. Klinger, manager of the Rialto Theatre in Lewistown, Pa., used many unique ideas to exploit "Sophomore" when he played that attraction at his theatre.

In this photograph you will notice the front of his theatre, in which he is celebrating an all talking jubilee special with the penants strung above the marquee. In the lower picture is one of those trick Fords which have always attracted a whole lot of attention because of the catch lines painted all over it and the dilapidated condition of the car itself. On the right side, you will notice the banner which he used on the back of the car, and which completed the picture.

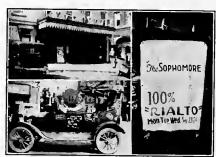

Because of the fact that this type of ballyhoo had not been used in Lewistown in recent months, it attracted plenty of attention and even front page mention in the local newspaper. Which after all, is what every theatre is anxious to grab off.

We are glad Mr. Klinger s h o wed his CLUB spirit by sending us this contribution, and we would like to we would like to hear some more about what he is doing up there, especially some copies of his newspaper advertising.

some copies of his newspaper advertising.
Say, Paul, can you accommodate us? Thanks, anyway, in advance.

It Costs You Nothing to Belong to the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

And see what marvellous benefits you derive from this organization!

A great many showmen (we know) have been just on the verge of joining the Managers' Round Table Club, but have neglected to do so largely through oversight.

We suggest that YOU get full information about this great army of showmen and then decide once and for all whether you want to join.

The mere fact that so many live-wire showmen already belong to the organization—that they represent the cream of the show-world—every branch of theatre management—that not a single one was induced by a salesman or any other sort of solicitation other than through the actual activities of the Club and the word-of-mouth praise that has spread from one end of the world to the other—but joined after simply reading the facts about what the Club does for it's members—all these are indications that it is worth your while at least to get these facts as quickly as possible, and then (if you want to) join and get the benefits that such association with fellow showmen is bound to bring.

IT HAS ALMOST REACHED THE POINT WHERE IT IS NOT A QUESTION OF WHO BELONGS TO THE CLUB—BUT, WHO DOESN'T BELONG TO IT!

"All For One And One For All"

"Tod" Browning Renews His Club Activities Again Grabbing front page publicity in the average town and city in the United States is an achievement for any theatre, but when it takes the form of the front page of a newspaper like the Boston Post, then whoever is responsible for it is deserving, of plenty of credit.

All of which leads up to the announcement that Harry "Tod" Browning, manager of the Publix-Uptown Theatre, These pretty misses didn't mind gerting wet last night when they "fished or apples in front of the Up-Town Theatre on Huntington avenue. Le oright, around the pan, are: Sandra Gaffen, Dorchester; Esther Burro Dorchester; Billie Eaton, Dorchester.

in Boston, Mass., succeeded in doing just that, and the cut with this story is a reduction of a two column by six inch photograph and announcement which appeared right up under the mast head of the Boston Post.

Harry, it was certainly a pleasure to hear from you again after so long a silence, but we did know that you were on the job every minute of the time and that sooner or later you would recall your CLUB spirit to mind.

Why not continue the start and keep us posted once more on what you are doing up there in Boston? We assure you that your contributions are always welcome and our many members find much of interest and value in reading about them.

Atmospheric Float Sold Picture For Boyd In Philly

Here is the way the Boyd Theatre in Philadelphia ballyhooed "The Gold Diggers of Broadway" throughout the city and suburbs of Philadelphia.

This effective float with the live "gold diggers" certainly was a work of art, and, considering the small cost, it was well worth the expense. Incidently, the mining tools used by the girls on the float were gilded and burnished to give a real gold appearance and this too, added to the general effect of the entire idea.

We are wondering how many of you boys are giving the "float" ballyhoo sufficient thought with reference to its effectiveness as an out door business builder? A little attention to this ancient angle of showmanship may reveal the interesting fact that it really is not near as expensive as it appears on the surface and many local tieups present themselves in this connection which may even make its cost free to the theatre.

With all of the stories we have heard about the activities out at the Boyd theatre we would welcome the opportunity of passing along more of their exploitation ideas. How about it boys, let's hear from you more often.

ROGERS CARROLL

J. B. Hardy, manager of Loew's Mall Theatre, in Cleveland, Ohio, used two neat exchange cuts to make up the accompanying automobile door hanger of which he put out 10,000 every week for quite a length of time. Practically all the parking lots and downtown streets were covered and, of course, this constitutes excellent advertising as every person owning the car must take the hanger from the door before entering.

We believe that for an intensive campaign over a period this advertising is very good and is bound to attract attention. If not the first or second time, then surely in the subsequent cards that are used.

We would also like to show a small sticker which was printed on yellow stock and measured about 3 square inches and stuck in every conceivable spot around the town for the purpose of plugging the theatre's name and its location to everybody who happened to see one.

There are many campaigns which can be utilized not for just the purpose of selling a particular picture, but rather for selling the theatre itself to the public. This is but one of the small examples of such publicity activities and we would welcome the opportunity of presenting others along this line if sent to the ROUND TABLE CLUB in the immediate future.

We are glad to welcome Mr. Harvey into the fast-growing ranks of the ROUND TABLE CLUB, and we will look for many future contributions from this progressive showman.

11ow about sending us one of your photographs with your next contribution, "J. B."? We would certainly like to see what you look like and also let the other fellows know what kind of an appearance you make, so that they will feel that they know you a little more intimately.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

J. B. Anderson Is Now Pub. Director For RKO In Jersey

We take great pleasure in welcoming to the MANAG-ERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB, J. Beverly Anderson, who has just been appointed director of publicity and advertising for the RKO State and Rivoli Theatres, New Brunswick, N. J.

Mr. Anderson was formerly an assistant manager at the State Theatre and his promotion is a result of his fine showmanship and activities around that theatre. He replaces Mr. Kurt Becker, who has been transferred to the Trenton district.

We should certainly deem it a pleasure to be able to set forth this new member's activities, and we are sure that he will be responsible for many original and up-to-theminute publicity schemes for the theatres which he has now got to put on the map by way of such activities. Let's hear from you "J. B." and by all means let us have your photograph with your next letter, so that we can give you a proper introduction.

L. J. Carkey Makes Himself At Home In Spokane, Wash.

Lawrence J. Carkey, whom we all recall as having been connected for seven years with the Schine Enterprises in New York State as Home Office Special Representative and head of the Exploitation Department (which included a varied assortment of activities, such as opening up new theatres and acting as general "pep" man), has left the sunny (?) State of N. Y. and followed Horace Greely's advice to such an extent that we now find him as Managing Director of the R-K-O Orpheum Theatre way out in Spokane, Wash.

In handling the opening for this theatre, Mr. Carkey employed a brand of showmanship that commands the utmost in respect and admiration for the way he engineered and executed the entire layout.

In conjunction with his local newspapers he turned out a special R-K-O Orpheum edition which we show along the bottom of this page, and which is a marvelous piece of advertising and showmanship. Incidentally, these special editions went out to cover a circulation of over 60,000 readers of the paper and included distribution throughout Spokane, and in all the hotel rooms of the city.

Besides being a marvelous tribute to the Orpheum Theatre, the paper was really as much a tribute to the showmanship and personality of Mr. Carkey himself, and we believe that the R-K-O have made a fine move when they secured him to handle this theatre.

A marvelous Madame X identification contest was engineered, whereby a woman with a mask paraded the shopping district of the city between two and four each day and to anyone who could reveal her identity a $10.00 prize was offered. Naturally this kicked up a lot of interest and the tieup with the newspaper was effective enough to bring about such publicity as we are showing in connection with this story.

There were so many other angles to Mr. Carkey's whirlwind campaign, that we would use up the greater portion of our ROUND TABLE CLUB pages for this issue were we to go into everything to the smallest detail, but we are content to say that a close study of the campaign and the description of it was absolute proof he engineered this 100% perfect.

We are certainly glad to find Lawrence with the R-K-O outfit out there in Spokane, and we are sure, that with a greater field to work in, his activities will assume even greater importance and interest than when he was with the Schine Circuit.

Many thanks, "L. J.," for remembering us, and we trust that you will continue to send us the details of how you are putting the Orpheum Theatre across after its wonderful start.

Please Take Note

THE pages of the Club are open for the publication of photographs from both members and readers. These photos may be of theatre managers, theatre fronts, marquee displays, lobby settings, etc. Due credit will be given those sending photos to the Club, providing they attach the proper description and their own names and theatre addresses.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB.

Matt Reilly Don't Waste Much Time Between Stunts

Matt Reilly is at it again. This time the Providence Publicity Demon worked out a ballyhoo gag connected with the picture "Married in Hollywood" in which Matt dolled up a boy and girl in fancy wedding regalia, stuck a couple of signs around their necks and walked them around the town to give the population the idea that they were just married.

When Matt decided that was all that was necessary and the curious public would do the rest, he had his stunt fig-the way it would develop. Because the crowds followed this couple wherever the ywent, and where did they go, you will ask?

They went into every store, picture gallery and paraded around the best and worst parts of the town. Needless to say, the stunt could be talked up as a hundred per cent successful, because there were more laughs and more talk about "Married in Hollywood" than over any other picture recently run in Providence.

By the way, did we forget to tell you that Matt pulled this stunt in Providence, R. I. for the Victory Theatre?

Keep 'em coming along, Matt, we like to publish these stories of yours Matt, but stick one of your own photos in the next envelope, will you? Thanks.

W. H. LeValley Is Promoted To Higher Position

The appointment of W. H. Le Valley to the post of Director of Advertising and Exploitation for the district lying north of N. Y. for the Publix Theatres, puts this eager and progressive young chap in a position to demonstrate his real showmanship which will be called for in the course of executing the duties of his new job.

Before he gets going too strongly and starts shooting in the details of his different activities, as well as what the different house managers are doing in his district, we want you to see how he successfully engineered an "Amateur Reviewers Contest" and the fine newspaper publicity that the theatre was able to grab in the nature of free space by this newspaper cooperative tieup.

We are reproducing three of the groups of ads that appeared, as well as one of the readers, which we clipped at

ADDRES

This is just for the purpose of giving you an idea of how the entire thing was handled.

Inasmuch as space is mighty hard to get in the papers in Newburgh, Mr. Le Valley deserves a lot of credit for the fine manner in which he handled this, which was not only to the theatre's satisfaction, but to the newspaper's as well. If only looked upon from the angle of word of mouth advertising and the comments created among the folks in and around Newburgh, the contest could be called 100% successful, but considering all the other advantageous side lights to this splendid piece of showmanship leads us to suspect that it is a wonderful proposition, and one that other showmen would do well to think about and try themselves. Inasmuch as we expect to give Le Valley a whole lot of space in future issues of the CLUB pages, we will not make this story any longer than possible, and will close by sending to him the greetings of the ROUND TABLE CLUB and their best wishes for his success in his new position.

ranged a special class price for Elementary School Children.

Many teachers arranged to bring their entire class to the

duced rate and it naturally attracted a lot of attention among the older folks as well as the young ones.

This is just typical of the dignified and high class type of exploitation of which Carroll is capable and we feel that his contributions to the ROUND TABLE C L U B pages will always command a lot of respect and attention from our other members.

On this most recent of his activities, he turned out a neat invitation which was mailed to all of the educational authorities in and around Jersey City with exceptionally good results. We felt that you would all like to see the way he laid out the invitation and the attractive way it was printed. I am certain that after looking this over, and digging into the facts behind this entire stunt, you will agree with us that Mr. Carroll has engineered an unusually fine piece of exploitation and publicity for his theatre.

Harry Moore Shows What He Can Do Without An Artist

In answer to the oft heard query "What to do Without an Art Department" we take the liberty of clipping this ad out of the Fox Westcoast House organ "Now."

real headwork on the part of this manager.

Here is a suggestion that any number of our members and readers can take advantage of. If used on rare occasions it is bound to command a tremendous amount of interest in their local papers.

There has been so much said lately about the "punch" that is needed in the smaller towns and cities when it comes to newspaper advertising that this sort of comes at what we might term, the psychological moment. At any rate it presents something different in methods of laying out small space copy that will immediately attract the eye and if for no other reason it is worth your while to look it over and study the possibilities it offers for your own use.

We would certainly like to see some more of Harry Moore's activities on these pages, as we feel every one of our members and readers can benefit by following what he is doing. How about it, Harry, and you might include your own photograph with your next letter. Thanks any way in advance

R. W. Waterson Puts Over Successful Anniversary

The Marion Theatre, Marion, Ohio, recently celebrated its fifteenth anniversary and manager R. W. Waterson put over a pretentious advertising campaign that sold the anniversary celebration, but at the same time did not detract from the advertising of his current attractions.

The Marion-Star sold a double-truck page of cooperative advertising in which the co-operative merchants expressed their good wishes and congratulations on the theatre's anniversary.

Pittsburg Get-Together

Details of the get-together of "Ace" Berry's section of Warner Theatres has been incorporated into a special story in the news section of this issue.

"Chick"

The Marion bakery made two huge cakes, one was displayed in the lobby of the theatre and the other in the bakery window. People were invited to estimate the weight of the cake during the anniversary week. The cakes were given to those guessing nearest the correct weight. The bakery also prepared a special Marion Anniversary cake which retailed for 30c and in every fifteenth package was a pass to the theatre.

The above represents but a small portion of the anniversary campaign and Manager Waterson certainly is to be congratulated on the marvelous way that he handled the entire affair.

Let's hear some more from you "R. W." and let us know what you are doing to keep the old ticket machine humming out there at the Marion Theatre.

Jim Clemmer Lost No Time In Selling His Stage Show

This is the way Jim Clemmer tied up with a local bakery and used the girls appearing in Fanchon and Marco's "Sweet Cookie Idea."

Through this arrangement, the girls distributed 5,000 packages of cookies in the downtown district of Seattle and from reports received from Jim, business that week was indeed "sweet."

This must have given Seattle a whole lot to talk about when they saw these gorgeous girls all dolled up in costume passing out these tidbits and Clemmer is deserving of credit for using his head to take advantage of a local tieup when it presented itself to him.

Let's hear from you again, Jim, and tell us some more about your activities.

Sanson's Fine Tie-Up Is Talk Of The Show Business

Jack Sanson who has recently assumed the managing directorship of the Palace Theatre in Danbury, Conn., recently engineered a marvelous community tieup, wherein the entire community helped celebrate the Palace Theatre's Anniversary

We have had many different types of local celebrations brought to our attention, but it is very rare that something of this style reaches our desk, because the entire layout in itself is almost original from every angle.

We certainly were glad to hear about Jack's activities again, and we hope that his duties will not prevent him from keeping us posted on all the details concerning this particular Anniversary Celebration so that we can show our members how he put it across.

What do you say, Sanson, don't you think you will be able to send us the rest of the dope, as well as a few photographs to show how Danbury was tied up so marvelously through your own showmanship? Atta boy, keep up the great work.

Paul E. Glase And His Aides Made This A Sell-Out

We have got to hand it to Paul E. Glase who manages the Warner Equity Theatres in Reading, Pa.

The cause, of this sudden raving, is that Reading is one of those towns where Hallowe'en Night is a bugaboo for the theatres on account of the entire town staging a typical Mardi Gras on the Main Street and everybody taking it in because it don't cost them anything.

With such a situation, the theatre business is generally hopeless and Mr. Glase decided it was time to put on the old thinking cap and dope something out. That he succeeded, beyond even his own expectations, is proven by the capacity turnaway business which was the result of his idea.

All of which takes us down to the facts of the case, which consist of the following.

They solicited all the prominent merchants for a number of genuine prizes and staged a carnival Mardi Gras right on the stage of the theatre. In return for the merchants cooperation, they ran a trailer on the screen and in addition invited these same merchants to act as judges in the contests which were, of course, decided by popular applause. And, incidentally, their Master of Ceremonies introduced the merchants in behalf of the store and the company which had presented the particular article which they were donating free.

We take this occasion to show the unusually fine publicity which the Astor Theatre gained through this stunt, and also call your attention to the acknowledgment on the Astor program intended to build up the necessary goodwill that must naturally exist in such tieups between theatre and merchants. The real aftermath of such cooperation is the fine quality of warm feeling that exists between everyone concerned in a tieup by reason of the satisfaction that all "promises were performed."

In reading over all the details of Mr. Glase's fine arrangement, the thought occurred to us that credit was due his musical director, Fred Cardin, who acted as Master of Ceremonies, and Clarence Latshaw and Earle Westbrooke, both house managers, who deserve plenty of special mention for their endeavor and enterprise in putting over the entire tieup under Mr. Glase's direction.

We are certainly grateful to Glase for sending us all these details and we are sure that our many other members and readers will benefit by the success of this stunt. At any rate, they had a tough situation to meet, and they met it beyond their own fondest hopes. Lots of luck to you fellows out there, and we are certainly proud to number most of you among the members of the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB. It seems to us that the Warner Equity theatre managers are a particularly enterprising group and we certainly look forward to reading more about their activities.

Wm. Ewing Resumes His Activities Once More

It's a good thing that Bill Ewing, publicity head of the Stanley-Crandall houses in Washington, D. C., has to send out some "stuff" once in a while. Otherwise we would be worried as to whether he is still alive and listed among our active members.

But it's not fair to take a crack at Bill because he has had his hands full with all those houses to look after in the way of publicity and exploitation and we are certain that he has been as interested a follower of our pages as ever before. Not that we like 'em to just read the book. We feel that they ought to contribute to it themselves. "All For One And One For All" was the slogan and that's what we intended it to be.

Thanks a lot Ewing for the batch of stuff you sent us about the activities of those theatres, including General Manager John J. Petette and Nat Glasser. We shall certainly make use of them in an early issue of the News but we had to push this little bit ahead so as to let you know how tickled we were to hear from you again. Why not keep it up now that you've started again?

"Sid" Lawrence's Staff Is A Model For Bigger Cities

If there is any question in your mind about the average smaller city and town making as good a showing as far as their theatre staff is concerned as their big chief city brothers are concerned, then let us direct your attention to this snapshot of Sid Lawrence, his assistant and six of their staff of

Unfortunately, this snapshot does not do justice to the youngsters, we are certain that they are as neat and clean-cut a body of boys as you will find in any theatre anywhere. Naturally, it is a distinct credit to Mr. Lawrence and his aggressive assistant that they are capable of serving the patrons of the Palace Theatre up to the best standards.

J. J. Revolt Jr., Now Stationed At Adrian With Hamer

J. J. Revolt, Jr., whom we will recall as being the Assistant Manager of the Lyric and Grand Theatres in Manistee, Mich., has been transferred to the Croswell and Family Theatres in Adrian, Mich., where he will hold a similar position.

Inasmuch as Adrian is a much larger city than Manistee, the possibilities for his advancement are naturally greater and we believe that this young chap will shortly blossom forth as a full fledged house manager with the opportunity to show his own initiative and ability in the handling of a

He is working in Adrian under the supervision of E. G. Hamer, an old time showman with long and varied experience in the theatre game and from him he should be able to acquire more than a passing knowledge of REAL showmanship tactics.

The ROUND TABLE CLUB extends to Mr. Revolt its congratulations, and we trust we shall hear some more good news from him very soon.

Manager Is Important In Community Work At All Times

Right on the heels of our recent editorial dealing with the importance of the house manager being an important factor in the operation of a theatre, especially as applied to lending his name to the theatre's publicity, we received a campaign for the Beacon Theatre's second anniversary held at Pt. Washington, L. I.

Everything we claimed in our argument for a manager's individuality being pushed in connection with the theatre's and vertising is borne out — and then some — by the activities of Bill Levey.

Ever since Mr. Levey walked into Pt. Washington he represented the theatre in all activities about the town and practically every community drive that amounted to anything. In this way his name and the theatre is almost synonymous. The fact that his employers, the A. H. Schwartz Century Circuit, encourages and permits him to continue this method is sufficient proof that this is the instance we have been looking for to prove our claim that a manager must not lose his identity in the operation of a thea-

"What's Your Nickname?"

Good old, Tom Kane, manager of the Sequoia Theatre in Redwood City, Cal., has come through with a funny

It seems that Tom and his assistant, Clinton Eberly were discussing this "Chick" person whose name appears at frequent intervals on the ROUND TABLE CLUB PAGES of the NEWS and his opinion is that from the tone of it I am supposed to be somewhat of a Democratic soul. As a matter of fact, they flatter me by saying that his assistant would bet money that I made a peach of a general manager in the days when I was a general manager, and he went on to say, "Were you Chick?" Well, I haven't heard many kicks, and don't recall any house managers walking around with chips on their shoulders in the not too distant past when I had house managers working under my supervision. However, we are sort of getting away from Tom's subject, and we'll have to get back to it.

Here's the idea as Tom sees it. Now that I have confessed to my nickname he says that every member of the M.R.T.C. should be compelled to confess to theirs, and to substantiate his argument, he claims that when he was a boy (voice from the gallery—"a long time ago") he was called by two nicknames, one was "Crow" due to the blackness of his hair and the other was "Sugar." As he puts it "Write vour own ticket."

Come on fellows, open discussions of this at every meeting of the ROUND TABLE CLUB. Let's hear what you have to say on the subject.

Wayne R. Perkins Has A Novel Chain To Keep Going

We have introduced our members and readers to all classes and styles of showmen engaged in various types and phases of this business, but now we want you to step up and make the acquaintance of Wayne R. Perkins who operates a string of one night stands in Michigan.

Wayne's "chain" consists of locations in small towns that cannot support any more than one or two night stands, and with his portable equipment, he is kept mighty busy keeping on the go all the time. In order to make a tour of his circuit, he must go into Detroit where he gets his pictures for the current week, and then he returns to Lansing, Mich., from which point he starts the round of his circuit.

It will certainly be interesting to us to learn how he is getting the natives of the small string of one night stands to come to the show and what means of exploitation or advertising he uses to accomplish this purpose. We will, therefore, look forward to hearing from Wayne as often as he can find time to keep us posted. The mere fact that the pictures he runs are old by the time he gets them, should not interfere with his telling us how he exploits his shows because it is not the picture we are interested in, as much as the method he employs. Keep this in mind, will you, Perkins? And let's hear from you regularly.

C. A. Clinch Is Active In Local Merchants Body

An interesting sidelight on the activities of C. A. Clinch, manager of the Columbia Theatre at Brookville, Pa., for the Stanley-Davis-Clarke outfit, is the fact that in his first year in that town, he was Vice-President of the Chamber of Commerce, and is now the President of that body.

It is really worthy of shouting from the housetops when a man comes into an old-fashioned American community and attains leadership like that. It means that he has a broad vision and a wider understanding of his responsibility as a theatre manager than usual. He starts where most theatre men leave off, and, of course, the giving of a good show in a clean and inviting theatre is really but the beginning of his efforts.

Mr. Clinch also founded the first benefit for the Brookville Boys' Band, a very unique organization, and just recently they held their second annual benefit.

Making the Columbia Theatre the unofficial headquarters of everything that goes on in the town is a noteworthy achievement and bears out our previous estimation of the man—that he is a credit not only to the theatre, but the organization which employs him.

If there were only many more managers who work along the same lines that Mr. Clinch does, it would bring a whole lot more credit to the show business in general and if you are failing to take advantage of your local situation and the opportunity of winning your way into all worthwhile endeavors that take place in and around your community, you are not carrying out the responsibility that was placed upon your shoulders, when you were made manager of the theatre.

If We Wanted To Talk—

We could tell volumes about the different folks in this show business of ours who are cashing in every week through following the pages of the Round Table Club in MOTION PICTURE and to the managers in the division about Good-Will between the manager and the other theatre employees . . . and were we mad because he made that speech up from some of the stuff we have written on the same subject? . . . we were not. . . And then there is the circuit exploiteer who insists that everything he passes along to the house manager is original . . . and has used that gag so often that he is really beginning to believe it himself . . . we happened into his office . . . where we were invited to wait until he returned from a conference . . . and right on top of his desk was over a dozen Round Table Pages and a pencil and pad which he was using to write those "original" stunts he raves about . . . and were we mad because he was finding our stuff so useful? . . . we were not. . . . And then there is that "live-wire" publicity gent . . . the one who turns out a circuit house organ . . . preaches a whole lot of applesauce to the guys who have to carry the keys to the cup machines . . . and goes to great pains to insist that they send their exploitation ideas direct to him so he can broadcast the "glad tidings" via said house organ . . . but the laugh happens to be that we know where he gets most of his material from those famous (?) . . . what does he call 'em? . . . sermons, preachings or what have you . . . right plumb out of the Round Table pages . . . and does that make us mad? . . . we should tell the cock-eyed world it does NOT. . . . And that we have that wise-guy house manager who turns up his nase at the very idea that he can cash in on the other fellow's activities . . . and then tells the boss all about the smart stunt he just pulled off . . . and how he thought it up with his own little brain (?) . . . and then thanks his lucky star for the copy of Motion Picture News wherein he grabbed himself that idea. . . . But . . . here. . . . I've got to stop all this ravin' about these birds and get on to mentioning some of the real "smart" ones in the business . . . showmen in fact . . . not in imagination . . . men who have given their unqualified approval of the Round Table Club . . . shouted its praises . . . told their managers to get the News and read our pages ... men like the "Prince of Chain Executives" ... Harold B. Franklin ... Circuit heads like ... "Ace" Berry . . brainy publicity men such as Frank Whittbeck Larry Jucobs . . . Frank La Falce . . . Charles Carroll . . . our head starts whirling when we try to think of them all at one time . . . but they are not afraid to boost the Club . . . to see the value of membership in our organization for their managers and others . . . the difference is as plain as the nose on your face . . . they're showmen . . . executives . . . regular guys . . . while the other kind are false alarms . . . and Abe Lincoln had the right dope . . . they can't fool everybody for very long . . . and that's that, . . .

Schmertz Moves Closer To City On New Assignment

Robert Schmertz, who, when last heard of was managing the Fox Capitol Theatre, Port Chester, N. Y., has now been transferred to the Ogden Theatre in upper New York City.

We are glad that Bob has been moved a step nearer to CLUB headquarters, because we shall now look forward to meeting him personally.

"Welcome Danger"

We want to take this means of calling our members' and readers' attention to a certain portion of this picture, the action of which takes place in the underground passageway of San Francisco's Chinatown, and during a part of the picture, the leading characters are left in total darkness.

The angle we want to bring out is just this; at the Rivoli Theatre in New York, they arranged a black-out whereby whenever this total darkness appeared in this part of the picture, every single house light was doused, keeping the audience, likewise, in total

Here is a mighty fine angle that lends itself to the attraction, and gives the audience plenty to laugh and talk about. Keep it in mind when you play the picture, because the very first time you see this production you will get our viewpoint.

Al Price Keeps Plugging For Union Sq. In Cleve.

Al Price, of the Union Sq. Theatre, a neighborhood house in Cleveland, Ohio, pulled a good one for his opening campaign on sound policy.

They turned out a little pamphlet on yellow stock which measured about $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. square and the front cover read, "Have You Heard It?"

These were delivered to houses within a radius of four miles of the city and stuck in all the doors. Boys also rang doorbells, and said, "Have you heard it?" and then handed the little pamphlet to the party who answered the door. In connection with this same gag he worked a two for one stunt which brought many new faces to the Union Square Theatre. This two for one coupon was incorporated in the same throwaway and was included in the sales talk on the inside spread.

The back page was devoted to the coming talking attraction and all together with other stunts, made this a thoroughly successful campaign.

Now that the Union Square is launched on its talking policy, Al Price should be able to send us many interesting contributions. What do you say, Al?

Come On Canada!!

Otto W. Schmit Passes Some Comment On Employes

Here is a letter from Otto W. Schmit, manager of the Paris Theatre in Santa Fe, N. Mex., on the subject of theatre operation and employees.

We felt it was so well written that we deviated from our set rule against reprinting letters and pass it along for what it is worth to our members

The Managers' Round Table Club is indebted to Mr. Schmit for this letter and wants him to know that we appreciate his fine Club spirit.

I believe one of the most important things in the operation of a theatre is to have the full co-operation of every member employed. This one thing I try to do. One of my rules is that every member employed at the theatre know what attractions we have coming so that if they are asked by any patron what the program for the next week will be they can answer them right off without any delay. I also give prizes to the ones suggesting the best ideas in advertising a certain picture, for some times their ideas are far better than my own and by so doing it keeps them interested in the business.

The only way I have ever been able to keep a check on the employees is to watch them and keep them working together. I believe a little stunt we have is good for any theatre. That is, once a week we have a meeting of all members and during this meeting we talk show business.

It often happens that some employee feels he is above the others and this causes friction and soon they are working against one another, which you will agree is poor for the business. The greatest asset for any manager is to have full co-operation from every member employed. I do not believe in keeping them scared to death of me. I am strong for discipline but at the same time I want the help to know they can call on me at any time for offering suggestions. Take, for instance, the operator. If he is not working with you and does not have the business at heart he can do more damage in five minutes than you can overcome in a long time, especially now with the sound pictures. The ushers can do a little mean trick to some patron that proves disasterous. The whole thing is all work together and the business will run along smoothly.

Yours truly, Otto W. Schmit, Manager.

W. L. Miller Finds A Lot Of Angles To Sell His Shows

William L. Miller, manager of the Red Wing Theatre, a neighborhood house in Baltimore, Md., has been instrumental in putting across several fine stunts that have boosted business at the box office considerably.

Part of his activities consisted of a series of card warnings in connection with the picture "The Last Warning" and created plenty of talk around the community in which the Red Wing Theatre is located. On the picture "The Code of the Year" he arranged a successful tieup with the Curtis Flying Service of this city in which quite a lot of interesting articles were placed in the lobby in connection with the Curtis Flying Station. There were many fine points to the activities of this new member, that we cannot take advantage of at this time, due to the lack of space, but we are sure that his future contributions will include many interesting items worthy of the attention of other neighborhood managers in the larger cities.

Let's hear from you regularly, Miller, and when you get the opportunity you might send us one of your own pho-

The Real Club Spirit! "All For One And One For All"

"Great Stuff, Monty"

Monty Salmon, City Manager for the Publix Theatres in Macon, Ga., and one of the Charter Members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB has just sent us a copy of the Special Section of his local newspaper which he engineered on "Why Bring That Up?"

We were so pleased with this special edition, that we decided to let it wait for a day or two until we could really analyze it and appreciate the fine showmanship that Monty worked out in connection with this marvelous tieup, and in an early issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages will carry a whole lot more about this interesting supplement.

We have accumulated quite a batch of material from Monty, but we want him to know that we have not withheld the publication of it for any other reason except that we have been so rushed these last few months that our ability to meet the increased correspondence has been taxed to the utmost.

Pardon us, won't you, Monty, and rest assured that every little word from you is received with appreciation. For the present we will just say "hello" to you and the rest of your boys down there in Macon and you will hear from us again very soon.

Will J. Glaser Turns Out An Unusual News Edition

Will J. Glaser, manager of the Paramount Theatre in Faribault, Minn., was responsible for one of the most marvelous special newspaper editions ever dedicated to a theatre opening.

This special edition ran twelve pages and the theatre was by far the most important angle played up from every reader's or advertiser's standpoint.

Mr. Glaser deserves a lot of credit for this marvelous medium, and we are certain he will accomplish great things under the Publix banner out in Faribault.

There were so many outstanding features to this big special edition that we would have to devote the better part of several pages in trying to show it to our members and readers. Unfortunately, with the mail getting heavier every day and the amount of material we must handle we cannot possibly show more than a single or double page of such edition. In this case we could never do justice to the many fine pages worked out by Mr. Glaser with only a page or two, so rather than do it an injustice we will have to rely upon this announcement of his great work for the present.

You are putting over many fine stunts out there Bill, why not keep us informed at the end of each campaign? It will only take a few minutes of your time, yet it might be of tremendous value to your brother managers and members. Oak? Thanks.

J. W. Creamer Is Now Plugging For Fox At Muscatine

Now that he is firmly established in Muscatine, Iowa for his new bosses, the Fox West Coast Outfit, J. W. Creamer is now engaged in showing them that he is all that they expect of him

Recalling his activities at the Benton Theatre in Kansas City, leads us to more than suspect that he will live up to the expectations of his superiors.

We rather like the newspaper ad which he sent us and which we are showing with this story, because it is typical of Creamer's type of newspaper work and the kind of stuff that will give Muscatine and the patrons of the Fox Palace Theatre something to talk about.

We were rather tickled at the marvelous enthusiasm expressed in John's letter about being connected with the Fox West Coast outfit, and how he was glad to read the back page of

"NOW" which we reproduced, dealing with discussions about small town newspaper advertising. However, he is now in a town where he can show them a thing or two and we are going to keep the weather eye peeled for signs of activity from this wideawake showman.

Will have to close this now, Creamer, but we would like to hear from you very soon, so keep us posted on some of your newspaper advertising, we have an idea that it would be a model for a lot of the other boys to follow and we pledge all the necessary space to pass along what you are doing.

Maurice Bliss Has Plenty To Do With Selling The Shows

Ever since the Metro Theatre in uptown New York went "talkie," Maurice Bliss, their go-getting manager has been kept on his toes to keep pace with the ever increasing number of big attractions that the Metro Theatre has had to play. We have heard many complimentary remarks about Maurice and his neighborhood house and unquestionably he is entitled to a lot of credit for the way it is going over and the satisfaction that is very evident among the patrons.

We are taking the liberty of showing one of his recent programs to give you an idea of how he lays out his attractions both current and coming, and we are sure we will hear from Maurice in more details as to how he is putting across his neighborhood campaigns.

"All For One And One For All"

There are so many "Browns" in our CLUB that we hope our members and readers are more successful in keeping track of one from the other than we at CLUB headquarters.

Every time we see the name of "Brown" we dig into the file to make sure that it is a different one than we had just mentioned in a current issue.

But, one thing we do know and we are here to pass it on in as plain a batch of words as we command, and it is: that Dick Brown, the manager of the Liberty Theatre in Pittsburgh for the Stanley-Davis-Clarke outfit put over a fine piece of exploitation when he used a tear sheet from

This front page flash on the "Argyle Case" was a red overprint and was mailed out to the regular mailing list of the paper which totaled around 10,000 and who is there to deny that this was a marvelous piece of advertising and showmanship.

In addition to this effective tieup, Dick, also worked a full page merchants cooperative tieup on Jolson's picture in the newspaper, whereby the white and black face cut of Jolson appeared in every single ad, as well as some reference to the attraction or theatre. If this was not high powered showmanship, then we are going to take a back seat and start crochetting or knitting for a living.

F. L. Clawson Ties Up With Ballroom For Unusual Stunt

F. L. Clawson, who is managing the Orpheum Theatre in Ogden, Utah, for the Publix Chain has been so busy since his theatre came under that banner, that he has had to neglect us a little. However, his recent letter was a most welcome arrival at CLUB headquarters and we were delighted to see that he has kept us in mind continuously during his busy days.

ORPHEUM Beginning SUNDAY OCTOBER 20th m of Dances — October 16 1929 The Berthana Ballroom

In connection with the picture "Gold Diggers of Broadway," he worked out a tieup through a popular dance hall that happens to be friendly with the theatre, whereby heralds on this attraction were distributed with the back space, generally used for imprinting, being devoted to a program of dances. We are showing the back of this herald to better convey the point that "F.L." successfully put across, and we are sure that it will present an angle that can be utilized by other managers not only for this production but many others like it in working a similar tieup.

Since the herald went to the hands of hundreds of amusement loving people and the attraction went over big, we know that it helped both the dance hall and the theatre and was therefore a worthwhile stunt.

Thanks, Clawson, and please try to find the time to keep us posted more regularly on your activities.

COLOR

at the price of black-and-white

Eastman Sonochrome Tinted Positive Films were developed specifically to add color to sound pictures at low cost. They do just that. The sixteen subtle atmospheric tints, bringing new color moods to the screen, are so adjusted that they give unusually faithful sound reproduction. Yet the films cost no more than ordinary black-and-white positive.

* All Talkie

It takes something hot in the way of a two-reel talking comedy to break into this fast company of best pictures, and this Louise Fazenda howl is the bright baby. "Faro Nell" is a scream—an airtight, perfectly acted burlesque of the old-time Western thriller. Louise, in long yellow curls, is a panic. This is just what we've long wanted—a two-reel talkie we could bellow at.

Convenient Form

Eight years ago we published the first edition of Motion Picture News Booking Guide in response to the urgent need for a reference book and exploitation aid in eounection with pictures released during the previous season, and as a valuable extension of the service provided exhibitors by this trade journal. The purpose behind it and the manner of its execution in the Booking Guide won immediate and emphatic response throughout the industry, and the response to subsequent issues acceptuated the fundamentally sound basis on which the Guide was built. From the first it has fulfilled one of its greatest services because it tied up with a file of Motion Picture News, thus opening up a source of information concerning all pictures released, their history at the box office, methods employed in their successful exploitation, etc., than possibly could be secured from any other Now the Booking Guide becomes a part of the regular issue of Motion Picture News itself.

DON'T CRY "WOLF!"

By William A. Johnston

A QUICK survey by New York branch banks of local stores, motor agencies, etc., indicates that October and November sales will, in most instances, exceed those of the same months in 1928.

The general policy upon the part of informed and responsible business men may be summed up as follows:

r.—If there can be any temporary business depression, it will be shortlived and due only to the silly and baseless pessimism of the usual army of people who talk only to hear themselves.

2.—That after this brief period, industry will swing forward for at least two years of the most solid prosperity this country has ever seen.

We pass the word along to the trade at large and especially to theatre men with the urgent suggestion that if they can put themselves into this sound and sensible frame of mind they utilize every possible means to make their people—their audiences—feel likewise.

There is going on at Washington right now the greatest business conference in the country's annals. It would not have happened had it not been for the stock market debacle. So we may point to this as one large blessing—and only one—that has actually followed the gambling game we have just lived through. The magnificent business resources of this great country will now combine to hasten and unify their their latest plans of expansion.

But the point for this motion picture business to consider is this: The newspapers of the country are doing yeoman—if only a correct—service to the country in spreading all the good and sensible news to the public at large.

The screens of the country reach more millions than the newspapers. Just what can they do?

Unfortunately, screen programs are made months in advance, not overnight as are newspapers. But the newsreels can do a lot—as undoubtedly they will—with pictures of the business and banking companies, holiday buying crowds, industrial activity, municipal and government building campaigns, and all that tells the real truth of a country marching ahead with its billions of wealth and its millions of workers with feet at last solidly on the ground. Theatre managers can talk and radiate—not over optimism nor weak optimism, but just the sane spirit that truly reflects this present situation. It is only, remember, the noisy minority that is buffaloed into the belief that hard times are ahead. These are the people who want to believe in distress.

There is an immediate demand, it is obvious, for cheerful entertainment. Laughs are wanted. So we are minded of the many excellent sound comedies that are available these days, not forgetting at all those delightfully funny cartoons that today in many a big house are getting a hand that puts so-called two dollar pictures in the shade. It is a fact that many a sound comedy today, not featured in theatre advertising, is putting over the show. All of which leads to the simple conclusion that good newspaper advertising these days will feature the stuff—long or short it matters not a bit—that gets the laughs. Try it, Mr. Theatre Manager, and we'll wager you'll keep it right up while the skies seem dark to some and while the pocketbook is doing its holiday shopping.

Last of all, we can stop whispering among ourselves a lot of unfounded gossip—pure imagination in most every instance about the fianances of our own industry. It's going right ahead—as is every other prosperous business—on its own level and well balanced keel. You can bank your last dollar on that.

It will interest our own trade to know how the leaders of other major industries look upon the recent stock market crisis and what they propose to do, under the circumstances, to solidify their own businesses.

They realize, evidently, that only a state of mind prevails; and they know from practical experience that the way to tackle a state of mind—quickly as well as efficiently—is with sincere and informative publicity. Only clear rays of light can chase the shadows out of dark corners.

Consequently they will advertise.

They are going to the retailer through the trade papers, telling him of and showing proofs of their advertising to the consumer; and at the same time urging and inspiring the retailer to put his own shoulder to the advertising wheel.

In their advertising to the consumer—through the newspapers—they are using additional and large appropriations.

This is not merely courage. It is good common sense. It is also following previous practices, under similar conditions, which secured the hoped for results.

It is time to go back to work—to hard and cheerful work—and to advertise.

An Insider's Outlook

SOMWHERE in that portion of our usually ineffectual mental machinery where thoughts are captured and filed away, it seems to us we heard this not so long ago:

That when Bill Fox astonished a film world accustomed to being astonished by purchase of control of Loew's, Inc., with M-G-M tagging along as husky infants will, two well known executives—habitat Southern California—threw over a couple of traces in their excitement. Their names, you will surmise if you haven't already, were Louis B. Mayer and Irving Thalberg.

They came East. They indulged in more than mild storming. Maybe they did some desk pounding—it's often done in this business. But when the flush of excitement died down, Fox asked this partnership of importance one question. The phraseology may be wrong, but the thought is correct. Here it is:

"Gentlemen, what do you think I paid $60,000,000 for?"

Of course, that was a rather conclusive argument, as you will concede. Likewise was it flattering to Mayer and Thalberg. That, too, is obvious. So back to the coast they betook themselves.

On or about the same time, when the fever ran high and statements wild, it was bruited about that William Randolph Hearst, who admits there is a lot of money in pictures, including some millions of his own, was understood to have declared that he would back Mayer and Thalberg in their own venture. Some said Hearst was ready to go to the extent of $100,000,000. Perhaps we are careless with our ciphers, but so the yarn ran.

Two Visitors Reach New York

Now. The other day Mayer arrived in New York, having left Los Angeles rather hurriedly. The next day, Hearst breezed into the city. Was it an accident? It could have been, hut it wasn't. There are some reasons to believe that the Eastward trek was deliberate, part of a plan involving a lightning-like change in major alignments such as this funny old business only could masticate without contracting indigestion.

From financial circles come reports that Hearst has been buying Loew stock in large gobs. Mayer has always had plenty, but he, too, is buying both furiously and rapidly. That's as far as financial circles report the inside.

The rest of the story is that Mayer and Hearst together are here in New York on a deal to buy Loew's, Inc., and M-G-M from Fox. Not as wild as it must sound, particularly when it is reported further—and again unsubstantiated—Fox is willing to sell.

There you have one angle.

And while the second hasn't the remotest connection with the first, it is, nevertheless, a fact, that in the same week and by way of Thanksgiving greetings to Fox, the Department of Justice files suit seeking to nullify his control of Loew's by ordering reversion of the majority stock to its original owners.

Match them up if you like. One story—unconfirmed—has it Mayer, Hearst et al are preparing to buy. The second—solid fact—orders Fox to sell, although only a trial will determine if this order can be enforced.

Two and two may still equal four. We don't mow what kind of mathematics you se.

Trusts And Big Business

And the other suit. A long complaint which, if you read carefully enough, informs you that the Warners—so the government claims—placed themselves in the trust division by assuming control of First National.

The significance of this dual thrust by the Department of Justice rests in the fact that out of the maze will probably come a definition which explains to this industry for future cogitation exactly where it stands.

We know this: Many limelight figures are anxious to know how far they may go, in what direction and with whom. The tendency of this industry, like all other major businesses in America, is toward commercial concentration. You may not like it, but that doesn't alter the facts one bit. Therefore, you should expect more mergers and up those alleys where the economics of the situation make them advisable.

This cannot be done if the Government fails to tell the industry where it must stop. But now come these double suits carrying with them the strong probability that they will mark the cleavage line between trustification and mere business expansion in this field.

U. S. Trust Suits Against Fox and Warners Slated for a Quick Trial

No Statements

Both Fox and Warners, cited in antitrust actions by the Government, are sitting tight. Neither company has any comment to make on the suits filed in New York on Wednesday. Their answers are returnable in twenty days.

Fox Flirting With Bancroft

Fox is reported flirting with George Bancroft whose contract with Paramount runs out a year hence. Bancroft, accompanied by his wife, returned from a brief European vacation about three weeks ago and since has been in New York seeing shows.

The Bancroft vogue abroad has grown tremendonsly in the last year. In Continental Europe, especially in middle Europe he is reported the higgest drawing eard of them all. In this country, Bancroft is holding box-office records in many cities.

Originally Bancroft went to the Coast for Fox but the studio did not see his value at that time and permitted him to go over to Paramount. Starring with "The Rough Riders' he hegan to make an impression on the public and with "Underworld" fairly swept the country like wildfire. Since then, he has been on the ascendancy.

The Fox flirtation is on, despite the fact that producers presumably have an agreement among themselves not to approach any player while he is under contract with another organization.

Aim To Divest Fox Of Loew Control And Warners Of First Nat'l—Actions Take Precedence On Calendar

Action of the Government against Fox Theatres Corp., Fox Film Corp., and William Fox to nullify stock control of Loew's, Inc., and against Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., the Stanley Company of America, and First National Pictures, Inc., to dissolve Warner control of the latter, filed on Wednesday, will take precedence over the rest of the calendar in the Federal Court, New York.

Big Chains Not After Small Theatres; Buying Now, But Will Drop 'Em Later

Acquisitions In Wholesale Now To Round Out National Circuits, But Profitless Houses Won't Be Kept

Small town theatre operations, now being annexed by national chains as part of their widespread expansion programs, are expected to be thrown back to either their original owners or turned loose on the open market as soon as the adjustments contingent upon such wholesale theatre acquisitions can be made.

The situation in exhibition today is identical with that prevalent in 1927, when producers and distributors, in their headlong fling toward higger and bigger chains, took over everything in sight, only to unload later when they discovered that this type of operation either could not be successfully handled from a distant base of operation, or was too unimportant from a profit angle to spend time on.

At the minnte, the theatre orgy is continuing without abatement, with Fox and Publix crossing swords more frequently than other major interests, while Warners bring up the rear as another important contender. Particularly does this apply to the West Coast, where the latter are about to become aggressively active in exhibition, although Albert Warner this week denied such was the case "at this time."

Theatre Fling A Merry One

The big chains, in many cases, are finding it necessary to take on many small theatres in order to nab the houses they are really after. When the final sifting process is completed, however, indications point to a policy of operation which has no place for the small theatre.

With practically every major circuit in the United States owned partially or in toto by producing interests, the campaign today is in the direction of complementary chains necessary to fill in gaps before national chains, in the true sense of the word, can be said to have developed. Circuits of this type usually embrace theatres in towns where the gross and, therefore, potential profit are not sufficiently pronounced to interest operators of far-flung chains.

Pollak Sells Stock In National Screen

Joseph Pollak, president of National Screen Service, Inc., and a well-known figure in New York film circles, has sold his interests in the company and resigned. Future plans are undetermined, except that Pollak will devote less time to business in the future.

Herman Robbins, at one time sales manager for Fox and at present an officer of National Sereen, becomes president and "Toby" Gruen, vice-president. Until now the latter was secretary.

Pollak, together with Akia Weinberg, organized National Screen Service, Inc., in 1920 since which time its business has grown to national proportions. The company has practically all producers under exclusive contract to supply it with material from which trailers are prepared.

Relief Fund After $10,000 By Dec. 25

With an objective of $10,000 by Christmas, "The Film Daily" has launched its third annual relief fund drive. The campaign, centering in the trade in New York, is for the purpose of alleviating distress among members of the film fraternity. To date, the fund has disbursed about $13,000.

The committee in charge which passes on all submitted cases and which will have the drive in charge for 1929-1930 includes:

Dr. A. H. Giannini, of the Bank of America: Al Lichtman, vice-president and general manager of distribution for United Artists; Jack Alicoate, editor of "The Film Daily"; Bruce Gallup, director of publicity and advertising for United Artists; William Brandt, general manager of Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, Inc., and "Red" Kann, editor of Motion Picture News.

Louis Sobol, columnist for the New York Graphic, relates the sad story of two youths who received a promise from the manager of John McCormack that the famous tenor would sing a song they had written, but had changed his mind when he discovered that in addressing the request they had spelled his name McCormick.

Perhaps they had intended to send it to John McCormick as a theme song for a Colleen Moore picture.

Boothby In High Post at Warners

Warren C. Boothby, long an executive at First National, is now handling all financing for the various Warner enterprises working closely with Harry M. Warner.

Before First National control passed to the Warners and during the period when the company's future was undetermined because of the widespread manner in which its voting stock was split up, Boothby is known to have done a splendid job in maintaining the company's lines of credit. When the various First National franchiseholders sold their stock to Warners at a price considerably more than they had paid for it, Boothby was thrown into direct contact with Warner officials who recognized at once his ability at corporate financing-

Second NEWS Survey Shows Theatres Unaffected by Stock Market Crash

Reisman Enthuses

Back from a sales swing which took him into practically all key cities, Phil Reisman, general sales manager of Pathe, bursting with a tale of optimism over current theatre business.

ism over current theatre business.

"There were no bad spots," he told Motion Picture News. "Of course, grosses vary with the timbre of the product. Where business is bad, the conditions is attributed to poor pictures. As a general observation, however, theatres are making more money than ever in history. Some showmen are losing out because they have permitted themselves to fall behind the times. This type of exhibitor, lacking in service and wide-awake showmanship, is naturally falling behind his more progressive competitor."

Reisman declares he noted a definite tendency toward two-reel comedies in sound.

Philly Unscathed By Stock Crumble

Philadelphia.—A check-up of the principal theatres in Philadelphia indicates that box-office receipts have not shown any appreciable falling off due to the recent stock market crash. While some doubt was expressed as to what the future might hold, the general feeling seems to be one of optimism on account of the great national drive for prosperity and the fact that some of Philadelphia's most important industries are running at increased capacity.

William Goldman, of the Warner-Stanley Company, stated that the volume of business in their theatres in Philadelphia and surrounding territory at present was most satisfactory and that no falling off attributable had been experienced at any of their theatres. He added, however, that the real test would come after the first of the year.

M. Goodman, of the Warner-Equity Circuit, asserted that no effects of the crash had been felt in their theatres. His circuit is launching a big advertising campaign, and prospects for the future are good.

The Palace stated that business at that theatre was good and that no effects of the crash had been experienced to date. As for the future, he feels that with a $16,000,000-building program about to be launched and with textile mills resuming work on a four-day-a-week basis, there is no cause for alarm.

One Or Two Bad Spots Reported, But Business Holds Up With Remarkable Strength Throughout Country

If it is true that "luxury lines" have suffered depression as a result of the crash in security values on the stock markets of the country, then motion pictures do not belong in that classification. Reports, from all sections, with one or two exceptions, indicate unabated good business at the box-office, in a second check-up conducted by MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Omaha Enjoys A Peak Business

Omaha.—Unaffected by the recent stock market tumble, this territory is enjoying the best season in years. Two downtown house records have fallen in the past few weeks.

Four neighborhood houses in the better residence districts report business has been slightly off since the market crash, but operators feel conditions will be back to normal by January 1. Other suburban theatres are doing fine business.

Outstate houses, in general, have reported satisfactory grosses in view of record crops this fall. The Paramount set a new record with "The Virginians," and the Orpheum did likewise with Ted Lewis on the stage and "The Girl From Woolworths" on the screen.

No Noticeable Trace Of Market On Spokane Trade

Spokane, Wash.—Picture houses here have not been noticeably affected by the market slump, but road shows and stock houses charging top prices have been hit hard.

Houston Averages High And Records Being Set

Houston, Tex.—Exhibitors here agree that the stock crashes have in no manner affected theatre business. Averages continue high and new box-ffice records are being set regularly.

San Francisco Theatre Business At Normalcy

San Francisco.—Theatres in this territory, as far as can be determined, are not feeling any box-office effects from the recent stock market crash.

Tampa Recovering, But Stocks Were Not Fault

Tampa.—Practically all of the theatres report a gradual improvement in business. So many things have happened during the past year that have had their effect on the box-office, that a little thing like the stock market crash was "small potatoes," as one exhibitor expressed it, and failed to make any noticeable impression on receipts here.

Continuance of the normal course of theatre business up to and including the current week, it is pointed out, can be taken as a reliable indicator that economies that large numbers of Americans will practice to offset billions in paper losses, are not to include abstenance from picture shows.

The following reports from key cities in widely scattered territories show how theatre business is holding up to expectations based on conditions which obtained prior to the market crash. It is worthy of note that while a reported slump of about 40 per cent prevails in the Minneapolis territory—and this is ascribed to the market—business there has been more or less spotty for sime time, off-weeks during the summer at that time being ascribed to general conditions in that city.

Minneapolis Off About 40 Per Cent; Blame Crash

Minneapolis—Business in this territory is off approximately 40 per cent, with matiness in large cities getting very little play. Downtown first runs are doing a good night business, but neighborhoods are not faring well. Survey of six small and medium-size towns indicated 50 per cent drop in last month. This is declared due to the stock market crash.

K. C. Downtowns O. K.; Subsequent Runs There Off

Kansas City.—Business conditions in this territory are normal. The de luxe suburban theatres are doing a good business, but sub-quent runs are suffering badly. Market conditions are not held responsible for this slump in the surburban subsequent run house.

Salt Lake City Houses Go Stronger Than Ever

Salt Lake City.—Picture theatres here doing a bigger business than ever, irrespective of the stock market crash.

Baltimore Box Offices Not Affected By Crash

Baltimore.—There appears to be no effect on theatre attendance here due to the market crash. If Baltimoreans were hit to any degree, the business at picture theatres does not seem to be affected.

Iowa Houses Close; St. Louis Traveling Stocks Not Blamed

Des Moines.-In Iowa the closing of twenty-five theatres in the last month is given various interpretations, but in no instances are the reverses of the stock market credited with affecting theatre business.

A number of exchanges which serve the smaller towns report that there are still many small towns on the fence which may be forced to close down this winter in addition to the already large number which closed this fall. The general unsettled conditions of the theatre business have been given as the reasons for this slump of business in smaller towns rather than general business conditions.

Conditions in general are in good shape in Iowa, and this is given as one of the reasons why theatre business shows an increase this year over last year and the year before by E. P. Smith, president of the Iowa group of the Allied States. Another reason, he says, is the fact that the exhibitors are getting straightened out on sound equipment. The smaller houses which have closed are the ones which have been doing an intermittent business, says Smith, and are those which are unable to purchase sound equipment. He says there are also many cases of theatres closing where the towns were over-seated. This reduction in number of theatres tends to make the business safer and saner, he feels.

Arthur Thiele, manager of the Des Moines Theatre Supply Company, states business is as usual, that the stock market has had no effect on the purchasing powers of Iowa exhibitors, and that the question of good sound equipment is still causing exhibitors difficulty. George Watson, manager of the Des Moines, reports business at his house is 10 per cent better than a year ago. Better pictures, good conditions in general account for this. He has heard no mention of the stock market as affecting the business here.

Albany Reports Business Big; No Stock Reaction

Albany .-- Not only are first runs showing absolutely no effects of the recent stock market crash but today, according to owners and managers, they are playing to the biggest business, in many instances, in their entire history. The smash in the market made no effect outside of a day or so and then it was probably due, not so much to a tightening of cash to be spent for amusement, but more likely to senrrying around on the part of those caught in an effort to secure additional eash to cover margin accounts. It is true that on that black Tuesday a couple of weeks ago, attendance figures took a tumble.

"We are doing the biggest business in our history," said Alec Sayles, general manager of the Buckley houses in Albany. "The crowds are standing each night at the Leland and Harmanus-Bleecker Hall and we can ask for no better business than we are doing at the present time. The present cold snap has brought a heavy increase during the last week and we expect banner business throughout the entire winter."

Toward New Mark

St. Louis,-With the local first run houses breaking new attendance records, and others holding winning attractions over for extra weeks in the face of the strongest kind of opposition, the stock market collapse apparently has had no definite effect on theatre business in this section of the country.

Unofficial estimates have been that some 75,000 St. Louisans were in the market when the bottom fell out, but to date there has been no reflection of market losses at the box offices of the local first run and neighborhood theatres.

Any decrease in receipts in the past several weeks may be charged to the absence of pit orchestras rather than to the market situation. St. Louis is one city of this country that has weathered safely every wave of adversity that has swept the country, local opinion has it.

Harrisburg Feels Effects Of Stock Market Tumble

Harrisburg, Pa.-Survey of the leading first run theatres of Harrisburg, Pa., shows that in the aggregate there is still a slight decrease in attendance due probably to the effect of the recent stock slump on the spending power of the community. both the Colonial and Victoria, there was a small falling off in attendance when securities first declined, but the situation has improved since then. It is probable that, in view of the fact that the talkies in the first three quarters of the year had been sending business above the corresponding period of the previous year, the present box office receipts would have been larger than in the last quarter of 1928 if there bad been no Wall Street panic.

The stock market slump appears now to be holding down attendance at the State. This is a season when the business there usually is exceptionally good, but it is decidedly more difficult to keep the house well filled than ordinarily at this time of year.

A statement issued by Donald Ross, of Loew's Regent, indicates that the theatre probably suffered less from the drop in the stock market than any other first run house in Harrisburg.

picture. Mediocre pictures show fair box office receipts, but given the right pictures, the public is just as loyal in their support as if Wall Street had not occupied headlines for the past three weeks.

Neighborhood houses report the same condition. Good pictures bring the crowds and are continuing to bring the crowds, regardless of the market. The Loew downtown and neighborhood houses report their business has not been affected at all by the market conditions. Unemployment of which there is little here today, is the only thing, according to the Loew offices, which has a direct bearing upon the receipts, other than good pictures. Neighborhood circuit owners also agree that their husiness is in as wholesome a condition as it was prior to the tumble in stocks.

Atlanta Tightens Its Pocketbooks

Atlanta.-Although the collapse of the bull market showed no immediate reaction in theatre box-offices here, grosses for the past two weeks have dropped to an extent that indicates a general tightening on spending.

The first week of falling grosses might have been attributed to markedly unfavorable weather conditions, for throughout the entire section there was continuous heavy rainfall for five days and five nights. But last week brought a season of fair weather with only one day of rain and sleet to mar the week-and business generally fell below the preceding week.

In the opinion of leading exhibitors, the drop is the beginning of a definite reaction to the market slump. They point out that while a relatively small percentage of the people in any given community may have lost money in the crash, the depression which follows touches people who never had a dollar invested in stocks.

Despite efforts of the administration to restore confidence and spread the propaganda of prosperity the masses read in the behavior of Wall Street the first signs of a financial panie.

Providence Grosses Soar: Theatres There Prosperous

Providence.-Queried as to the effect of the recent stock erash on Providence boxoffices, exhibitors here are unanimous in asserting that grosses have been unusually satisfactory.

J. P. McCarthy, of Loew's State, Sol Brannig, of the Majestic, Matt Reilly, of the Victory, and Edward Reed, of the Strand, managers of the 'big four' here, declare that the market slump seemed to have no effect on the pocketbooks of their patrons.

The Victory held "Rio Rita" over for three weeks, "The Cock-Eyed World" being the only other picture to achieve this

"Even if some of our patrons are hit by the crash they seem to have sufficient small change to attend regularly," declares Mc-Carthy. The Majestic enjoyed one of its biggest grosses of the season with "Disraili'' and the Strand reported a $13,000 total with "Welcome Danger." The average for this house is around $10,000.

The way in which business held up at Providence theatres is considered to be remarkable in view of the fact that newspapers have been playing up financial diffi-

Consolidated net of $752,031 is reported for the eight months, ended Aug. 31, after Federal taxes, depreciation, amortization, minority interest and a share of losses of affiliated units. Current assets are $2,374,367 and current liabilities $11,369,093, leaving net current liabilities of $8,994,726.

Current assets on June 29 totaled $30,-146,235 and current liabilities $9,268,859, comparing with $28,638,459 and $6,082,996, on December 29, 1928.

RKO To Replace Des Moines House With New Structure

Des Moines.—RKO's plans for a new $1,00,000 theatre here, seating 1,800, mark the third de luxe house to be built by the chain in this territory within two years. A new house at Omaha is a 3,500-seater and cost $1,800,000, while the RKO Sioux City theatre, recently completed, cost upward of $1,000,000 and seats more than 3,000.

The new local theatre will be erected on present site of the Eighth St. house.

New, Baltimore May Go Over To R-K-O Circuit

Baltimore.—The New, which has been doing excellent business the past several months and is regarded as one of the most profitable downtown houses in the city, may be taken over by R-K-O, if the negotiations now under way with Morris A. Mechanic are completed.

Hays To Represent Motion Pictures At U. S. Commerce Chamber Conference To Offset Stock Debacle

Washington.—The motion picture industry will play a prominent part in the considerations of the conference to be held December 5 by the United States Chamber of Commerce, at which plans will be made to carry out President Hoover's request that business gird itself for a fight to stave off the depression which threatens to follow the recent stock market liquidation.

Tacoma Hurt By Water Shortage

Tacoma.—Theatres have been asked to keep dark all electric sign displays between 5 and 7 P.M. in an effort to aid homes in obtaining juice for cooking and early evening needs, following failure of the city's hydroelectric plants to function properly because of a water shortage. The town is now suffering from the longest dry-weather spell known in these parts. It has directly resulted in closing, or curtailing work in many factories and plants.

Theatres readily fell in line with request of the numicipality. At present, city authorities are endeavoring to seeme the U. S. airplane earrier, Lexington, lying in nearby waters, to hook-in and augment service, giving Seattle relief as well. Her great capacity would immediately alleviate conditions.

Iowa Theatres Face Smallpox Epidemic

Des Moines.—Cases of smallpox have developed in Iowa towns to an alarming extent and the public has been urged through newspapers to undergo vaccinations. The Rex at Iowa Falls, owned and operated by W. A. Middleton, has closed during the smallpox quarantine there. About a dozen eases have been reported in Des Moines.

Invitation lists are now being prepared by the Chamber, but so far only a small number of names have been compiled. It is definitely known, however, that the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America will be invited.

Will H. Hays, Motion Picture News learns, will represent the industry, and on its behalf place its facilities at the disposal of the conference.

The motion picture industry did not figure in the economic conference called by President Hoover to discuss methods of maintaining the public's confidence in business. Motion Picture News suggested to the President that the inclusion of this business as a powerful agency for the moulding of public opinion might be helpful, but the reply from the White House published last week did not divulge the President's reaction.

The fact that the industry figures importantly in the plans of the United States Chamber of Commerce, plus the additional fact that the invitation followed so quickly on the heels of the correspondence between the White House and this publication may or may not carry special significance.

Composers' Society Wins Texas Copyright Action

El Paso, Tex.—Judgment for alleged infringements on copyright music as controlled by the American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers, was rendered in Federal Court against F. G. Alderete, owner of the Aleazar.

"Hit The Deck" Hits Bull's Eye

Hollywood.—RKO has another sure-fire money attraction in "Hit The Deck." The celluloid version of Vincent Youman's tuneful musical comedy contains plenty of entertainment with dance ensembles, choruses and all of the popular numbers of the show spotted frequently throughout a rather light story.

There is eye entertainment in the color sequences aboard the battleship set and smart comedy lines have by no means been neglected.

Luther Reed adapted and directed as he did with "Rio Rita." His work is fine. Jack Oakie scores a decided hit in the lead with Polly Walker doing excellent work. Reed presents the "Hallelujah" number, one of the high spots of the stage version, admirably. It is easily one of the big moments of the picture, even surpassing the battleship dance and chorus ensembles done in color.

"Hit The Deck" will be received generously in big cities and small towns. It is certain to do fine business wherever shown.

Subsequent Runs Suffer As Result Of Halt in Arbitration Machinery

First Runs Switching Bookings At Will, Thereby Adding Chaos To Theatre Operation—All Boards Quiescent

A complete upset of playing time confronts the industry as a result of a decision of the Hays organization to suspend arbitration until December 15.

Play dates are not involved, since theatres must continue to book in pictures if they are to remain open, but the letdown in the machinery removes the distributors' check on first runs. As a result, bookings are being switched by de luxe operations in a manner which best fits their needs. Subsequent runs which following in after first run protection is rounded out are having considerable difficulty in obtaining the product they have bought at the time when they thought they would get it.

On the other hand, spot bookings have taken a decided impetus forward, since this is the only recourse available in the present muddled situation.

Suspension of arbitration was determined upon last Saturday of the thirty-three Film Boards of Trade in the United States advised by telegraph of the decision. The Hays organization sees in the step an object lesson to opponents of arbitration and is understood to feel that the rapidly-mounting disorganization in the exhibition system will demonstrate for all time the merits of the system even in its present form which is admittedly far removed from being the last word.

Minneapolis Board Meeting Is Indefinitely Postponed

Minneapolis.—There is no arbitration here. The last attempt at arbitrating occurred a month ago, when no exhibitors could be induced to serve on "outlaw board," and the meeting was postponed indefinitely. Board officers and the Film Board secretary refuse to make any statements, but both know there will be no meeting at least until after a final Thacher decision or the outcome of conference planned between Will H. Hays and Allied.

Voluntary Arbitration In St. Louis During Shutdown

St. Louis.—The pending decision of Judge Thacher on the legality of arbitration has not changed the status of the voluntary board of arbitration set up by the Film Board of Trade and the M.P.T.O. of Eastern Missonri and Southern Illinois. The St. Louis district has always been staunch in its support of arbitration as a means of settling disputes and indications are the system that has worked out satisfactorily here will be maintained.

Cases Await Docketing As Cleveland Board Stays Idle

Cleveland.—The Arbitration Board here has eeased functioning with 42 cases on docket and 50 not yet docketed. Claims will continue to be filed by both exhibitors and distributors pending a final decision.

Filing Claims In Des Moines, But No Action

Des Moines.—Iowa exhibitors have postponed arbitration until after the first of the year, says E. P. Smith, president of the Iowa group of the Allied States, pending a deeree from Judge Thacher. The decision was made following instructions sent by Gabriel Harris of the Hays organization to the Iowa group of exhibitors via the secretary of the Des Moines Film Board.

E. J. Tilton, president of the Des Moines Film Board, states that there will be no meeting of the board for a month nor any credit meetings. Claims may be filed by the exchanges, but there will be no service on them for some time.

During the fall, since the unanimous decision of the exhibitor group to suspend arbitration following their meeting in August, the arbitration board continued to meet, by general consent of exchange men and exhibitors. However, no awards were made except those favoring the exhibitors and those which were made against closed houses. Exhibitors have continued to serve as half of the members of the Film Board.

Albany.—All arbitration cases arising in this territory will be held in status quo until ways and means have been worked out to make the system acceptable to the Government.

While the Albany board did not immediately suspend arbitration following the Thacher opinion, it will now take no further action until matters straighten themselves out in a legal way. Bonnie Long, secretary of the board, states present cases will be picked up when a satisfactory formula is reached.

Contempt Of Court Kept Exhibitors Off L. A. Board

Los Angeles.—The danger of contempt of court by serving in arbitration in view of the Thacher decision would have kept exhibitors in this territory off the board even if the Hays office had not determined to suspend proceedings until a decree is handed down by the Federal court.

Both distributors and exhibitors now express themselves willing to wait for the decision of the Government. As in other key eities, the machinery has been completely halted.

Off Until Jan. 1

Omaha. — Pending a decision from Judge Thacher, arbitration here has been suspended until Jan. 1. Approximately 60 cases are on file. Only one November meeting of the board was held, following which the members voted to postpone all arbitration.

S.E. On Edge Over Arbitration System

Atlanta.—Suspension of arbitration in this territory finds exhibitors ready to proceed fairly and without taking any undue advantages. They are, nowever, in no mood to be put under pressure. Many who remained quiescent while various legal lights pointed out unfair provisions in the standard contract now see justification in the knowledge that so eminent a legal authority as Federal Judge Thacher has found the contract and arbitration thereunder illegal.

The local halt was called suddenly on Saturday just three days before the Joint Board of Arbitration was to have met in regular meeting. Notices of the meeting were sent by E. L. Cole, of the Film Board, to exhibitors against whom eases were pending and to those who had filed claims against distributors.

On Saturday a telegram from New York headquarters of the Film Board of Trade instructed Cole that arbitration would be suspended pending the deeree from Judge Thacher's decision.

In a letter advising exhibitors that no meeting of the Board of Arbitration would be held, L. B. Harrell, of the Southeastern Theatre Owners' Association, said, in part:

"There is no reason for this to disrupt the motion picture business, and I would suggest that you immediately put the full facts of your claim in my hands to handle for you, and let us see if we cannot work out a settlement satisfactory to yourself and the exchange concerned. Until something can be done about this contract, I would suggest that you carry on as businesslike as you can, remembering that this office will be glad to assist you and advise you in all matters.

The suspension of arbitration occupied considerable discussion at the regular monthly meeting of the Directors of the Southeastern Theatre (winers Association, The burning question being, "What recourse has the exhibitor who has filed a claim against the distributor? Must he await the action of the Film Board of Trade and mark time indefinitely?"

No Arbitration In K. C. Until First Of January

Kansas City.—The board of arhitration in Kansas City will not convene until after the first of the year, according to the M.P. T.O. of Kansas and Western Missouri. The suspension of meetings will he in effect until after Judge Thacher issues his expected decree.

The last scheduled meeting of the board was cancelled by the mutual consent of the exhibitors' association and the Film Board of Trade.

Allied Scheme for Federal Parley On Arbitration Put on the Shelf

Mum In Philly

Philadelphia.—A blanket of silence has descended on Philadelphia's Film Row insofar as arbitration is concerned. The machinery is in suspended animation, as reported, and nobody is doing any talking. New York orders are responsible.

Texas Drafts New Arbitration Plan

Dallas .- A new arbitration plan designed to supplant the old agreement declared illegal by Judge Thacher, was evolved by exhibitors at the annual convention of the M.P.T.O. of Texas at the Adolphus Hotel.

This plan, outlined in a resolution, provides for voluntary agreement and suggests an enforcement plan providing that in case a member of either side fails to abide by their ruling, the board may refuse to hear that member should he have occasion to bring a case before it later.

Col. H. A. Cole, who was re-elected president, stated that the results of Gov. Moody's vetoe of Sunday operation was deplorable and predicted the legalizing of Sunday shows in the next session of the legislature in 1931. Reviewing accomplishments of the past year, Cole pointed out that the searcity of Westerns on the market a year ago had been overcome, that 52 of this type of film have been negotiated for, and that the outlook for a plentiful supply for next year was good.

In detailing formation of Allied, he declared that it took a visit to the Department of Justice by Abram F. Myers to get sound film for all equipment which could reproduce fairly well and that shortly thereafter companies working with film recording only began to transfer to discs as well, thus giving a supply of film to smaller exhibitors who were forced to install the best equipment they could get for the limited investment they could make. The association voted to change the organization name from M.P.T.O.T. to Allied Theatre Owners

Following are the officers elected: H. A. Cole, president, reelection; Ruben Freis, first vice-president; A. W. Lilly, secretary-treasurer; and A. V. Wade, H. T. Hodge, and Henry Sparks, second vice presidents. New directors include: Lance Davis, John Bonner, and Will Dorbrandt.

Protection Solution Sought In Northwest

Minneapolis.-Northwest Theatre Owners, an Allied affiliation, is working out details for establishment of a zoning and protection committee, to be appointed by Al Steffes to act with a similar committee representing distributors.

Northwest, which has been active in distribution via its own exchanges, will also operate a poster exchange.

Houston Exhibs Thoroughly In Accord On Arbitration

Houston, Tex.-Exhibitors here are described as "heartily agreed in favor of arbitration." "It would be misleading to say they have or have not terminated arbitration since there are no cases to arbitrate. Complaints are few and of minor nature, and are being settled amicably by exhibitors and distributor representatives," one opinion here has it. Houston exhibitors are in harmony with the Dallas exchanges. Will Horwitz, the only independent here, terms arbitration differences a "mountain made from a molehill.'

Pathe To Make Series Of Musical Productions

Pathe is going to make a series of musical productions. As yet this company has not entered that particular field of sound production, while practically all of other producers have. Joseph Santley, well-known musical comedy star who has directed a number of short musical productions for Paramount, has been placed under contract by Pathe and will have sole charge of the musical end of production. He is to leave for the coast in about three weeks to start work on the first.

and general counsel of the organization, and it may well be that a decision may later be reached to seek open negotiations between the exhibitors and distributors under the eyes of the Government. This decision, it is presumed, will depend largely upon the results of a thorough study of the whole situation, with a view of determining whether the interests of the exhibitors can be best conserved by negotiation or by retaining a free hand to attack any new contract which might be devised if it seems

It is easily possible that the olive branch dangled before Allied by the Hays group and the M. P. T. O. A. and its possible outcome may have a hearing on the current attitude of indecision

In view of the situation, Allied States officials are refraining from any comment as to possible action, but it is made clear that at the present time no action is contemplated.

New Machine-Less Color Film Claimed

Philadelphia.--A local group has secured control of the new Wolfe-Heide photochemical color process, which it is claimed will revolutionize making of color films as well as pictures made by commercial and amateur photographers. No mechanical devices of any kind are required, entire secret of the method being in the emulsion coating. It is also claimed that the process is less expensive and involves less time and labor than any known

Queer Booking Conflict

Myers To Discuss Exhibitor Accord With Hays Next Week

Abram F. Myers, president of Allied States Association, and Charles C. Pettijohn, general counsel for the Hays organization, and authorized spokesman for the affiliated theatres of the nation, are slated to meet in New York on Tuesday to discuss the possibility launched at Columbus of ending exhibitor organization strife. The confab is expected to consider a merger between Allied and the M. P. T.

O. A. with a complete burial of the hatchet. A proposal to make M. A. Lightman, at present head of the M.P.T.O.A. president, with Abram F. Myers general counsel under long-term contract has been discussed privately, but whether or not Myers will be amenable to such a plan remains to he seen.

The committee of fifteen which will take charge of the deliberations is assuming shape. For the affiliated theatre interests, Will H. Hays is to appoint a group of five. Sam Katz of Publix, E. A. Schiller of Loew's, Spyros Skouras of Warners and John Zanft of Fox are certain to be included. In the meantime, Lightman has been at work lining up his five and Myers, an identical number representing Allied. This latter aggregation will in all likelihood include W. A. Steffes of Minnesota, H. M. Richey of Michigan and H. A. Cole of Texas.

Committee Of 116 To Work Out Ohio Tax Revision

Columbus.—P. J. Wood represents Ohio theatre interests on a committee of 116, appointed by Gov. Myers Cooper to work out details for changing the present uniform taxation system now practiced. Super Features To Handle Ufa Silents

With a court suit between Ufa Eastern Distributors, Inc., and Ufa Films, Inc., settled out of court, distribution of Ufa silents is expected to be confined to Super Features, Inc., a new company which replaces Ufa Eastern. Emil Jannings is now making a feature in German and English in Ufa's studio at Neubabelsberg.

Milton J. Kolb, understood to be representing Schreiher, Meyers and Bucher, law firm behind Ufa Eastern, will run Super-Features. David Brill has retired to develop a new company with an exeentive of importance formerly attached to one of the producing-distributing organizations. Ufa's settlement with Brill's former company, it is understood, gives Super a cash sum and rights to sell 62 old Ufas, including "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" and "Secrets of the Soul" out of Boston, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Pittsburgh and New York exchanges.

Ludwig Klitsch, managing director of Vfa of Berlin, who is now in New York, aided in bringing about the settlement.

Ontario Theatres 35 Per Cent Wired

Toronto.—One hundred and thirty-eight theatres, or 35.4 per cent of Ontario's total, are now wired for sound. While the percentage may seem low, seats in wired houses total 130,499, or 54.2 per cent of the total. These figures have just been compiled by the Toronto Film Board of Trade.

Toronto has 98 theatres, with a capacity of 75,999. Of these, 59, representing 55,214 seats, are wired, or 60.2 per cent of the theatres, while 72.6 per cent of the seats have audible sereens. Kelley Wins Atlanta Conspiracy Action

Atlanta—Settlement out of court of the suit brought by Paul V. Kelley, who operated a theatre at Ashburn, against Atlanta Film Board, and its members, has been made. Kelley is understood to have received $15,000 cash, with the defendants agreeing also to continue serving him pictures.

Suit was brought in the U. S. district court about two years ago and grew out of an arbitration award against the exhibitor, who had been given seven days in which to comply with the decision of the arhitration board. When he failed to meet the award, he was denied further service, according to his allegations, and then entered suit claiming defendants had conspired to force him to accept the board's award.

Ideas And Chops

Some say that it is hard to get anything into the head of a production exocutive. Wilson Mizner, international wit and playwright, went to Hollywood with the idea that he was going to write things worthwhile for the screen. He tried a couple of lots without great success then went into the restaurant business and is making a tremendous hit. The manner in which Mizner sums up the situation in Hollywood is this:

"I'm a success running a hash joint hecause it is easier to stick a chop into their heads than an idea."

Stock To Finance Art House Chain

A national chain of art theatres is planned by Symon Gould, who now operates the Film Guild Cinema on West 8th St., New York. The initial step is a stock flotation of $100,000 which is being offered directly to patrons of the Film Guild.

A new company to take over the Film Guild is part of the plan. Those who frequent the theatre are being offered stock at $10 a share for the 7 per cent preferred, which also earries with it a bonus of a $10 book of tiekets to the theatre. To any purchaser of five $10 shares a share of the common is given as an additional bonus to $50 in tiekets.

Gould says his plan is to immediately take two other theatres in New York, one in upper Manhattan and another in the Flathush section of Brooklyn, with these as the beginning start to develop a chain of the little houses in principal cities. He sets forth that the profits on the three houses should be sufficient to carry out the contemplated extension.

As an added bait it is set forth that stockholders will have the opportunity to see uncensored films. Gould doesn't offer any explanation as to what he means.

Calls Foreign Language Bar Gravest Problem in American Export History

Presents Unusual Difficulties, But Good Judgment Can Surmount It, George R. Canty Believes

The American industry, long dependent upon its foreign markets for approximately 40 per cent of the world's gross, is face to face with its gravest problemthe language barrier in sound pictures. Yet the difficulty can be solved if judicious action is taken, according to George R. Canty, American Trade Commissioner in Europe, and special observer on film developments for the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Commerce.

"The American industry should not postpone the evil day of believing that the sound film is international," Canty declared in an interview with a Motion Picture News reporter. The silent film was international. It needed merely a translation of titles to meet the demands of any country of the world. But the sound film is another thing. If it has completely revolutionized the industry and even if present revenues are beyond the realms of avarice, let it not be forgotten that now is the time to give deliberate thought to foreign possibilities for, as only a year ago, those possibilities may in a very few years represent the difference between profit and loss.

"The change-over from silent to sound films has been immeasurably more drastic in Europe than is appreciated by the American industry. Nineteen twenty-eight saw European producers reach their peak in silent film output and production cost, after recourse to every possible means, while America was ingeniously calling the world's attention to the new and better form of entertainment. This sudden departure paralyzed Europe's chances of amortizing its 1928 silent product, since first and second-run European exhibitors, quick to see the remarkable possibilities of sound, commenced to equip their theatres with American reproduction equipment. The demand, therefore, was for sound product, and the European product was, therefore, not only automatically barred from the American whose rentals were infinitesimal."

"Silent film proponents were adamant, however, and progress in the new scheme of things was slow. Great Britain, chiefly because no language difficulties presented themselves, quickly followed the American lead, and silent film programs gradually disappeared from all leading houses despite an interchangeability war that aroused every leader in the industry. Continental Europe, on the other hand, showed an opposite trend, and clung tenatiously to the old-time system.

"It was aided, to be sure, by the quota dilemma in France from March to September, when our American recording or reproducing sets were sold and by the patent situation in Germany, where since early summer it has ben impossible to install American sound equipment on account of a court injunction. Other Continental countries, either through a credit shortage, lack of confidence in the future of the sound film, or a general complication arising from the suddeness of the sound innovation, have followed cautious lines. Today, therefore, the European market barring Great Britain has made surprisingly little progress, even though the better minds are outspoken in their conviction that silent film entertainment is following in the wake of the wooden hattelship.

"The American judgstry is face to face with its better minds are outspoken in their conviction that silent film entertainment is following in the wake of the wooden battelship.

"The American industry is face to face with its gravest foreign problem—the language difficulty. Yet I have no fear for the future if our producers will hearken to the suggestion that superior quality in sound films, and not haphazard attempts to supply play dates for quick returns, is the answer. It took us years of distribution effort abroad to place the American silent film on a pinnacle which was beyond the reach of our competitors, and by this I mean particularly that organized distribution, the careful selection of product for each market, and, obviously, the employment of trained and experienced manpower accomplished most of this.

"Now, foreign distribution policy will have to be rewritten. Deeper study than ever before will have to be applied to meet the demands of our foreign customers and to meet future competition. The changed economics will kill once and for all the old charge that we have glutted markets with our product to the detriment of the native industry, if only he-aves that portion of our annual output suitable to fields afar will be considerably smaller under sound film conditions.

"Our foreign exchanges will consequently have fewerfilms to distribute, but these, from all signs to date, will play longer and more Incrative play dates. There will be fewer weak sister feature films distributed than heretofore, films which were marketed in all probability at a loss and merely to absorb playing time in the American stringele for company supremacy.

"There is little difference in the interest of sound film in Great Britain from America. With entertainment tastes so similar, it may be taken for granted that the sound film is there to stay. Local production, while not overly successful to date, points to increasing popularity, especially with the British quota requiring a certain number of productions annually for the next seven or eight years and the sincerity with which British producers are facing their task. American talkies have tremendous appeal, and should along with the British output, completely dominate the situation. German and French product have far to go to regain their foothold of last year.

"American revenues from Great Britain, where cur sound, programs proved amazingly popular, jumped by leaps and bounds over previous years, and a similar situation resulted from our presentation in other English-speaking foreign markets. This was fortunate, inasmuch as our export departments, grossing as never before, were enabled to absorb lessened revenues from Continental Europe, and to enter into a period of experimentation with film supply of foreign-speaking countries before a natural economic level substituted for what is generally believed to be an inflated state of affairs in Great Britain and its dominions.

"France, just recovering from the depression resulting from the quota dilemma, may be expected to make rapid progress in the production of films in its native tongue. These should prove popular, but whether producers will weather the storm of production cost, what with the restricted dilemma, may be expected to make rapid progress in the production of films in its native tongue in

Nat'l Action To End Film Piracy

A means of eurling film piracy is seen by J. H. Hoffberg in a permanent injunetion obtained in the Supreme Court of the State of New York, New York County, by him and others, against Guaranteed Pietures, Inc., for alleged illegal distribution of certain feature pictures listed by the plaintiffs. The court orders that all action of distribution by the defendents be restrained during the pendency of action, and until entry of final judgment is made. Hoffberg and his associates, British and Continental Trading Co., Inc., and Gotham Pictures (Lumas) have banded into an association to reduce alleged pirating operations to a minimum, Hoffberg stated.

Canty Sees A Dual European Market

Continental Europe for the next two years may be divided into two classifications: those countries requiring dialogue in their native tongue and those whose revenue possibilities make native-language talkers economically unsound in the opinion of George R. Canty, trade commissioner in Europe for the Motion Picture

Division of the Department of Commerce.

In the first category, Canty places such countries as Germany, Austria, Hungary, France, Belgium, Spain, Italy and possibly Switzerland where German, Spanish, French and Italian are the prevailing languages and where returns might warrant the cost. In the second category, he lists Scandinavia, the Balkans, Poland, Czechostovakia, the Baltic States, Greece, Turkey and Holland.

These countries, too small in themselves to shoulder the expense involved in supplying dialogue in their native languages, may through proper exploitation support talkers with dialogue in the second tongue as, for instance, German or English for Scandinavia; German for the Baltic States, Poland,

Czecho and the Balkans; English or German for Holland and French for Greece and Turkey.

"Much difficulty will be avoided, of course, if the public of these so-called second-category countries develop a taste of our combination features of song, dance and dialogue," states Canty. "Then the superimposition of titles on the screen in the native tongue will help considerably."

Trade Withdraws From German Field Due to Warner-W.E. and Patent Scraps

20 Yearly Planned By Talker Combine

London.—Twenty features yearly are scheduled by the newly-formed combination headed by I. W. and M. A. Schlesinger and General Talking Pictures Corp.

Present plans of the Schlesinger interests, which have been opposing Western Electric in the European sound field, provide for production of multilingual product in England, Germany, and France, through the new $5,000,000 Associated Sound Film Industries, Ltd., now established at Wembley, and headed by Dr. Rudolf Becker.

A central distribution unit will be organized immediately to handle the product, to be produced by the combined interests which include several smaller American sound companies, in addition to the European affiliations.

W. E. Wins Point In Legal Skirmish With Klangfilm

Budapest.—The Upper Court of Hungary has lifted the seizure on the Royal Apollo, in which a Western Electric sound system had been installed, and ordered return of the bond which had been put up.

Decision marks another defeat for Klangfilm Tobis, which had previously been denied an injunction for alleged patent infringements by W. E. equipment in Hungary.

With the Warners completely dominating the sound picture situation in Germany, American distributors, shut out of that country by the patent war between Western Electric and Klangfilm-Tobis, will withdraw from the German market.

The German sound group, a combination of five European systems, has so far successfully licked Western Electric in its attempts to sell and install its equipment

Johnson To Australia

Millard Johnson, American representative of Australasian Films, Ltd., is en route to Melbourne following news of the death of his brother-in-law, W. A. Washington.—The engagement of Olga Crandall to Dr. William Thompson Burch is announced by Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Crandall. in Germany. The latter is attempting, via the legal route, to win its point, and has, it is understood, made it mandatory upon its licensed companies in this country to stay out of Germany pending a settlement.

Warner-W. E. At Odds

The Warners, on the other hand, are in an open fight with Western Electric, and have, as a consequence, ignored W. E.'s decision, with the result their pictures are the only American sound films to be shown in Germany. Their novelty, plus the fact that German studios are still struggling with sound production, has given this product a complete jump on the rest of the American field. Therefore, the Warners are cleaning up.

Western Electric will not permit its licensed members, including Paramount, Mr-G-M, United Artists, Fox, Columbia, Universal and others, to exhibit sound pictures over the Klangfilm-Tobis equipment. These companies, therefore, can't break into the German market, yet they have to sit back while a strong competitor skims that market of its cream.

A number of the companies are understood to have brought pressure to hear on Western Electric, with decision to withdraw the eventual result. The Hays organization has been the scene of several meetings at which were present the foreign sales managers of member companies.

Speculation Over Warners

Several distributors are curious to learn if the Warners, by virtue of their original contract with Western Electric, hold special privileges covering a situation such as the one current in Germany. Others incline toward the opinion that the Warners are operating deliberately and in direct opposition to W. E., in view of the difficulties rampant between both organizations. The Warner-W. E. differences have been the subject of arbitration for some time, and are to be resumed by both groups in a few days.

In the meantime Ludwig Klitsch, managing director of the Ufa, which is controlled by Alfred Hugenberg, head of the German Nationalist party, and a factor with the German Government, is in New York. In several quarters it is expected he will use his influence to straighten out the sound situation, thereby permitting American companies to function in Germany, and, in turn, bring American talkers to the German theatregoer.

Garbo And Bow Neck And Neck In B'way Race; Both Hold Over

Those ever-loving gals, Greta and Clara, had it out in a race on Broadway last week. Greta in a silent film, "The Kiss," and Clara in a talkie, "The Saturday They finished heads apart at the box-office, but in all fairness it must be said that Greta scored a moral, or possibly immoral, victory, for she at least stood on her own, while Clara had Rudy Vallee in person at the Paramount to assist in tilting the box-office figure. When the final returns were in the figures were $84,100 for "The Saturday Night Kid" at the Paramount, and $82,932 for "The Kiss" at the Capitol. Both pictures were held over for a second week.

A surprise on the street was the holding over for a third week of Mary Nolan in "The Shanghai Lady" at the Colony. The first week brought $16,489 and the second

Paul Muni's "Seven Faces" at the Roxy did fairly well with $101,263, which is nothing startling for that house.

"Young Nowheres" at the Strand with Richard Barthelmess as the star did a corking week, getting $37,497.50, while "Blackmail" at the Cameo pulled $5,432.

In the grind runs "The Trespasser" is going like a house afire. It looks as if the picture will pull $250,000 on a six-week run at the Rialto. Last week, the third of the rnn, was $41,900, giving the picture a total of $158,400 to date. Harold Lloyd in "Welcome Danger' drew $27,300 in his fifth week, giving him a total of $194,300 on the

"Show Of Shows" A Hit

The outstanding hit among the new arrivals in the extended rnns is "The Show of Shows," which replaced "Gold Diggers" at the Winter Garden. It opened with a smash; the notices were great and the box-office returns on three and a half days $19,229.50, which speaks for itself. "Disraeli," another Warner production, got the second top money on the street with $23,240.50 for a full week, the eighth of its run. "The Love Parade" started big with $12,200 in five days.

Of the remainder of the list, "Paris" at the Central was the only other that showed life, getting $13,868, while "Condemned" at the Selwyn played to $13,972. The others were off. "The Hollywood Revne," in its fourteenth week at the Astor, slipped to $13,370; "Rio Rita," at the Carroll, got $12,789; "Song of Love," at the Cohan, $10,431; "Sunny Side Up," at the Gaiety, $10,712, and "Woman to Woman," at the Globe, finished its second and final week with $6,171. Rudy Vallee's "Vagabond Lover" came into that house on Tuesday.

Lloyd Film Big In Los Angeles

Los Angeles.—"Welcome Danger" was the big gun in Hollywood the past week, beating the honse record of the Paramount by $3,000 and grossing $42,000 for a rating of 164 per cent. The film is undoubtedly here for a three weeks' stay. "Rio Rita," after its first week at the Carthay Circle at $19,250, on a 154 per cent rating, is building nicely. "The Trespasser," at the U. A., with $21,500, 159 per cent, and Warners Hollywood with 'Disraeli,' $22,400, at 160 per cent, are both holding steadily in their third week.

Local popularity of Colleen Moore and Billie Dove with "Footlights and Fools" and "Painted Angel," respectively, held up at Warners Downtown and the RKO. The former got $21,500, for 143 per cent, the latter, $18,500, for 116 per cent.

Other grosses for the week included Granman's Chinese with "Snnnyside Up" at $15,150, or 95 per cent, Fox' Criterion with "Dynamite" at $8,700, or 87 per cent; Fox' Palace with "Flight" at $8,500, or 94 per cent; and Grauman's Egyptian with "Saturday Night Kid" at $9,900, or a rating of 125 per cent. Carl Laemmle

Twenty years a producer and still a formidable figure in the thick of the competitive turmoil that dots the course of motion pictures. A lovable man, admired and respected wherever films are known and shown. An industry leader and a pioneer among film pioneers.

"Uncle Carl" Of The Films

By William A. Johnston

A FEW weeks ago the writer sat with Carl Laemmle in a diminutive nook at the far end of a massive set and saw the filming of the largest scene perhaps that motion pictures—sound or silent—have boasted of to date.

It was the storming of the Tuilleries in "The Marseillaise."

Twenty-five hundred individuals milled over an acre of ground amid clouds of smoke and the roar of cannons and musketry. The gay blue colors of the Royalist ranks and the scarlet clad Swiss Guard flashed like a grand kaleidoscope in the brilliant sunshine. Steadily and remorselessly the scythes and pitchforks of the Revolutionists swept on against the sky line.

High on a tower over the palace front Director Paul Fejos boomed his voice through an electric loud speaker. Fifty lieutenants here and there over the broad expanse repeated his orders. Screaming sirens gave the signals to start and stop. Fourteen cameras were in action.

It was a tremendous motion picture spectacle.

My mind went back to the opening of Universal City in 1915.

Universal City looked pretty big then, and so it was. A good many people wagged their heads and said Carl Laemmle had gone too far—too far out in the hills and from real estate values, and too far in the size of his plant.

Yet the plant of those early days was not as big as the single set of the single picture I was now viewing. And Los Angeles has built right up to the formerly wild hillsides of Universal City.

A vast change. And yet the man beside me is president of Universal today, was president when Universal City was born, and president of Universal many years before that.

And all the time and as every one knows, he has been doing big things—each just as big in their day as "The Marseillaise" is big today.

It is a genuine pleasure to devote this section of Motion Picture News to Carl Laemmle—to the recognition of his long and prominent career in this industry.

He is a remarkable man.

I was one of those who came out on the train from New York to the opening of Universal City. One day, as we chugged across the desert, Carl Laemmle dropped in a seat beside me and asked me about the publishing business. In no time at all his keen mind was several steps ahead of me and suddenly he began to tell me things about my own business that surprised me, so keen was his grasp of publishing and its manifold problems.

l acquired that day a respect for his business ability which has only increased over the years of an acquaintance that I greatly prize. I got the impression that day that Carl Laemmle would have been a great merchant had he followed his earlier occupation. He would have been a leading figure in any field of business, because with exceptional ability he has also steadiness, straightforward courage, honesty, and singleness of purpose.

The years, I say, have given me an increasing respect for his acumen. But also they have added the affection you cannot but feel for a man of large affairs who is also distinguished for his gentleness, charity and cleanliness of life.

Universal is today the sole remaining company of the big three upon which our industrial structure first rested. Since then, and to date, large alignments have come and gone. Leading figures have arisen and declined. Pictures have changed from shorts to multiple reels and from silent to sound. Theatres have passed from individual ownership to national chains. World-wide organizations have been built to an extent that film manufacture and export make one of the brightest jewels in the crown of American business enterprises.

Amid this vast and rapid, and often critical, evolution of one of the greatest of modern industries one sturdy figure, that of Carl Laemmle, has stood steadfast and to the forefront. There is reason for Carl Laemmle to be proud of his record and for the industry to be proud of him.

Horatio Alger At His Best

By Maurice Kann

T is a little more than forty-five years ago that the Steamship 'Neckar' of the North German Lloyd warped into its dock in New York on one of its scheduled trips from Hamburg. On the steamer's deck gazing fascinated at what was then only the embryo of the present world-famed skyline, stood an immigrant boy of seventeen who was embarked upon his great adventure and was entering this strange country, the land of hope and promise. His sole possessions were a telescope valise, fifty dollars in cash and an indomitable determination to succeed.

A few weeks ago another German Lloyd liner docked in New York, this time the incomparable "Bremen," and upon her deck stood this same boy, gazing eagerly upon the land of his adoption. He was returning from a trip through England and the Continent and, from the time the Bremen sailed, he had been feted and honored not only by the officials of the North German Lloyd Line, but also by the many celebrities and notables on board who knew his identity and were familiar in a general way with the story of his successes and achievements.

It is a far cry from the boy with fifty dollars and a valise to the president of one of the largest film companies. This transition has been one of hard-fought battles, heart-breaking disappointments and set-backs, successes leavened with failures, high courage which has hurdled seemingly insuperable obstacles, and an optimism which has survived even the most hopeless discouragements.

It has become quite the custom in describing the successful business man to say that the story of his life "reads like a book," but this emphatically does not apply to the career of Carl Laemmle. To be sure there has been drama and romance in his life but the history of his success discloses the fact that his every step, has been gained by downright hard work, and that invaluable trait of never knowing when he was licked.

First Job, Boy-Of-All-Work

The history of his early years in America, prior to his entrance into the film business, can be briefly summed up His first job was as a sort of boy-of-all-work in a drug store in lower New York City, where he did practically everything except fill prescriptions. It is quite within the realm of possibilities that he may have wielded a mean pestle when business was brisk.

Regardless of whether or not he knew his Horace Greeley he cherished an ambition to "go west" and just as soon as his savings from his meagre salary produced the necessary railroad fare, embark, he did, with high hopes to that town made famous by Mrs. Leary's cow, Chicago. This was still during his first year in America.

ment store Laemmle decided that he was by no means far enough west and so he moved on into South Dakota where he tackled the soft job of farmer's helper, with nothing to do but work from dawn to dusk at the munificent wage of four dollars a month "and found."

He gave this new occupation a fair trial but soon realized that here was not the opportunity for which he yearned, and the year 1886 found him back in Chicago where he entered the employment of Butler Brothers. He acquired a reputation as an expert bookkeeper and for six years functioned in that capacity for various concerns in Chicago.

He celebrated his tenth year in America by accepting a position with the leading department store in Oshkosh, Wis., four years later was appointed general manager of the company remaining for eight more years, marrying and, to all intents and purposes, settling down to a life of average prosperity.

But the urge for bigger things was persistent and would not down and so, in 1906, he courageously abandoned an assured competence and moved his family back to Chicago, although he had not the vaguest idea what he would do after he got there. He had saved some money, an absurdly small amount as it would be viewed by him today, but he was determined that he would acquire a business of his own and stand or fall upon his individual efforts.

Store Shows Better Than Stores

His association with merchandising had inclined his mind towards a five and ten cent store as a likely undertaking but in his search for promising localities he chanced on several motion picture "store shows" and was at once impressed with the possibilities of this new and fascinating business.

It was just at this time that those almost forgotten motion picture railroad coaches had come into vogue. Laemmle saw capacity crowds laying down their nickels and dimes for a few moment's entertainment, to be replaced by new capacity crowds. His decision was made; he would become the owner of a motion picture theatre. Thus, Carl Laemmle, then nearing his fortieth year, took the step which was to result in his becoming an outstanding figure in a great industry.

But before he took this decisive step Laemmle consulted a young fellow who had made quite a name for himself in Chicago as an advertising man. This was R. H. Cochrane whose association with Laemmle covers a period of nearly twenty-five years

Encouraged by Cochrane's approval of the plunge into the "movie theatre" business, on February 24, 1906, Laemmle opened the Whitefront Theatre, which he converted from an old store on Milwaukee Avenue, Chicago. Two months later a second theatre was opened on Halsted Street. Both houses were eminently successful as success was measured in those days.

While the acquisition of these two theatres really signalized Laemmle's initiation into the film business, it was the opening of his first exchange, Laemmle Film Service, in the Crilly building at the corner of Monroe and Dearborn Streets in Chicago, which was most directly responsible for the Universal Pictures Corporation of toculties he soon built up a representative business as an exchange man and, in 1907, had opened additional exchanges in Evansville, Memphis and Omaha. In 1908 came further expansion with exchanges functioning in Portland, Orcgon, Minneapolis, Salt Lake City, Montreal and Winnipeg.

During this time Laemmle had been dealing with the Motion Pictures Patents Company, but in 1909 decided to cut loose from this organization, which later became the General Film Company. He did so announcing himself as an independent thenceforth, forevermore. The details of the epochal battle that ensued are too familiar to those identified with the industry to require repetition here. Suffice to say that Carl Laemmle became a recognized leader in the independent movement and fought his fight with that aggressiveness which has characterized all of his activities in the motion picture business.

Under the new regime he early discovered that there would be immeasurable difficulty in securing sufficient film of independent origin to supply the needs of those dependent upon his exchanges for service. It was this discovery that led to his entry into the field of production.

To meet this condition he formed the Independent Motion Picture Company from which the famous brand name of IMP was derived, and his first release on October 25, 1909, was "Hiawatha," boasting a total length of 989 feet, an achievement of no mean proportions in those not-so-long-ago days. This was followed several weeks later with a second subject, "Love's Stratagem," with a footage of 954 feet.

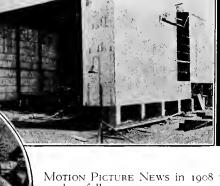

For the next three years the struggle between the independents and the "film trust" continued, always with Laemmle in the forefront.

There is perhaps no better index to the Laemmle fighting spirit than an advertisement which he ran in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS in 1908 which read as follows:

MY SWEET COMPETITORS are hammering at me again with anonymous letters to exhibitors. If it wasn't so disgusting it would be funny. Utterly lacking the nerve to come out in the open, they are adopting the tactics of the guerilla, working in the dark behind the back. It only goes to prove that the rush of exhibitors to my different offices is hurting the anonymous letter writers. But all the letters in the world can't damage the quality of my genuinely independent films. I have become the biggers of have become the biggest film renter in the world by sticking to quality and I am going to stick to that same thing through thick and thin. If you care to get in on a winning game, write to me this day.

CARL LAEMMLE.

It is quite probable that from advertisements such as these originated the "Straight from the Shoulder Talks" which have become known and read by exhibitors everywhere.

It was on May 20, 1912, that Laemmle, in association with Charles Bauman, David Horsley, P. A. Powers and W. H. Swanson, combined interests and formed Universal Film Manufacturing Company, opening offices at 1 Union Square, New York City. In July of this same year Laemmle went abroad to open the first independent American manufacturers' foreign office. In the meanwhile a sales company had also been incorporated as Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

1915, when stages were brought in from the out-of-doors. Interior view of an enclosed artificial light studio at Universal City. This stage, among the first of the enclosed type, measures 75 x 350 feet.

In this same eventful year, there developed internal conflict in Universal which did much to write motion picture his tory. It was a war for control with Lae mmle and Cochrane lined up on the one side and P. A. Powers on the other, the other original members of the organization dropping out one by one and seeking new fields. The IMP company was turning out a record amount of product and the Crystal Film Company had thrown its product to Universal

At this time Universal was offering a roster of players and directors some of whom are famous today. Some dead, built the organization which is today Universal Pictures Corporation. Imbued with an amazing capacity for hard work he was here, there and everywhere, injecting his personality into every phase and angle of his rapidly expanding business. There was no detail with which he was not thoroughly familiar whether it had to do with production or distribution. His powers of absorption were a never ending source of wonder to his associates; he seemed to have everything literally at his finger-tips.

In an attempt to escape Motion Picture Patents Company sleuths in 1911, David Horsley sent his Nestor Film Company to Hollywood, with Al Christie in charge of the small group of actors.

At that time, Nestor was releasing through Universal exchanges, which Laemmle had established in various cities of the country.

Christic took over the Blondeau Tavern in Hollywood as production headquarters, at a rental of $100 per month. Three one reelers were produced weekly for Nestor, with Christie being allowed a total budget of $1200 a week for making the subjects.

Some time later, Universal acquired Nestor, which formed the nucleus for expansion of Laemmle's producing forces on the coast, culminating in the coast studio.

It was in September, 1912, that Laemmle purchased the site which was later to become Universal City. It was located in the San Fernando Valley and offered practically everything that was desirable as a motion picture "lot." For two years the work was rushed but it was not until March 15, 1915 that Universal City was formerly opened.

Everyone laughed at Laemmle when he purchased the 250 acres that now comprise the studio at a price of $250 per acre.

Hollywood then was a small community of about 12,000, and the small outdoor studios had only been established for a few years. Laemmle's property was over the hill, and five miles from Hollywood; on a dusty dirt road besides being far from transportation facilities.

But today, Universal City is in the center of a rapidly growing section of Los Angeles, and fronts a main boulevard. Conservative estimates place a valuation of $10,000 per acre on land of Universal City today which is not so bad. However, to resume.

In the mean time another Universal studio had been constructed at Fort

It was with such players that Laemmle

Lee, New Jersey, in conjunction with what was then the last word in laboratories and where most of the positive prints for Universal were turned out.

During all the period from 1912 until 1920 the struggle for control of Universal continued, but eventually Powers sold out to Laemmle and Cochrane, and the company was reorganized as the Universal Pictures Corporation.

Terry Ramsaye, generally recognized as the historian of the motion picture industry, in his book "A Million and One Nights," in commenting on the internal strife at Universal, said:

"In the new Universal group some of the most intricate, eccentric and delicious film politics of the day were played. The first round of the conflet resulted in the secession of C. O. Bauman and Adam Kessel who went over to Mutual. This reduced the strong personalities in the Universal camp to P. A Powers on the one side and Carl Laemmle and Robert Coch rane on the other. For the purpose of the chess game of the picture industry, Cochrane and Laemmle may be considered by the historian as one man. As a team they have put on the only continuous performances in the history of the motion picture."

And this last quoted sentence of Ramsaye's tells a story which could be amplified into volumes. From the earliest days of their association right down to the present moment the team of Laemmle and Cochrane have seemingly stood, shoulder to shoulder, fighting and prospering as they fought.

Of the many things for which Laemmle is known perhaps the one most outstanding is his record for discovering and developing star material. Even where players had not made their initial appearances on the Universal lot, they nevertheless made their first bids for real fame there.

Consider for a moment those who made their first pictures for Universal: Betty Compson, Zasu Pitts, Eric Von Lon Chaney entered pictures via Universal as did Priscilla Dean, Edith Roberts, Jack and Lottie Pickford. Annette Kellerman started her picture career with Universal and Tom Ince was first an extra and then a director for the old IMP company.

Which brings us quite naturally to Carl Laemmle, the man; the man who is mostly "Uncle" Carl to everyone in the industry, and especially those who have been associated with him in Universal.

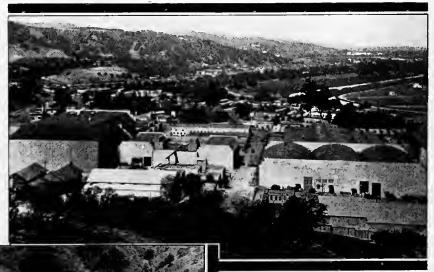

Become for the moment an inquiring reporter and you will hear on every side, from every tongue, tales of the complete humanness of this man. R. H. Cochrane will regale you for hours with stories of his benevolences, his meticulous consideration of the other fellow's side, his lovable traits, his determination to give everyone a chance, a fair break

Away back in 1912 "Uncle" Car wrote to Warden Osborne and said that he wanted to send two convicts, to be selected by Mr. Osborne, to Universal City, and offer them an opportunity to make good. No one was to know who they were nor anything of their history. Warden Osborne consented, two men were sent, and Laemmle's assurance is available that they not only did make good but did so in a really big

The story of what Laemmle has done for the town of his nativity, Laupheim, in South Germany, has been many times told, but it is the sort of story which will bear repetition. Every year he journeys to Laupheim, where his father drove one of those merchant carts which were a familiar sight in rural America a generation ago.

Quietly, unostentatiously, Laemmle has given to Laupheim many civic improvements which would have been impossible were it not for his generosity, and yet he is the last man to talk of these benefactions.

In 1926 on the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of Laemmle's entry into the motion picture business there was promulgated one of the greatest demonstrations in the history of the industry. The trade press issued special editions, congratulations poured in from the humblest to the most powerful, not only in the industry but also in allied industries. And outstanding among these congratulations were those from competitors with whom he had battled wholeheartedly and vigorously in the past but who, down to the last one, held no resentment but rather a sincere respect for a squareshooting fighter and a constructive worker in the motion picture vineyard.

Panorania view which illustrates extent of Universal City

It was in June of this anniversary year that "Uncle" Carl was stricken with appendicitis while aboard the S. S. Berengaria and was taken to London for an immediate operation. His gallant fight with death brought to the fore that same indomitable spirit which had carried him through his many crises in business, and he returned to America in October to be greeted at the pier by an ovation in which hundreds shared

Junior Passes Acid Test

Immediately upon his return he appointed his son, Carl Laemmle, Jr., assistant manager at Universal City, and it was only after what Laemmle considered a most thorough acid test that young Carl was eventually elevated to the position of general manager of Universal's production activities, a position which he occupies today.

At about this same time, the emphasis of the industry was centered upon acquisition of theatres for the prestige of first-runs In conformity with the general practice, Universal began a theatre expansion to augment its presentation theatres in the larger cities. The outcome of this campaign was the acquisition of three hundred theatres, situated in every important distributing centre of the United States, as well as in many foreign countries.

With the introduction of sound, Universal signed a Western Electric agreement and become a part and parcel of this method of sound production. It chose the sound-on-film method and immediately started upon a costly and more than adequate building program to enable the Universal studios to reproduce sound. Unlike some of the companies, it determined from the start that it would not abandon the field of the smaller theatres in which it had played an important part for years and which was looking to Universal to supply it with silent pictures Although it involved plenty in cost, every Universal production was made in both sound and silent version.

During the previous year, Universal had made a production effort which had resulted in twenty-six pictures being completed and in the exchanges and ready for viewing before the opening of the selling season. It was just at this inopportune moment, from the Universal standpoint, that sound was accepted in its practical form, marking a new era in picture-making and creating a renaissance in interest, which did much to increase the popularity of moving pictures. Another effort which evidenced anew the characteristics which underlay the Universal organization was put forth to provide each of these pictures with sound.

Universal went further. For five years its Complete Service Contract had been the life saver of many small-town showmen. So thoroughly sold was Laemmle on the acceptance which the general public had given to sound, that he determined to offer a Complete Service in Sound to wired exhibitors,

With Laemmle's twenty-second year in the business, a satisfaction came into his business and personal life. With unusual opportunities to do so. Carl Laemmle, Jr. had followed every move in Universal's picture making and distribution. With youthful enthusiasm he learned pictures and picture values as few men in the world at twenty perhaps could know them. Foregoing the opportunities of a college education in order to relieve his father, Junior now asked for a post in the production department at Universal City, and under the tutelage of several general managers, learned, through application and actually doing the work, the duties of subordinate officers in the studio.

When the time came for him to take entire charge of production. Universal felt he was ready. For six months now, Laemmle, Jr. has been in complete charge of production. He is credited with having stabilized the studio organization and built up an esprit-de-corps and confidence, and has gathered about him a corps of picture makers, authors, scenarists, directors and supervisors such as Universal declares it never had before

At the same time, the distributing organization, under the general managership of Lou B. Metzger, the originator of the Complete Service Contract, has also affected a re-organization of distribution which is gratifying to Laemmle. M. Van Praag is general sales manager, with Ted Schlanger and Harry Taylor as his assistant general sales managers, and three division managers, Leo Devaney in Cleveland, Clair Hague in Toronto, and Ralph Williams in Atlanta 1 Fred J. McConnell is short subject manager. During the last year, too, Universal acquired the last of the outstanding privately owned exchanges throughout the United States, and now the Boston exchange is in the same situation in regard to the Universal Film Exchanges, Inc., as all of its other exchanges.

R. H. Cochrane, who joined Laemmle as a stockholder in the Laemmle Exchanges in 1906, and who was elected vice-president of the concern at that time, is still the vice-president of Universal Pictures Corporation and the great majority of the subsidiary companies. P. D. Cochrane has supervision of the advertising, exploitation and publicity departments. Helen E. Hughes is secretary of the company. Charles B. Paine is treasurer of the Universal Pictures Corporation and Universal Film Exchanges, Inc., and Louis Cohen has charge of the chain theatres.

It should be of great interest to the industry at large to know that Laemmle, whose twentieth year as a producer is now being celebrated, of all the early producers and pioneers engaged in the production of films, is the only one still active in the business.

Such well-known figures as Colonel W. H. Selig, George Spoor and George Kleine, G. M. Anderson, Albert E. Smith and J. Stuart Blackton, Charles Baumann, Adam Kessel and many others who produced pictures in 1909, as did Laemmle, have long ago retired.

He is just as active now, as he was twenty years ago Every day finds him at Universal City prepared for the extreme changes this business has brought about since its swaddling days.

Every Day a Working Day

Every day finds him on the job no matter what part of the world he may be in. On his last trip to Europe, his cable tolls alone totaled about $4,000. He reads all communications addressed to him, answers them all, pays scrupulous attention to the letters received from the readers of his column in the "Saturday Evening Post" and maintains a personal follow-up system on every detail connected with his business. And this, at an age, when he might well retire in order to enjoy the benefits of his many years of hard labor.

It is characteristically Laemmle, however, to stick to the task, to finish old ones and start new ones in never-ending

Now The Son Of The Father Is Following His Sire

ARL LAEMMLE, JR., only son and counterpart of Carl Laemmle, is the first princeling of filmdom's aristocracy to follow in his father's footsteps as a producer with full power. Several members of the second generation of film executives have graduated into the industry in one capacity or another, but young Laemmle is the first scion to take up actual producing.

Despite his age—he is not yet twenty-two—he is in entire charge of Universal City, a producing center that represents an investment of millions and which vies in immensity and in volume of output with anything else the industry has to offer. Yet, Laemmle Junior is running this organization, giving impetus to its activities and moulding Universal's production policies.

It takes three months to make an army officer, the world war taught, but many battles to make a fighter. It takes years to develop a real insight into production. Carl Laemmle, Jr., has been in the motion picture business for years—ever since he could talk, in fact. He grew up in it. He knew what it was all about long before the average boy knows there is such a thing as business. He heard it at the table. He heard it in his father's home conferences.

Young Carl's Story

His story, told by one who knows it, runs something like this:

"As a youth, Laemmle Junior had the big Universal City plant as his playground when in California. He learned to know studio talk, studio methods, studio technique. He observed, he asked questions, he let no point escape him. In New York he was all over the home office, delving into advertising, publicity, exploitation, poster making, and other central office activities. In other cities, he investigated the exchanges and learned how pictures are marketed. He became equally at home in a projection booth, and around theatres. Above all, he was an ardent picture fan.

"His schooling, first by private tutor and then in a private school, was meant to lead to a course in business administration at the University of Pennsylvania. When that time came, however, young Laemmle proved to his father that, as he was destined to enter the motion picture business, the best place to learn that business was in the industry itself. So, instead of donning a freshman's cap at the U. of P., he rolled up his sleeves and went to work at Universal City.

"There was nothing gilt-edged about his first work at Universal City. He helped a little here and he helped a little there. It was soon learned, however, that his suggestions and comments were the result of a keen perception and an understanding of pictures and picture making.

"His first real bid for attention was the idea of making a series of scholastic life and adventure comedies. He developed the idea and wrote the stories. They clicked and the series turned out to be 'The Collegians,' which ran through four series, released every week or so over a period of two years. 'The Collegians' hit upon a theme which had been neglected by other producers and the response from the theatres of the nation indicated full well that the conception of the idea was a substantial one.

"Young Carl's next assignment, following a summer spent in Europe with his father, was that of regular supervisor for 'We Americans,' a homely comedy drama of New York life. It proved one of Universal's strongest offerings for that season. Then came several others in which the youth was entrusted with supervision. Maybe he inherited the Laemmle luck. More likely he inherited the Laemmle foresight and judgment.

Surprises the Veterans

"He created a surprise by signing Paul Fejos, then an unknown with one shoe-string picture to his redit. Carl supervised and Fejos applied a new technique to a simple story and brought forth 'Lonesome.'

"It was about this time that young Laemmle was moved up the ladder. He was made associate producer. It was then he turned his attention to Broadway.' He conceived it as a special. Again he put his faith in Fejos, despite a derision that rocked the hills of Hollywood. A two-picture director getting a million dollar production to direct! Unheard of! Yet, Broadway proved to be the most ambitious Universal had made until that time. On April 28, 1929, during the making of the final scenes of this picture, Laemmle Junior celebrated his twenty-first birthday!

"Less than two months later, the position of general manager of the big plant went to Laemmle Junior. Today that studio is being operated with a spirit of enthusiasm, permanency and an efficiency never before thought possible by the company. The youthful general manager lives, breathes, eats and sleeps pictures. A working day of sixteen to eighteen hours is the regular thing for him, and for the corps of assistants he has built up.

"Youth is in the saddle at Universal

"Youth is in the saddle at Universal City. The second generation has come into its own. It is fired with visions of the future and Carl Laemmle Jr., entrusted with the reins.

Carl Laemmle Plays Santa

THERE are many thousands of theatre owners and exhibitors throughout United States and Canada who will argue with you if you try to tell them that Santa Claus is a small, over-plump white-bewhiskered chap in a red fur-trimmed suit. They will tell you that he is a small, middle-aged man with sparse gray hair and a big friendly smile who comes around every week instead of once a year, and that his bag, instead of containing toys, carries a complete show of sure-fire profit making films. The man is not Santa Claus at all, but Carl Laemmle. In the bag, and that goes double, is Laemmle's Complete Service Plan.

Complete service is one of the oldest things in the marketing of pictures, but it took Carl Laemmle, at a time when the industry was crying for a l.fe-saving idea, to go back to first principles and remodel the complete show method of distribution which had flourished a few years and died out with the coming of long features and high-powered selling. At a time when the small town exhibitor trembled in awe before a red wave that threatened to engulf his property and his livelihood, when combinations and competition forced the independent's back to the wall, frequently right through it, Laemmle cut the Gordian knot by a sensational offer—a complete show every week at a four-square flat weekly rental basis on the exhibitor's ability to profit therefrom.

A steady stream of features, with all the needed short subjects included, once a week, week in and week out. A sure and certain supply of pictures for a year—two years or as long as wanted!

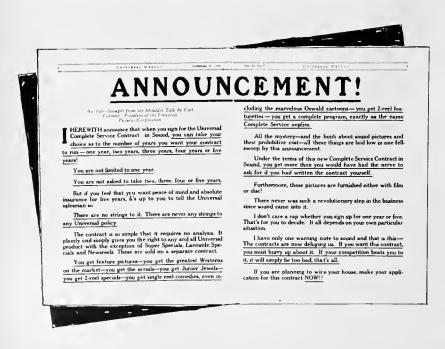

The offer played its part in turning the industry from a period of lethargy—a depression curve during which hundreds of theatres were closed or were threatened with extinction. It signalled a new era of hope. Since that time Universal has served more than 16,000 exhibitors with Laemmle's Complete Service. The rush to get on the Laemmle band-wagon and cut loose from booking worries was plentiful. The idea appealed not only to the small town theatre man, but to many big city houses and the chains. Balaban & Katz, for instance, went into the Laemmle plan on a three-year basis for some of its theatres.

The plan appealed to the theatre man because it assured him a continued supply of pictures, it gave him a wide selection of short subjects, it eliminated program worries, it eliminated double shipping charges and details, it meant a fair-play deal, it meant a profit instead of a loss, it meant safety and security and therefore, continued independence. A flood of appreciative letters poured in from theatre men who found the Laemmle Complete Service a veritable life saver. He still gets them.

During the dark days of last summer, when exhibitors far and near, especially the small town theatre man, again found themselves faced with annihilation, as a result of the talking picture situation, Carl Laemmle again sounded a clarion call for independents and devised a sol tion for their problem. He offered Universal Complete Service in Sound.

This was a momentous move. Due to combinations, absorptions, and the great growth of producerowned chains, many of the theatres with sound pieture equipment found it difficult to get talking pictures for their screens, and to get them for early release. Good talking pictures were at a premium. The few thousand sound-equipped houses were fighting for them, with the independent getting second or third choice, if any. The many thousand unwired houses were just out of luck. In addition to the spectacle of their patronage rapidly drifting to competitive houses giving talking pictures and to nearby towns where talking pictures were to be had, the small town man, even if he had arrived at the decision to wire his house, was torn between conflicting decisions as to which apparatus to buy. On top of all that was the perplexing problem as to whether he would be able to get talking pictures and to stand the gaff, even if he did wire his house.

Laemmle's answer to this was— Universal talking pictures on a Complete Service Plan with the same features of the Complete Service Plan for silent pictures, a plan which had kept many theatres open over a period of five years. This meant the regular Universal talking releases, the current output, both features and shorts, and, due to the fact that Universal's talking picture producing activities have practically been underway only during the past year, it meant a steady supply of new pictures—not fourth, fifth and subsequent runs.

This is how Laemmle announced it in Universal Weekly:

All the mystery—and the bunk about sound pictures and their prohibitive cost—all these things are laid low in one fell swoop by this announcement.

Under the terms of this new Complete Service Contract in Sound, you get more than you would have had the nerve to ask for if you had written the contract yourself.

Furthermore, the pictures are furnished either with film or disc.

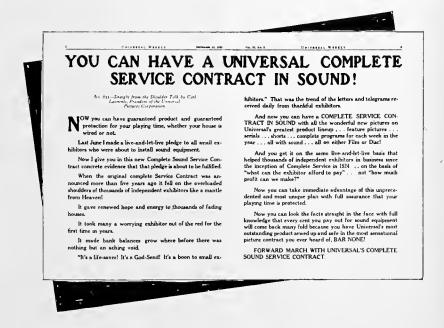

There never was such a revolutionary step in the business since sound came into it.

I don't care a rap whether you sign up for one year or five. That's for you to decide. It all depends on your own particular situation.

Then a few weeks later:

And now you can have a COMPLETE SERVICE CONTRACT IN SOUND with all the wonderful new pictures in Universal's greatest product lineup—feature pictures—serials—shorts—complete programs for each week in the year—all with sound—all on either film or disc!

Now you can look the facts straight in the face with full knowledge that every cent you pay out for sound equip - ment will come back many fold because you have Universal's most outstanding product sewed up in the most sensational picture contract you ever heard of, BAR NONE.

For the wired independent, this was a promise of a filled screen for one—two—three or as many years as he cared to arrange for, on a just weekly rental basis. For the unwired theatre man, it meant the answer to the question—"If I wire, where will I get talking pictures I can pay for?"

Laemmle's new offer was hailed by exhibitors. A big majority of the wired independents immediately climbed aboard the Laemmle band wagon. The unwired, small town theatre men are climbing aboard as fast as they can get sound apparatus. Some of them, on Laemmle's pledge that Complete Silent Service users will get Complete Sound Service at an equitable basis whenever they install sound apparatus, are signing up Complete Service (silent) against the day they put in sound equipment.

Thus, the one show a week houses are protected for the entire term of their agreement with Universal, the two-change houses are protected for half their playing time. This protection also holds good for the several thousand exhibitors already users of the Complete Service (silent).

Laemmle's Complete Service Plan is not a franchise plan. It is an out-and-out contract to supply a feature picture and a complement of short subjects every week for so many weeks on the part of Universal and to pay a flat weekly rental for this product for so many weeks on the part of the exhibitor.

The exhibitor does not guarantee production costs plus profit on any picture. He pays the same flat rental whether the picture he gets this week cost $75,000 to make or $275,000. The rental is fixed in advance of signing the contract and it is a fair one, arrived at by agreement, after all the factors affecting the exhibitor's hazards have been considered.

R. H. Cochrane became a partner of Carl Laemmle shortly before the latter became a producer.

At the opening of the first exchange, which was on October 1, 1906, Laemmle needed more money than he had and gave R. H. an opportunity to go into business with him by putting up some cash. R. H., whose reputation for making rapid decisions is proverbial in the moving picture business, took only one night to decide this matter.

It was characteristic that he made it as much of an investment for them as possible. When the Imp Company started, R. H. had a part in the production company equal to his share in the exchanges. He was elected vice-president of the company and has been vice-president of the two production companies which have succeeded it, the Universal Film Manufacturing Company and Universal Pictures

In a moment of recollection of the days in Chicago just preceding his entry into the production end of the business, R. H. sat down at his typewriter and what appears on this page is the result.

"Fists Flying 47 Ways At Once"

By Robert H. Cochrane

HE one thing that stands out in my earliest recollections of Carl Laemmle is the fact that he not only had to fight for every little point he gained, but that he had to fight in several directions at once.

If he had merely had to fight ordinary competition, he would have had only the experience of the average business man and there would have been nothing particularly outstanding or spectacular in his activities. But he never had such a soft snap as that.

For example, when he conceived the idea of becoming a producer instead of just a distributor of films, the very first thing he bumped up against was a notice from the then film trust that if he tried to enter the production business his supply of pictures as a distributor would be cut off. Starting a production business in those days was not the easiest thing in the world. The competition was keen. More than a dozen other companies had better equipment, more money and more man power. Laemmle had no equipment, mighty little money and extremely limited man power.

He knew nothing about stories, studios, directors, artists. It was a man-sized job to even begin to learn these things, but that was only part of his job. The rest of it consisted in defending himself and his very lucrative distribution business against the threatened and real attacks by the film trust. In the meantime he had to keep his distribution business working under pressure. So it was a three-headed monster that loomed before him.

For years and years and years he had to work with much less capital than he needed. He never was a heavy borrower. Anyhow in the early days, heavy borrowing by moving picture companies was not encouraged by banks. They considered it a fly-by-night business. In fact they didn't call it a business. They called it a game.

"What do you think?" he exclaimed to me one day during the initial struggle for business existence in Chicago, "I met a man today who claims he can get me a $10,000 line of credit at the bank!"

Those were the days when we paid the payroll and met other expenses with cash taken from the mail sent in by our customers. There was many a week when our chief excitement was in opening the mail to see whether there was enough to meet current expenses.

Money troubles, therefore, were not merely lurking in the background during his first years in business. Never a lurk. They stood boldly in the foreground of his thought and he had to fight that condition in addition to all the other troubles.

Shortage of positive prints was another constant menace. Other distributors seemed able to finance plenty of prints, but Laemmle never had enough to go around. Once when we both lived in Chicago, he made a business trip to New York and while in the big city he visited the exchange belonging to Miles Brothers.

"Just imagine!" he exclaimed to me when he got back to Chicago, "those boys actually have a million feet of positive prints in their exchanges" and he named the figure with all the impressiveness he could jam into his words. A million feet! It seemed like a dream of untold wealth. Today I don't suppose the smallest of our exchanges throughout the world carries less than a million feet of usable prints—and not a week passes when the new printing runs less than four million feet.

Shortage of money, shortage of film, shortage of everything but grit, determination and persistence—that's my picture of the dark ages of the "fillum business."

Of course I have not even mentioned the other fight he was carrying on concurrently with these—the celebrated legal battle against the powerful film trust—the battle that he carried to the United States Supreme Court and won so gloriously—the battle which made it possible for everybody to come into the picture business and produce and distribute and exhibit pictures without paying blood money to anyone under the pretty name of "royalties."

Did you ever see Harry Greb in a red hot prize fight? His fists flew in forty-seven directions at once. His punches came from everywhere and nowhere and they landed on the button, no matter where they came from. Well, that's the way Laemmle had to fight—in all directions at once. He wasn't a one-man band. He was a one-man battle royal and there never was a time when he faced but one opponent at a time in the film ring!

Laemmle's First Ad

T'S a far cry from the early days of the one column experimental black and white type-set ads to the present day multi-colored art brochures which now appear in the motion picture trade publications.

Twenty years ago when Carl Laemmle and R. H. Cochrane were deluging the world with barrages of printed matter advertising productions, there were no trade papers in expensive typographical format with highly ornamental covers and expensively illustrated pages.

In fact, there was no trade press of any authentic nature and the poor advertiser was hard put to it to find a proper medium to carry his black and white announcements.

In the old days, motion picture advertising was confined to simple type layouts usually made by a job printer. There were no highly organized departments of specialized and trained men devoting their lives to chasing down elusive headlines, no expensive art departments striving for dramatic effects with pen and brush. Usually an advertisement was conceived, laid out and written by one and the same man, and usually it was done as an odd job between times when the press of other work had let down a little.

I believe it is a fact that the "Straight from the Shoulder Talks" instituted by Mr. Laemmle in 1908 were the forerunner of modern high-pressure copy in general use by all producing companies. These talks carried on through the years, appearing week after week without letup, have been a forceful, hard-hitting "right-down-to-the-fundamentals" style of advertising that has been widely imitated by many successful advertisers. Their very simplicity is probably the prime reason for the success of this type of advertising.

Advertising Takes A Step Forward

By Milton Silver

However, in this day of monthly, weekly and daily trade papers, and specialized journals to meet every condition and contingency, new forms and new methods are essential.

Now it's a study in contrasts to walk into the busy advertising department of any large producing company, with the rat-tat-tat of a battery of typewriters assailing your ears, and a corps of trained writers and artists consulting with printers, engravers and color specialists in their efforts to outdo each other in placing before both exhibitor and public posters, newspaper ads, and trade paper announcements, intriguing in their makeup and beguiling in their context.

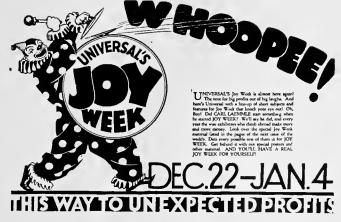

Frequently, one trade paper insert will cost more to produce mechanically than a whole year's appropriation for advertising of all forms would cost in the old days. Now we find artists of international fame lending their talents to the dramatization of the sales aspect of motion pictures.

We find men and women whose names count big, both in the world of literature and art, contributing their genius to the proper presentation of motion pictures, and we find the most capable craftsmen in the engraver's guild turning out halftones, line-cuts and modern typography for the same purpose.

All the forces of showmanship combine with all the modern arts to present to the exhibitor the producer's product in such a way that the exhibitor will be able to turn it to account in selling his theatre to the public.

And Carl Laemmle, who was a leader then in presenting his product to the exhibitor, still is a leader in giving to the exhibitor, advertising material which may be turned to the exhibitor's profit. Carl Laemmle has grown up with the years in showmanship and mellowed with the years as one of the big factors in the huge entertainment mill known as motion pictures.

A modern two-page trade announcement

Laemmle Has Dotted the

RVERY year Carl Laemmle starts a new group of potential stars on the high road to 'ame and fortune. For twenty years he has been doing this. Many of these played their first scenes before a camera in Universal studios or locations. Others have found there their first opportunity for advancement, and still others have grown and blossomed into stardom under the Universal banner.

Mary Pickford is the first and most brilliant example of Laemmle's star-making proclivities. When he took her under the wing of the old Imp company, Mary Pickford's name was not only unheralded and unsung, but had never appeared before on the screen. Her face, however, had become increasingly well-known through her work at Biograph and Laemmle knew that he was consummating a good stroke of business when he offered her twice the salary she was getting in that organization.

Two other stars whose lustre was enhanced by their association with Carl Laemmle were Florence Lawrence and Mary Fuller, names which were of the first importance in their time. Two character men who laid the foundation of their present fame under Laemmle's guidance and through the opportunities he afforded, are Lon Chaney and Erich von Stroheim. Chaney would have reached the heights sooner than he did, except for a fatal attempt to make him a leading-man type of star instead of a character type. He had built up his character impersonations with six years of constant and painstaking work until he deserved stardom, but Universal's attempt to star him were ineffectual because they did not carry through the characterizations which after "The Miracle Man" were indelibly associated with his name.

Erich von Stroheim realized after the war that his specialty in pictures was knocked out from under his feet. He was thoroughly convinced in his own mind that direction was his forte. Laemmle was the only man in Hollywood who would listen to him. In spite of his proclivity to spend three times as much money on every production as he estimated, Laemmle had faith in him through "Blind Husbands," "The Devil's Passkey," "Foolish Wives" and until the first reel of "Merry Go Round" had been completed. Another actor and director who developed under Laemmle's influence was the man who took over the "Merry Go Round" job, Rupert Julian.

Universal developed the character proclivities of Wallace Beery, Ben Turpin, J. Farrell MacDonald, Hobart Bosworth, Harry Carey, Lew Cody, Jack Holt, George Fawcett, Raymond Griffith, put Robert Edeson in his first picture, gave Louise Dresser an opportunity to transplant to the screen the personality which was practically retired from the musical comedy stage; gave Ernest Torrence perhaps his greatest boost toward fame through "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and Mae Murray a long period of stardom.

Universal gave Larry Semon his first opportunity in pictures; it also did the same for Mary Philbin, Gertrude Olmstead, Harold Lloyd, Lois Wilson, Marceline Day, William Seiter, Lina Basquette, Gertrude Astor, Laura LaPlante, Hoot Gibson, Rudolph Schildkraut, Reginald Denny, Mary MacLaren, Betty Compson, Mildred Harris, Cleo Madison, Ella Hall, Ralph Graves, Herbert Rawlinson, Zasu Pitts, Frank Mayo, Frank McGlynn, Carmel Myers, Esther Ralston, Kenneth Harlan and Eddie Polo.

Colleen Moore played her first featured starring picture at Universal with Monroe Salisbury; Jean Hersholt began there his career as a character man; Wally Reid started in the picture business as assistant to Otis Turner and only reached the screen because of an accident to one of the actors. Universal also brought a number of personalities to the screen who were extremely prominent in other lines of endeavor; personalities like Anna Pavlowa, whose "Dumb Girl of Portici" was her only film effort; James J. Corbett, who played a serial for Universal; and Jack Dempsey, Annette Kellerman, whose "Neptune's Daughter," directed by Herbert Brenon, is still remembered; Paul Whiteman, whose rotund personality epitomizes to the world at large the word jazz music; and in "All Quiet on the Western Front," Carl Laemmle, Jr., believes he has started a new star on his career in Lew Ayres, who plays the leading role.

Of the present crop of stars, Laemmle might well take the entire credit for the acquisition of John Boles. His first picture aroused no tremendous furore, but Laemmle saw possibilities in him and went ahead quietly to develop them. Fortunately for both of them, the advent of sound gave to Boles an opportunity such as is enjoyed by few men. Joseph Schildkraut, chosen as the lead in "Show Boat," has developed as Laemmle planned.

Mary Nolan, proving to the satisfaction of a German public that she was starring material, fell into unbelieving hands when she returned to this country. Laemmle bought her contract. With "Shanghai Lady" and the criticisms of the New York critics, Universal believes Mary Nolan is taking a decided step toward the top of the ladder. Laura LaPlante, after a few weeks' extra work at the Christie studios, came to the Universal lot seven years ago and has remained ever since. Hoot Gibson is a thoroughly Universal product, having started in the old Carey companies as a cowboy.

Laemmle Handled Sound Back in '08

THE outstanding production phenomenon of 1929 is sound. Its gradual perfection has been the climatic accomplishment of engineers, directors, scenarists, musicians In this Universal has had its share with all of the other production companies. But of them all, Carl Laemmle is one of the few who can look back upon the era of twenty years ago, when he foreshadowed the present sound era with advertisements, promises, prophecies and aetual production of a sound talking-and-singing apparatus which worked. This apparatus was called the Synchroscope and was imported by Laemmle after his first return to his native home in Laupheim, and advertised by him as the wonder of the motion picture age.

Invented by a German named Jules Greenbaum and showing only German-spoken dialogue and lyrics, it still captured the imagination of a music-going public which had but recently been astounded and delighted by pictures which moved on a screen. It was too early for the industry to stagger, as it did under the impact of the 1928 sound

Although it didn't state it, the introductory price was $750. Orders were filled as fast as shipments could reach Chicago from Germany.

Soon the Laemmle advertising announcement assured the world "Within a year's time you will be forced to have a Synchroscope in order to stay in the moving picture business."

A practical viewing of the apparatus in a vaudeville theatre brought The Billboard's editorial writer sharply up on his haunches to write a thing like this:

"Is the moving picture business about to be revolutionized? Has the time arrived when vaudeville houses can put on a whole bill by machinery? . . . I was fairly stunned the other day when I witnessed a performance that was so startlingly realistic that I don't hesitate to say the questions are already answered in the affirmative."

Sounds like the editorials of 1927 and 1928. But that was twenty years ago. Motion Picture News, is able to reproduce an actual account by an exhibitor of the purchase and use of the Synchroscope. This exhibitor was E. L. Johnson, proprietor of the Burwood, Omaha. The story as he wrote it is

"Talkies" 21 Years Ago

By E. L. JOHNSON

ROM where I sit, it looks to me as though in the celebration of "Uncle" Carl's twentieth year as a producer, such personages as Maurice Fleckles, Julius Singer and "yours truly" should be looked upon as of the Old Guard. The two first mentioned were among the very meagre office force of our Little Napoleon, Carl Laemmle, and still with him, and I was a customer of such dare-devil personality in 1908 that I believed to the extent of a thousand dollars when "Uncle" Carl told me the screen could talk.

"Uncle" Carl had told me the talkie was the world's eighth wonder. As his rating for veracity was just as high with me then as it is now, I was, therefore, in the vernacular of the film peddler, sold. It wasn't the contrivance I was to purchase, although that sold me—it was "Uncle" Carl's word, his assurance, that invaluable asset that has materially assisted him in building up during the intervening years the great enterprise we call "Universal."

"Unele" Carl had made a convert of

"Uncle" Carl had made a convert of me as regards the talking pictures, so it wasn't long before all the papers in Omaha were having plenty to say concerning that marvelous mechanical discovery, that most remarkable scientific invention—the German Synchroscope.

invention—the German Synchroscope. So to Chicago did I hie myself to witness, at "Uncle" Carl's invitation, a demonstration of the contrivance. Mr. Fleckles was the Outer Guard as pertains to the reception committee. Soon I was in the presence of the Laemmle smile which, by the way, I see has been properly inherited by Carl, Junior. We at once adjourned to the projection room, a crude makeshift at the bottom of a riekety flight of steps leading to the cellar. Shortly the Synchroscope began to "sync" and I realized that, thanks to the master pioneer, "Uncle" Carl, I was witnessing the very first talking pictures introduced to this country. And all the while "Uncle" Carl just

And all the while "Unele Carl just smiled that self-same smile that he possesses roday—that smile that has rightfully won the confidence of thousands of exhibitors who have, in turn, paid him millions, all of which has enabled him to offer better and still better programs.

With the papers all signed, receipted and delivered to me, I found myself in the unique position of being a candidate for the movie industry's Hall of Fame in that the die was cast that I should be the very first man to present talking pictures in the United States west of Chicago—and you will note by observing a map, that that takes in a rather sizable slice of territory.

A Fitting Climax to 20 Glorious Years as a Motion Picture Producer

TWENTY years is a long time in an industry which is only 25 years old, yet Carl Laemmle can look back over each and every one of those twenty glorious years and feel that here is a job well done.

Hundreds and hundreds of fine pictures have come out of Universal City in those twenty years . . . scores of great box-office productions . . . many of which will shine out thru the dust of the ages and take their places amongst the immortals of this giant industry.

And this year, with the help and confidence of his son, whose efforts on the product presented in the ensuing pages give every evidence that Carl Laemmle Jr. will justify his famous name and carry it on to even greater heights, Carl Laemmle presents as fine a product as has ever been offered by any producing company.

of Greater Talking Pictures!

The Soundest Proposition in the World Is UNIVERSAL'S COMPLETE SERVICE in SOUND!

NE OF the biggest chain theatre operators in the United States tells me he was fairly staggered by the announcement that small exhibitors can now have Universal Complete Service Contracts in Sound as well as in Silent versions.

"How the h—— can you do it?" he asks.

And he continues: "Either you have one of the most elastic and capable organizations in the world or else you are willing to take any long chance to give actual, practical help to the small exhibitor. Or maybe it's both."

It doesn't matter much what the reason may be, but the fact that stares you in the face and challenges every other company in the world is simply this—Universal is doing the thing that had to be done by someone!

The small exhibitors—thousands of them—were scared to death. They looked into the future of their business with fear and trembling. They did not see how they could keep up with the swift pace of the industry, the mounting costs, the many new problems and puzzles brought into the industry by the advent of talking pictures.

They saw larger theatres drawing their business away from them. They had been able to hold their own against such houses before sound, but against a wired house they felt they stood no chance.

They feared to wire their own theatres lest the cost of obtaining good product should prove prohibitive.

Someone had to do something. Universal did it. There's nothing particularly new about that. Universal has been the bulwark of safety to thousands of theatres for years.

If I had never contributed one helpful thing to the industry before, I would feel that I had done my share in doing this one thing, for without the shadow of a doubt it will save business lives for more small theatres than you can count.

When "Uncle" Carl imported the Synchroscope he, as usual, went the entire route-he also imported the son of the inventor of the Synchroscope, it being the duty of that young man to personally install every Synchroscope that the Laemmle organization sold, all of which was a very far-seeing thought on the part of "Uncle" Carl, and of most gratifying assurance to the purchaser. The young man from Germany arrived in Omaha in good season, but was handicapped through not being able to speak or understand other than the tongue of the Fatherland. condition permitted me to say to him with impunity and delightful safety, many very caustic things when the first Synchroscope tests in Omaha did not work out as smoothly as was desired. However, a very satisfactory installation was eventually made.

Disc records, just as in the present day, were used and the programs were limited to musical numbers entirely. I believe we also had records from Caruso, Julian Eltinge and Madame Sembrich, but I do know that practi-

eally all came from abroad

The Synchroscope answered its purpose and my display of Synchroscope novelties and a program composed exclusively of Universal subjects attracted tremendous patronage all summer, the regular-season policy of my theatre at that time being dramatic stock. In this connection it will be most fitting to add that the leading man of the stock company was Harry Pollard, who for the past several years has been one of "Uncle" Carl's directors Mr Pollard's wife, Marguerita Fischer, was leading woman. Still another celebrity of the company was the character man, the late Frank Bacon, of "Lightnin" fame. To act as master of ceremonies and "nurse" for the Synchroscope, I held over for the summer, Lloyd Ingraham,

"U" Played Big Part in Hollywood's Rise

Hollywood—The growth of Hollywood is intertwined closely with Universal which was among the first to launch production here.

Motion pictures were first produced in Hollywood in 1911. Two years previously, the town boasted a population of

In 1914, this total had increased to 12,000; and as more producing companies established studios in Hollywood the population increased by leaps and Thirty-five thousand were living in the film center in 1919; and this figure had been nearly doubled in 1921 with a total of 60,000. By 1925, the total was 130,000 and the town had spread out with homes and Hollywood Boulevard became a famous thoroughfare.

By 1927, Hollywood had become the theatrical center of Los Angeles and Southern California, besides being the production center for 90 per cent of production in the United States. At this time, the population had increased to 145,000. Estimates today place Hollywood's population at 157,000.

my stage director, whom you will recall as having of recent years directed practically all of the late Fred Thomson's westerns. It was I who gave Harold Lloyd, an Omaha boy, his first job on any stage, playing "bits" in my stock company. He didn't wear goggles then Later he worked for "Uncle"

So you see that after all is said and done, there's nothing new in show business; it's the new ways of presenting the old stuff that keeps us all on our toes—and while we are on our toes—good old "Uncle" Carl is with us. May he smile for twenty more years!

Laemmle Ran Training School for Talent in '14

The old Universal studios at Gower and Sunset Boulevard served as the "breaking into pictures" spot back in 1913 and 1914 for many present-day writers, directors, and players of Al Christie then was directing comedies, in addition to having charge of the comedy department of the studio.

Frank Lloyd was an actor; later getting his first chance to direct for Universal.

Lon Chaney was a fine character actor in those days, being on the Universal payroll at a salary of about $45 weekly.

Allan Dwan was a director, then as now.

Marshall Neilan was a leading juvenile. Rupert Julian was an actor, later getting his first directing chance for Universal.

Bess Meredith wrote stories and appeared as leading woman in a series of one reelers for Universal.

Jeanie McPherson appeared as an actress in a few one reelers, and then decided that she was a better writer than player.

Jack Conway, present M-GM director, was leading man for westerns in the early "U" days.

Robert 2. Leonard was a juvenile leading man in Universal stock, later becoming a director with marked success.

Harry Pollard, now directing Universal specials, was on the payroll as a leading juvenile for Universal.

Henry McRae was directing one and two reel thrillers in those early days—and has continued with Universal down through the intervening to years.

Convincing Crook Melodrama

(Reviewed by Al Meyers)

I T has been said that "there is nothing new under the sun." "Officer O'Brien" does nothing to prove this statement inaccurate. What Pathe has done here is the incorporation into one story of all the sure-fire situations exploited successfully in the recent wave of crook operas. Once more the situations prove sure-fire. They'll go for this one. It is excellent program stuff.

They get conclusive evidence of the elder O'Brien's taking ways and use it to bludgeon the son into reways and use it to budgeon the son mo re-leasing their ringleader. Needless to say, it doesn't work. The picture is noteworthy for an auspicious debut. Ralf Harolde was recruited from the stage success "The Front Page" to do the heavy. Foreign-Made Story Not Strong

(Reviewed by Tom C. Kennedy)

ILY DAMITA, billed as "the star of "The L ILY DAMITA, mined as the Cock-Eved World," is what is counted to pull. This is a loreign-made production, produced by a French company and shot in Spain. The story is not particularly strong and the ending rather abrupt. The audience at all times is left in doubt as to whether the heroine is the wife or mistress of the hero. Box-office possibilities are very slim.

Lily Damita plays the role of a star of a Russian ballet traveling in Spain. She has never had a love affair, but while playing in Barcelona she meets the son of a family of aristocrats, and falls in love with him. But from time to time there is an urge to return to her old life. Finally when her old company returns, she plays one night and this, despite the fact that she has been forbidden to do so. When the hero finds it out the next morning there is trouble, but the picture ends with the girl saying that she is through with dancing forever. There are some corking dancing shots and the big scene of the picture is a Spanish bullfight shot in remarkable detail.

A Good Attraction

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

A LTHOUGH the title is far from suggesting it, this is still another back stage talkie with the action for the greater part laid in a theatrical boarding house of the type that no longer exists. From a box-office standpoint, the title in the more sophisticated centers may attract. The picture itself has nothing that will cause word of mouth advertising, although it is entertaining enough. There are no names connected with the cast or production that are going to mean a thing to picture fans.

It is the tale of a two man acrobatic team that splits over a girl. The two meet her when they return from the road to rest up after an injury has occurred to one of them. When they are ready to start out again a fight over the girl causes the final split, but happiness finally comes for all concerned.

William Harrigan and Robert Ames play the principal roles. Both capable stage actors but the dialogue had too much "dees and dose" in it. Mae Clark is the girl and gives a corking performance. That girl has a lot of personality.

Donald Gallaher, former stage actor, who directed, has turned out an exceptional piece of work for his first try.

POR the title alone, played at this time it I should attract. The country has been all het up about "the Street" for the last mouth and Columbia gets a lucky break that this is ready for release at this time. It is made to order for the day. It's just an average program production as far as talkies go, but it'll more than satisfy the customers that want the "big he man" stuff. That is just what Ralph Ince gives them.

Ince plays a former steel mill worker who invades Wall Street, makes a fortune and is wiped out by the inside slickers. For that he turns the tables on them and breaks one of them. The man commits suicide, and Ince, regretting the burden he has caused the wife of his victim, tries to make amends. He wants to

(Il'arners-All Dialogue) Strong Society Drama

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader) HERE is a society drama that is gripping and conpelling yet, at times, somewhat over the heads of the average audience. It is Conrad Nagel's first starring production and Conrad Nagel's first starring production and featured in his support are Lila Lee, Pauline Frederick and William Courtenay. The picture is from the play by Somerset Maugham. It should attract above the average business on the strength of its theme and strong cast. It is the story of a woman and two brothers. She loves one. On the day they are wed he is injured in a flying accident that makes him a cripple. Three years later after he has clung to life simply because of the devotion of his wife, who is wife in name only, his brother returns and the invalid husband insists that his wife shall go about with the younger man. They fall in love, are about to clope, but at the last minute haven't the courage. That night the invalid dies. The nurse thinks he was murdered by an overdose of sleeping powders and insists on an investigation, when the mother of the dead man confesses that she is the one, on the dead man contesses that she is the one, who inadvertently caused his death. Fine For "Arty" Patrons

(Reviewed by Ed Johnston)

THIS production has been one of the most successful pictures in the so-called "arty theatres. It has played practically all of the houses of that classification in New York some two or three times. From the standpoint of photography it is a thing of rare beauty. From a box office view point it must attract money or they wouldn't play return dates of it. But on the whole it is a picture that draws its audiences from the ranks that favor the freak houses.

The story concerns the building of the Tja Mahal and concerns a little Indian princess who is the sole surviving member of a caravan at-tacked by bandits. She is found by a wood carver who takes her to his home and raises her as his own in company with his son. son develops a love for the girl, but she is seen by a wealthy prince and taken to his harem. The boy of her youth follows her there and is seized in the women's quarters where man is forbidden to enter and is about to be executed, but is released and the real story of the harem girl revealed. The Treasure

(Film Arts Guild—Silent) Weird And Gruesome

(Reviewed by Freddie Schoder)
THIS is just a hokey-pokey. No rhyme, reason or anything else about it that will reason of anything erse about it that winget a nickle at the box office, except in art theatres where the patrons want "nut" stuff and are willing to pay for it. There is such a thing, however, as going a little too far in the "art" theatre idea when this sort of junk is offered in the guise of being artistic and dif-ferent. There's no reason for it. As for regular picture houses, any exhibitor that books this should be taken to an alienist.

The story on which the picture is based, is a legend about the Austrians being driven from their country by the Turks during the early 17th century and burying a treasure in a certain house. That house is inhabited by a bell moulder, who lives there with his wife, daughter and an assistant. He has a commission to cast a great bell and calls a youthful goldsmith to his assistance. The youth and the daughter fall in love with each other. But the elderly assistant, who is half-witted, wants the girl and feels that if he can find the treasure he can win her. The treasure is found but naught but unhappiness and death follow it, while the young couple go off and leave the gold behind but find happiness in each other.

Strauss, The Waltz King

(UFA East. Div.-Synchronized)

Fairly Interesting

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

THIS is a silent production with a synchronized score of Strauss music which will fit well enough into the programs of the daily change houses on double feature bills. It isn't any stronger material than that unless pre-sented with an appeal to music lovers. Even then it would seem a little weak.

The production is fair as to cast and its presentation and the photography is quite passable, but there is a very haphazard attempt at continuity in the editing for American con-

Both the Strauss', the older and the younger, are principal figures in the story. The home life of the family is shown with the father's aptitude for straying from the family fireside stressed. When he finally leaves to live with a woman other than his wife the younger Strauss decides that he will take up music as his life's work, even though such an education was opposed by his father.

The manner in which the youth succeeds and even outstrips his father in musical accomplishment and popularity throughout Europe is neatly set forth as is also his reason for the composition of "The Blue Danube," which he wrote for the wedding of the sweetheart that

In the next apartment a happy young bridegroom-to-be is yodeling his anticipation of wedded bliss-just one more bit of din that precedes t.b.m.'s trip south via boat to hunt a restful port. Aboard ship he stretches out in a steamer chain in blissful relaxation, but it's too good to be true. The newly-wedded couple is also there. Up to this point the stuff is good, then, while not altogether turning sour, the old gag of complications arising over two couples entering wrong staterooms is introduced. "The Flattering Word" (Vitathone No. 3238-2 Reels) Great Propaganda

THIS short is recommended for all picture houses, especially those in a territory making a fight for Sunday openings or against censorship. It is an object lesson in favor of the theatre, told with a deft touch of comedy and the whole story handled in such a manner that even though it attacks those opposed to the theatre and theatre-going, it drives home a lesson without giving offense. It is the story of an actor calling on a former girl, the wife of a minister who preaches against the theatre, In the end the preacher consents to go to the theatre himself. The comedy moments are supplied by the actor making two narrow-minded people admit that they have always held a desire to go on the stage themselves and hy the recitation on the part of a small town girl, whose mother believes that she has a great dramatic future. There is some scenic value to "Why Hurry?," wherein the natural beauties of Connecticut are shown; there are some illuminating sidelights into the life of the ant in "Subway" (the best of the lot); in "Paris Shop Fronts" milady's funting grounds are glimpsed, and in "The Gaudy Goldfish" Iavan's goldfish industry comes in for some feotage.

PROVING beyond a doubt that Charles Hackett of the Chicago Grand Opera Company is not only a great tenor but an actor of no mean ability. The first act of "Faust" in which Faust bargains with the devil, selling soul for youth, is rendered by Hackett in fine style. Toward the end of the reels he is assisted by Chase Baroemo, basso, whose also rich voice lends to the number. Of course it's a rather serious affair, this act, but it will go over hig with those who like their opera.

HERE Delaney's cheerful personality, good support from Harry B. Watson and Reg Merville, take this out of the "run" o mine" musical two reelers. Any house that does not cater to an ultra-dignified patronage will find this number a merry one to offer with a more serious feature. It also will bring satis-faction to those audiences which have missed vaudeville, for the film combines a sketch, a good dance act by well trained girls, singing, band act, clogging and wisecracks; in fact, almost a whole vaudeville bill packed into two reels. (Vitaphone No. 915-1 Reel)

Laughable Crossfire

A TYPICAL man and woman crossfire conversation act of the vaudeville stage. Has a number of good laughs. Built on the confusion of the relative positions of a number of men named Who, What and He. Well worked out, with a song and whistling bit thrown in for good measure. Lang and Healy a vaude-ville team, are the principals. Directed by Ar-thur Hurley. Running time 6 minutes. A very good filler for the average bill.

"Poet And Peasant"

(Vitaphone No. 447) Excellent Overture

T HIS well known and popular overture from "Poet and Peasant," finely rendered by the Vitaphone orchestra, Herman Heller conducting, will make an excellent number for any theatre that has cut down or eliminated its cr-chestra. The reel contains full views of the Orchestra and closeups of featured players.
This is one of the early Vitaphone releases.

Nice lead number for any sound house.

"Pathe Audio Review No. 32"

(Pathe-1 Recl

Nicely Diversified

POUR good subjects in this review, some fine sea shots off the coast of Penzance where Wolf Rock Light House takes on supplies in stormy weather; a radio broadcast number by WLW, in which a dog does his part for the orchestra; wedding costume fashions in Russia and the U. S., with singing, and last but not least the Pathe-European cameraman has undertaken to show you all the American hars in Europe.

"The Barber Shop Chord"

(Vitaphone—No. 3640)
Amusing Novelty

A NEW idea for barber shops which proves an amusing bit of work, directed by Tenny Wright and Sid Silvers. As an effort to boost the barber trade, hair cuts, shaves and shampoos are done with musical accompaniment. For instance, a customer appears and announces that he wants a hair cut. Immediately a quartette musically renders the idea. And so it goes. Good on any sound bill.

"Little Miss Everybody"

(Vitaphone—No. 919)
Clever Impersonations

Z ELDA SANTLEY gives a good account of herself with impersonations of Ted Lewis, Fannie Brice and Mae West. Her work gains in quality. The take-off on Lewis, while gams in quality. The take-off on Lewis, while fair enough does not compare with her efforts with material from Fannie Brice's "My Man" and Mae West's "Diamond Lil," the latter being particularly noteworthy.

Nice little number for most sound houses desiring to add Broodway flavor.

"One Man Quartette"

Fine Novelty

(l'itaphone—No. 881)

QUITE a remarkable fellow, this Eddie Miller. He performs the miracle of making one man into a quartette, singing all four parts. How does he do it, well, figure it out for yourselves. It will make some interesting discussion for your patrons. Of course, it's tricked but why give it away until you have to make an explanation.

Good program filler.

Ad Tips—In the lobby a glass case exhibited finger-print records from famous cases, and other paraphernalia pertaining to detective work. This attracted a good deal of attention. Advertising played up the mystery and detective angle.—Royal, Geo, Coppock, Mgr., Kansas City.

Big Time (Fox)

ALBANY, N. Y.—Leland (1,400), 25c-35c, 6 days. Other attractions, Fox Movietone News, a Grantland Rice sportlight "Stamina," an all talking comedy, "Mind Your Own Business," and George Dewey Washington in songs, Weather, pleasant. Ad Tips—Found it to advantage to play up "Stepin Fetchit" for that colored boy certainly has his following and would have more if he would talk a bit plainer. Played up Lee Tracy, also and likewise the fact that the picture is one of those backstage dramas of life and featured Hollywood studios. Andience appeal, general.—Leland, John Garry, Mgr., Albany, N. Y.

Ad Tips—Bill this from title as Tracy and Clarke are not names well known in pictures. Both hold story up, and will be remembered. Play up story of backstage and behind the scenes in Hollywood, as well as human interest story. Appeal is general.—Majestic, Eddie Bremer, Mgr., Houston.

"This And That"

A S long as there are all kinds of people necessary to make up the business of selling pictures to the public, then we must naturally expect all kinds of different gags, angles or what have you.

Some managers are never content to sit by and imitate their opposition. They are ever on the alert to originate or to make first use of any idea that will, in any manner, shape or form, increase the receipts or interest in the theatre. They are typical of the "leader" class of showman and, unquestionably, they will always predominate in the business.

Then we have, unfortunately, that other class who is constantly complaining "What can I do to improve business?" . . . "Why does my opposition always think of the good stunts first?". Well, we'll answer both of those questions. It's because he is dying on his feet and don't seem to realize it.

Only a week ago I met one of the "dying ducks" and he was complaining how a house in a town about five miles away had started working store tie-ups right on the same block with his theatre.

Now ain't that just too bad?

The merchants in his own town wanted to work with him but never got much in the line of encouragement so when his opposition came along they were tickled pink to extend the glad hand and give a hundred per cent co-operation.

Every idea or stunt you may want to use need not be strictly original. If it has never been used before its original enough for any house. We hand them out at the rate of anywhere from twenty-five to fifty a week. Maybe all of them are not feasible for your house. But surely you can find two or three each week that, with a little fixing up, will just meet your local situation

* * * *

And while we're harping on this subject it won't be amiss to sound another warning to the managers of those "hittin' on all cylinder houses." You know the ones we mean. Those babies that are clicking at the gate week in and week out.

Some of the boys at the controls are apt to get the queer notion that they do not have to work and publicize a house doing a big business.

NO?

Well, maybe I'm all wet, but the majority's opinion will probably be on my side.

True enough, if your house is doing close to capacity business right along (if there really is a Santa Claus) then you don't have to fall back on every stunt in the world to help it along.

But you must keep up the interest you have created and you can't do that by lying down on your publicity.

Grissinger Finds Calendar A Good Medium For Adyt.

C. A. Grissinger, general manager for the Shapiro Theatre Company operating the Shapiro Theatre in Mount Union, Pa., uses but one type of advertising among the patrons of that theatre.

It consists of a monthly calendar neatly gotten up in two colors and sets forth all of the attractions to be shown during the current month.

It is an unusually attractive piece of advertising matter and undoubtedly must be effective, or Mr. Grissinger would not depend upon it as the sole means of selling his pictures to the public.

We have already told you about this member in a recent issue of the NEWS, and we would welcome the opportunity to tell you more as soon as he posts us on his future activities.

K. M. Plessner Uses Plenty Of Novelty To Exploit Shows

It really gives us great pleasure to introduce to the members and readers of the ROUND TABLE pages Mr. K. M. Plessner, who manages the Rialto Theatre in Allentown, Pa. for the Wilmer & Vincent outfit.

Although a newcomer to the ROUND TABLE CLUB. Fred is by no means new to the show game, having enjoyed a wide and varied career in different stages of the industry.

Since coming to Allentown he has managed to win his way into the good graces of the entire community by his bright and sunny smile and charming personality, and from the stories we have been told about Plessner and his activities we have every reason to believe that he will become a mighty valuable asset to the Wilmer & Vincent chain of theatres.

Fred informs us that among the recent stunts which he has engineered at the Rialto was the use of a numbered program and a guest ticket that has brought much increased business to the box office. As a means of stimulating weak matinees he has successfully used a ladies' guest ticket and a young folks' guest ticket, both angles of which turned out to be very productive of additional business for the afternoon trade.

Mr. Plessner volunteers the opinion that any theatre suffering from a similar situation could work these two stunts to great benefit. This is just a start of his campaign to get in the theatre two great boosters—women and children. If he succeeds in cultivating a good matinee trade from this angle, it is safe to say that word of mouth advertising and general comment about the theatre will do the rest.

Vincent M. Tate Will Contribute To Club Pages

Rather than disappoint us after our urgent request, Vincent M. Tate, manager of the Roosevelt Theatre, Swoyerville, Pa., sent us this snapshot in the hopes that we would give him more time to have a better picture made.

However, just so long as it gives us an opportunity to see what he looks like, we are grateful to Vincent for his prompt attention to our request. We would now like to have him pass on some of his exploitattion and publicity activities so that we can know just what kind of a showman he really is and what he is doing to stimulate business for the Roosevelt Theatre.

How about it, Vincent, don't you think that you have some angle to your usual activities that might possibly be of benefit to your many other brother managers all over the world?

At any rate, it is a corking good medium to let the rest of the world know who you are and what you are doing, so why not take advantage of it. and pass something along to the rest of the crowd. Thanks a lot any way in advance.

E. G. Jollimore Tells Us Something About Advt.

We are reprinting below a letter received from E. G. Jollimore, advertising manager of the Magnet Theatre, Dorchester, Mass. The point which Mr. Jollimore brings out in this letter is vital and timely enough to be emphasized to every manager or showman in the business, and for that reason we are reprinting the letter entirely.

I would like to say a few words to the members of the club in Recently Carl Laemmle said, "Widen your circle of patronage." He is right, if you depend upon your neighborhood patronage you are doomed. Your neighbor goes to the theatre he or she hears the most about.

Does a chain theatre confine its advertising to the neighborhood it is in? The answer is no. They advertise strongly in the districts outside of their territory

Is there any reason why the small theatre can't do the same? I often wondered and then I tried it.

Last week my theatre played "Show Boat." We advertised very strongly in outside districts and the results were tremendous. Although three Publix theatres all within fifteen minutes walk of my theatre played the same picture we did an S.R.O. business. e could never have done this with only neighborhood patronage.

I honestly think that if some of our members tried advertising in districts other than their own neighborhood they would get the same results as I did.

E. G. JOLLIMORE

We are very grateful for this frank expression of his opinion from this member, and we are certain that those of our readers who are on the alert for sensible suggestions and ideas, will give this one plenty of earnest consideration. At any rate, it is worth perusal so that you can determine whether you are really getting the most out of your surrounding community.

Harold Blumenthal Builds A Unique Front For Montauk

Here is the way Harold Blumenthal started Passaic, N. J. talking when he presented them with an entirely new display at the New Montauk Theatre, one of the houses he is supervising in that city.

You have all read about some of Mr. Blumenthal's wideawake activities, and this is but another wrung in the ladder of showmanship as far as this manager is concerned.

Those who have already run this feature will know that it is not the easiest one in the world to sell, as it seems to be lacking, according to letters received here, in the angles that attract the women folk and any one up against a condition of that kind. regardless of how good the picture is has got a job on their hands.

We are very proud to say that this display helped a great deal in putting the picture over for Blumenthal, and for that reason he is entitled to a lot of credit for the success that the run enjoyed.

Great work, Harold, and thanks a lot for keeping us posted so regularly on what you are doing. Keep up this habit as it is a good one to cultivate and continue.

Bill Collier, Another Publix Livewire In Florida

The photograph with this story should be sufficient evidence in anyone's mind that Bill Collier, manager of the Victory Theatre in Tampa, Florida, is on his toes and ever alert to exploit his theatre and the attractions they are showing there. With the aid of his able assistant, Lew Newsome, he sets forth to accomplish unusual things in the way of exploitation and how well he succeeds merely requires a close inspection of the photograph as well as a careful perusal of this story.

For example, on "Hollywood Revue" he decided to dope out a lobby that would embody practically all the colors of the rainbow besides a couple of extra ones that he would throw into the bargain. Adding a few angles and triangles made it still more attractive, and the finished product is offered below for your inspection.

Perhaps one of the most complete of all campaigns was that he engineered on "The Gold Diggers of Broadway," which included a marvelous parade consisting of a live-wire band and hundreds of kiddies all carrying little bags of gold. In the accompanying photograph we show you the head of the parade, as well as the portion with the 100-

1929 Gold Diggers.

Part of this parade consisted of many decorated new automobiles, and in this view of part of the parade, you will see the marvelous cutouts and displays which he created for the front of the theatre.

A snappy throwaway consisting of a pay envelope was employed as an additional feature for Collier's campaign on "Gold Diggers" and we show you the copy that was printed on the face of these envelopes. The inside contained a lot of pebbles which were gilded to look like gold. This was an unusually good

On the picture "Why Bring That Up?" Collier employed two overgrown boys dressed up to represent Moran and Mack, one carrying a suitcase and putting the other in a large basket baby carriage containing two dice. These dice were so marked that whenever dropped, they would turn to a seven and the boys would start conversation along the lines used by the stars in the picture. Naturally this stunt went a great way towards publicizing the picture.

This is an angle that has been used in almost every spot where this particular picture has played, but it nevertheless carries a wallop as an outdoor ballyhoo, and we suggest that you keep it in mind for this picture.

Ever since Mr. Collier started working at the Victory Theatre he has impressed Guy Kennimer, who is the City Manager for the Publix houses in Tampa, with his spirit of showmanship and desire to co-operate in putting over these big impressive campaigns. This is just part of what he accomplished on what he terms his "October Campaign" at the Victory Theatre and there are many other features of his exploitation activities which will appear on these pages in subsequent issues.

At this time we will take leave of Bill and trust that he sends us his own photograph with his next contribution, as we are particularly anxious to let the rest of the crowd see what he looks like. So long, Collier, and lots of luck to you in your future activities.

F. W. Tierney Has A "Kiddie Klub" Stunt To Pass On

F. W. Tierney, manager cf. the. Olympic. Theatre, Watertown, N., Y., steps forth to inform us that he will shortly forward details of his "Kiddie Klub" and other data to prove that an organist can do other things besides play an organ. Well, "F. W." I can't think of a better way of proving your contention than what you have promised to do, and I suggest you send us the information together with your own photograph at the earliest possible moment.

In case our readers may be confused as to what this is all about, we hasten to inform you that Mr. Tierney started in the Schine enterprises as an organist at the Grand Theatre, Malone, N. Y.

With the appearance of talkies, poor Tierney went the way of all organists, but was far from discouraged as his present position will indicate. Having acted as assistant manager at that time, he was well equipped to step into a theatre as directing head, and this he has successfuly accomplished.

We are sure that Mr. Tierney will make great strides in his new field of endeavor.

Hotels & Apartments!

Here's a suggestion for those members whose theatres cater to an apartment house or hotel trade.

The idea is to make an arrangement with the superintendent or manager of the apartment and hotel whereby he will permit the placing of a neat lobby type display frame containing 11 x 14 frame or built just to accommodate a neat card which will announce the current or coming or special attractions at your

Such a tieup would probably not cost you more than a season pass or even if you have to pay a small amount in cash, it would be well spent, providing, of course, the apartment house or hotel is large enough to make such a tieup worthwhile.

Here is an angle which can be elaborated on or boiled down to suit individual conditions and could even be carried to the point of a cooperative tieup with the larger office buildings and even banks.

Everybody whether in the show business or commercial line recognizes the tremendous value of theatre tieups and is glad to cooperate in some way that will be beneficial to them as well as the theatre.

At any rate, it don't cost you anything to see how you can work this one out, but we have so much faith in it that we feel that you can capitalize on the suggestion. If you do succeed in putting it over, all we ask in return for the thought is that you send us a picture or description of how you put it over.

E. E. Bair Finds Out We Are Well Acquainted In Ohio

Hear Ye, hear ye, hear ye. At last I have been found

My good friend, E. E. Bair, whom I have often had the pleasure of mentioning on the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB as being the wide-awake and alert manager of the State and America Theatres of East Liverpool, Ohio, has finally found out that I am personally acquainted with a lot of the boys out his way. When he mentioned in his letter, such fellows as Kelly, Himmeloin, Roberts and the rest of them, it sort of started a homesick feeling in my "boosum.'

But less you suspect that I am waxing sentimental, I hasten to disillusion you and tell you that it is always a pleasure to hear from friend Bair and what he is doing.

Ralph Noble Uses Good Displays For Selling His Shows

From Ralph Noble, the peppy advertising manager for the Arkansas Amusement Corp. out in Little Rock, Ark., we now pass on some more of his recent showmanship activities.

On the picture "Hollywood Revue" we hasten to show you the mighty attractive front used at the Capitol Theatre and one which would do credit to any theatre of this size regardless of where it is located.

Another angle which particularly appealed to us was the transformation of a regular 24 sheet stand on the side of the same theatre into a shadow box which you will note upon close observation made a corking piece of house advertising for this or any other attraction on which it is used. This particular shadow box has already attracted considerable attention and Noble feels that increase in their business has been sufficient to pay for the cost, which happened to be somewhere in the neighborhood of $75.

In order to give you an idea of what this is like, this shadow box has a depth of 15 inches and is illuminated both from within and without. Being located on one of the most prominent corners of Little Rock, it is naturally a marvelous eye-arresting display, and one that is decidedly out of the ordinary.

We appreciate Ralph's motive in going to the trouble of telling us about this shadow box, because we feel the same as he does, that it is a worth while suggestion for any theatre that happens to be fortunate as to a location near a busy street corner. In this respect we might say, if your theatre is located far from transient traffic it would not pay to spend this much money for this type of a layout. However, the stunt is described here for your use and benefit and if you find some suggestion in it that can be utilized to meet your own local situation, go to it.

Thanks, Noble, and we want you to know that we are always tickled to receive your contributions as they always carry a whale of a punch from the viewpoint of the showman. Let's hear from you again soon, and don't forget that last request of ours for one of your photographs.

Irwin R. Waite Is Putting 'Em Over At Galveston, Tex.

It takes a real showman to step into surroundings that are both strange and unusual to him and immediately start "firing on all cylinders."

Which is our own pet way of introducing the latest one of Irwin R. Waite's activities. Irwin, as you might recall from a recent article on the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages, just arrived at the Publix-Queens Theatre in Galveston, Texas, and it certainly did not take him very long to get both feet on the ground and dope out ways and means of increasing business.

One of the high lights of his campaign on "Hollywood Revue" was a radio contest in which he approached station KFLX and sold the idea of their contributing the necessary time for the broadcasting of six questions pertaining to the picture. This was repeated twice daily for one day in advance and during the first four days of the picture's run. The questions all had a direct bearing on the picture, and, naturally, directed a great deal of interest among the listeners in to the particular attraction which was playing at the Queen Theatre.

The answers to the questions asked over the radio were turned in to the box office of the theatre and the nature of the questions made it quite necessary for the contestants to see the picture first, as it was an impossibility to answer correctly without so doing.

The first twenty-five correct answers received at the box office, were awarded a Victor Record containing two of the song hits from the picture. These records were secured at cost, thus holding the stunts to a minimum expenditure. Incidentally, we might say that for the marvelous results obtained, $10.50 was the entire cost and yet it called the attention of more people than any other medium that had been used in quite a long time,

Glad to hear from you and of your activities again, Waite, even though you are quite a bit removed from your last contribution, but we are sure that we will hear many interesting things about you as soon as you get further settled in Galveston.

Exploiting Harold Lloyd

The group of photographs below shows how the Rivoli Theatre in New York City, plugged the new Lloyd picture before and after the opening.

These life-sized cutouts of Harold created plenty of talk, plus some good laughs.

Photograph 1 was perched above the outside box office and attracted the attention of the passersby.

Photograph 2 stood aghast at the first stair landing, which is exactly what most of the customers did when they first saw it.

Photograph 3 stood at the exit and sent the crowds home with another reminder about the picture.

Photograph 4 found himself a cozy corner where he comfortably seated himself.

Photograph 5 politely picked up ladies handkerchiefs as they passed into the theatre.

Photograph 6 made the patrons on the mezzanine turn quickly when they caught sight of him coming through the window with a cop.

Just how much use these photos and descriptions mean, depend a whole lot on how much of a showman you happen to be. Some may pass the entire matter up with a shring and a "good for Broadway only" remark. That's their hard luck 'cause they are missing a doggoned good

The wide-awake showman will immediately recognize the possibilities and plan his ways and means of cashing in on this idea in conjunction with his other plans for this attraction.

C. L. Gwinn Put Over Novel Stunt At Aberdeen, Wash.

Cecil L. Gwinn resident manager of the Fox D & R Theatre in Aberdeen, Wash. used a mighty clever stunt to stimulate interest in an election midnight performance at that theatre.

He broadcast a Mayoralty Guessing Contest, whereby all of the patrons of the Fox D & R Theatre were allowed to guess the votes that each of the candidates would receive in the forthcoming election.

The Theatre was mobbed and packed to the doors for this election midnight show, as all of those who had made a guess were anxious to see how close they were to being

We have quoted Frank many times and admired his work from dozens of different angles, so naturally we were glad to meet him personally and shake his hand.

This is a mighty clever angle and one that could be used for many other purposes. Keep this one handy boys, and if you are able to get anything out of it, remember that the suggestion came from Mr. Gwinn and to him goes the

S. L. Alig, Jr., who manages the Capitol Theatre in Plant City, Fla., doped out a queer angle in exploitation when he distributed the card pictured with this article.

The original of this card measured 4 x 7 inches and in the hole at the top of the card, there was placed a peanut.

Need we say much more about this angle? We think not, as the card, the wording and the peanut should present to your mind dozens of different angles that would invoke roars of laughter from everybody receiving one.

The card in itself certainly is not an expensive proposition, and the little additional cost of the peanut was a mighty small premium to pay for something that is bound to make an ordinary throwaway outstanding and commanding attention from all those who receive them during the time they were distributed. There are lots of theatres who persist in falling back on the usual ordinary throwaways until they are a nightmare to the folks who must have them stuffed down their throats or into their letterboxes. This type of stuff, as used trequently in different forms by Alig, is typical of the more original way of directing attention to special attractions. Use more of this stuff and less of the ordinary announcement circulars and you are spending money both wisely and well.

It was a great gag, Alig ,and we would certainly like to know a whole lot more about your novel and up to the minute exploitation ideas. Suppose you accommodate us with one of your own photographs the next time you write us. O.K? Good.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLU

"Freshen Up"

The blending of colors and color schemes has always been identified with theatres of a modern trend. The frequent changing of colors in the lighting of your theatre is bound to create favorable comment from your patrons and keep them from taking everything so matter-of-fact. 1 have found theatres where fortunes were spent in providing good lighting effects when the theatre was being built, and vet the bulbs were never changed for years at a time. Why? Long experience has already shown us that an extra set or two of electric bulbs is a fine investment and when properly handled will last for many years.

If you only take the trouble to look around your theatre at certain times with the sole idea in mind that you want to "Brighten" things up a bit—that your theatre is becoming too monotonous, not only to your patrons but even to you. You will find that the old pilot lights have not been relamped for months. The color on them may be faded, many of them may be burnt out. A new set, with possibly a new color will give you startling results. And that goes for your main fixtures, coves or any other portion of your theatre that is used for illumination. I heartily recommend a complete relamping of the inside of a theatre every six months. Those who can afford it might even do it more often. And get away from the sameness all the time. Try something new and experiment a bit with different colors in order that you may get the best results. Then, if your patrons don't comment on it, I will publish an open apology for even suggesting the idea.

And this little story holds good for small as well as large houses. No matter what they are or where they are located, they are theatres just the same.

Club Cartoonist Leaves Theatre Game For Present

Dick Kirschbaum now famous for his cartoon and membership activities in the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB has resigned his position as manager of the Lincoln Theatre, Arlington, N. J., to return to his first love, the fourth estate. Dick has just become a member of the sporting department of the Newark Evening News where his ability as a writer and cartoonist will be much in evidence.

We of the ROUND TABLE CLUB do not doubt Dick's ability to more than make good in his new connection, and although the Lincoln Theatre in particular and the theatrical industry in general has lost a damn fine showman, we are more than grateful to Dick for his promise to continue his activities as cartoonist of these nages.

At the same time both Mr. Kirschbaum and your Chairman wish to convey to the many members who responded to our request for ideas, their thanks for coming across.

Dick's cartoons will continue to appear every week on the third CLUB page, and we are sure that our many mem-

It's been a long time since we stopped off to shake hands with our old friend G. H. Foster out there in Marion, O., but time, as we figure it today, passes much too quickly to live in past memories. We rather prefer to keep both up to the present and looking ahead to the future. It's a lot more progressive for the show business. Right?

But let's get back to Foster and to tell you that he has connected with the Schine Ohio houses and is managing the Kenton Theatre out in Kenton, Ohio, for them. Which should mean that Kenton and the Schines are getting a darned good break. Why not? Foster is an ace showman and his affiliation with any theatre or circuit should be advantageous to both sides of the bargain.

Running true to form, Foster has already built up a fine crowd of friends among the citizens and merchants of the town and that means the better part of the battle is already won. Kenton, as a matter of fact, is in the throes of a hectic political battle and Mr. Foster's ability to remain neutral is a credit to his diplomacy. But since the political angle arrived, as usual, with the regular election it gave "G.H." an opportunity of tying in the ballot form of circular (the reproduction appearing with this story.)

Here is a good gag to keep in mind for similar purposes in any town on the map or it may be converted into a Railroad type of throwaway such as was shown on these pages quite recently. The copy on it is worthy of keeping for handy reference and we are sure that many of our members and readers will find much to interest them on it.

Thanks, Foster, and now that you are active once again try to keep us posted on all of your activities and by all means let us have a photo of yourself by return mail. We want the rest of the gang to see what you look like.

Mike Nicholas Now With Fox-Metro Chain In B'klyn

Mike Nicholas, who for several years was identified with the Century Circuit in Brooklyn is now connected with the Fox Metropolitan Chain and has been assigned to look after the Parkside

Theatre in Brooklyn,

Mike deserves a lot of credit for the way he has tackled this latest house of his and we are certain that his new bosses will agree that he is on the job and plugging like the very devil for the Parkside.

If our humble opinion meant anything we would venture the thought that Mike is capable of handling a far better and larger house than the Parkside but if what he is doing there counts for anything, then we'll be reading about a move up the ladder for him very soon.

Lots of luck, Mike, and why not let us know what you are doing to make a rep for yourself in that new outfit?

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

R. W. Bickert Made Use Of Repair Signs On Street The main street of Marion, Ohio, undergoing repairs proved to be an excellent spot for Manager R. W. Bickert to place two signs advertising Buddy Rogers and Nancy Carroll in "Illusion" playing at the Publix Palace Theatre.

The signs carrying copy reading, "Those Splendid Lovers—Nancy Carroll and Buddy Rogers in ILLUSION at the Palace three days commencing Tues. Oct. 8th." were placed at either end of the torn-up street and were probably the best spots in town for attention-getting value.

In addition, Bickert also staged a parade of bannered cars, had six co-operative window displays and an all crystal mirror ball whirling under the canopy with two spot lights on it that gave an illusion effect and cast moving lights on the street and on the building opposite the theatre.

Another angle of this progressive showman was that in connection with the photo connection with the photo showing the way he dressed up a window close by to the theatre.

To glorify a three sheet poster used for a window display in a vacant window next door to the theatre, Mgr. Bickert masked in the window and left an oval shaped opening through which the poster could be seen. Colored cloth was folded in pleats and strung from the front of the window back to the poster, giving the three sheet a deluxe background.

Nice work Bickert. We rather suspect that you are constantly engineering many more like this one and we are therefore wondering whether you are going to keep on passing them along to your many brother managers via these up-to-the-minute pages. You can answer this one better than anyone else. How about it? Oak? Good boy. Let's Go!

Try This One From Mike Purcell Of San Antonio, Tex.

Down in San Antonio, Tex., Milte Purcell, Manager of the Empire Theatre used a novel ballyhoo stunt to exploit "The Love Doctor."

A man was on the street carrying a doctor's satchel with copy on it marked, "THE LOVE DOCTOR—OFFICES—EMPIRE THEATRE." This little stunt created lots of interest and certainly put over the title of the picture to make it common gos-ip among many people.

Special heralds were prepared and distributed to girls in offices, factories, etc. These heralds contained the Love Doctor's advice to girls as well as giving title of picture, star, theatre and play dates.

HOLIDAY SEASON!

The coming Holiday season offers many opportunities for the house manager to capitalize on dozens of different "Good-Will" angles.

Running Special Morning Shows for Institution Kiddies under newspaper or Chamber of Commerce auspices always creates a marvelous impression with the public.

Preparations for your Midnight Show on New Year's Eve must be made now. Make it outstanding over all previous shows.

Special matinees—with a toy or clothes as the price of admission, then turning over receipts to some worthy institution is another corking angle. And watch the publicity you get too.

IF YOU ARE WIDE AWAKE YOU'LL DOPE OUT ANY NUMBER OF BUSINESS STIMULATORS.

BUT IF YOU'RE ASLEEP—WELL—WE'LL PROBABLY ENROLL THE NEW MANAGER OF YOUR THEATRE BEFORE LONG.

Nice work, Mike. Now how about telling us just a little bit about yourself? It's a mighty good way of getting acquainted with your many brother managers in the show business and we are certain that you are not anxious to keep yourself a secret. Right?

THE WORLD'S BEST SHOWMEN ARE MEMBERS OF THE ROUND TABLE CLUB

NACERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Tom Roberts, Jr. Is Sure A Real Chip Of The Old Block

At the time we told you the story of F. A. Kelly's activities, we overlooked the fact that Mr. Kelly particularly wanted us to give Tom Roberts some of the credit for the engineering of the activities of those theatres in Jamestown, N. Y. Now we offer for your approval a group of 12 photographs on the various activities of Tim Roberts' young son. The Palace and Winter Garden Theatres in that upstate city, have been the center of much theatrical activity and there was always enough doing to keep the theatregoers' mind on entertainment and naturally keyed up to the point where they were willing to go to theatre more often than was generally their custom.

To get on to this group of photographs to give you all an idea of what it is all about. Starting on the top row from left to right, the first shows the marquee display on "Broadway," using four foot letters spelling the name of the picture, and painted a brilliant red, with the three sheet cutouts mounted on each end of same, and the "Broadway" dolls hanging from each letter.

Number two shows the attractive cloth sign all around the marquee on "The Lady Lies" which you must agree made a wonderful splash.

Number three shows the wonderful tieup with the Whippet Motor Co. on "The College Coquette."

Number four shows Tom's cutout on "Noah's Ark" with the ark on as many cutouts as he could get on to the marquee.

Number five shows one of the cutouts on the top of the marquee on "The Cocoanuts" with heads of the Marx brothers stuck on to the front of the display.

Number six was the layout for "On With the Show," and while the photo does not do it any great justice, we would want you to know that the background where it is curved along the top was painted to resemble a rainbow with the balance of the matter being white on black.

Number seven shows the attractive cutout on "SAY IT WITH SONGS."

Number eight shows the front of the Palace Theatre with the banner used on "The River of Romance." Too bad that the photo is so small or we would be able to show you F. A. and young Tom standing in the picture.

Number nine shows the sample of the show cards which they have turned out in the art department of the Palace and Winter Garden Theatres and they certainly are neat pieces of work.

Paper Bag Gag Going Big!

The newest fad in exploitation and publicity gags is the furnishing of paper bags to local merchants free gratis and containing the complete week's program of the theatre doing the donating.

Stores and merchants are falling for it pronto because they are getting something for nothing and now there seems to be a mad scramble from a dozen different sources to capitalize on the idea.

Lots of the theatre chain outfits are going for it big and have, in some instances, placed circuit orders in large quantities for a long period of time.

Not that the idea itself is so doggoned new.

We've passed on paper bag tie-ups on a dozen different occasions, only ours had this nice feature: the merchant furnished the bag and his store was tied into the copy used for the tie-up.

However, if you've never worked this one before just keep in mind that here is a stunt that means getting YOUR program into the home beyond the shadow of doubt. And there are many theatres where such a break could do a lot of good.

Number ten was the attractive street ballyhoo used on "Say It With Songs" and the Jolson cutout must have attracted plenty of attention up there in Jamestown.

Number eleven is another group of the lobby display and showcards made by their art department.

ROLLRY

Number twelve the last of the group shows the cutout on the "Greene Murder Case" which was used on the marquee of the Winter Garden Theatre. The words "baffling mystery solved" were attached to chicken wire, and gave the impression of floating on the

There were so many other interesting points in Tom's letter that we thought it best not to try to incorporate too much at one time, but before we close we do want you to see this little snapshot showing Gordon Yorke, the house manager of the

Look for some more about this marvelous little organization up in Jamestown which comprises Mr. F. A. Kelly, the resident manager for both houses, the two house managers, their exploitation staff and their artists. They can set many an example for other showmen to follow throughout the country.

Then they are carefully packed, labeled and shipped. All of these operations require a certain amount of time and certificates cannot be expected by new members in less than several weeks after the applications for membership have been received.

Kindly keep this in mind, and bear with us if you feel that there is any unnecessary delay.

R. Nicholls Tells How Theatres Are Run Down In Africa

In order that we in this part of the world may get some idea of how showmen must handle themselves in far off countries, we have taken the liberty of reproducing a portion of a letter received from Mr. R. R. Nicholls, Manager of the Grand Theatre in Grahamstown, South Africa.

Take the few minutes necessary to read this over, boys, and maybe you will begin to appreciate the many advantages which you enjoy over managers in countries like South Africa where they must exhibit rare ability to keep their theatre up to date.

We are grateful to Mr. Nicholls for this letter, as well as the fine cooperation we have received from all of our South African members, and Mr. J. H. Stodel, the superintendent of the African Theatres, Ltd.

PRESENTING OF SHOWS

One of the main items under this heading seems to me to be PUNCTUALITY, i.e. I always keep strictly to the advertised times—never varying a minute. Doors are always opened half an hour before the start of the show, the advertisement slides are started in time to be over by the time the advertised time of starting the Program is due.

As far as stage decorations, etc., go for the presentation of films I leave this strictly alone except for a few super films on which I can go all-out in advertising.

WORKING WITH STAFF

I always endeavor to keep the staff interested in the business of the theatre—asking them for suggestions as to improved comfort for patrons, stunts for films, etc.—though as yet I have not received any practical suggestions from them. I also try to keep a friendly spirit among them by interesting myself about their affairs-at the same time allowing no liberties to be taken. If I

D. F. Stevenson says:

see an Usher slacking or doing anything wrong I speak to him quietly and privately pointing out his mistake if no notice is taken and the offense again repeated I call the whole staff together a a suitable time and reprove the individual in front of them all. A third chance is not allowed to any man. I instill the necessity of politeness into my staff—also the fact that each individual mem-ber of the public should be treated as if he or she were a person of great distinction and importance.

Whenever I have to take on a new man I take him personally in hand for the first few days and show him how I want things to be done. This starts a man off properly and also reminds the rest of the staff that the Manager really does know what he is talking about and is not asking for impossibilities.

The necessity for perfect screening is impressed on the opera-tor and every small fault is pointed out to him.

My principle in dealing with the staff in general is: "Never drive an employee—always guide him; if he has to be driven then get rid of him."

ORCHESTRA AND MUSIC

Having only a small orchestra here composed of a pianist and Having only a small orchestra here composed of a pianist and two violins my scope is somewhat limited but nevertheless I endeavor to make as much "splash" as possible with the limited material. Whenever possible I allow the leader to have a preview of every fresh film and so enable him to fit in really appropriate music. I further encourage the members of the orchestra by persuading them every now and then to go on the stage and give solos. These "turns" are, of course, advertised and incidently bring us in a little more money—so it acts both ways.

Thanks a whole lot, Mr. Nicholls, and try and keep us posted further on your other activities, especially along the lines of publicity and exploitation. Regards to our other members, and tell them all we would like to hear from them regularly.

Tipton Worked Out A Window Display That Was Different

Here is a mighty unusual and attractive window display which was worked out by Manager Tipton of the Orpheum Theatre in Huntington, West Virginia, when that showman played

"Broadway" at his theatre.

Here is a manager who figures the possibilities of a picture as soon as he puts in his play dates, and then goes out after it from every conceivable angle with a view to cashing in as much as possible.

Feeling that "Broadway" was the type of picture that the Orpheum patrons would be glad to see, providing it were sold to them properly and exploited, he set to work with newspaper tieups and window displays, together with a theatre front dressing that was really big time stuff, and he deserves all the credit that the success of the run enjoyed.

Mr. Tipton enjovs one distinction which many other showmen are being advised to cultivate, namely, that of a local following among the leading town folks and merchants of his city. With such a weapon he can practically accomplish anything he sets out to do, and this really spells success for any worthwhile attraction that he goes out after, because he can easily sell the merchants an idea to work with him.

We would like to hear a whole lot more from this showman, and tell our other members and readers about his activities on these pages.

Harry Shaw's Big Harvest Festival A Beautiful Display

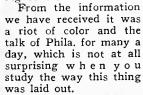

What we consider one of the most gorgeous lobby displays ever executed, is our own way of describing the layout for the Stanley Warner Earle Theatre in Philadelphia, Pa. to commemorate their October picture harvest month.

The two views of the lobby which we are showing with this story speak for themselves, and you can only imagine how far more beautiful the display must have appeared under proper lighting conditions.

This Harvest Month Campaign naturally suggests a wealth of exploitation possibilities, as well as tieups with local merchants and the opportunity to work out unlimited lobby displays.

Harry Shaw, the managing director of the theatre is responsible for this successful layout and from what we have been given to understand, the Earle Theatre made one of the most marvelous displays in the competition among all of the Stanley Warner theatres in that section for a successful lobby display on this Harvest Month celebration.

They are now engaged in a series of doll matinees at the Earle Theatre, and part of the publicity stunt in connection with the inauguration of this business-getting idea was the arrival of a giant soldier doll, claimed to be the largest of its kind in the world, which made its appearance via airplane and measured 9 feet 11 inches tall Harry Rose, the master of ceremonies of the Earle Theatre, and the Earle Rockets who composed the dancing ensemble in that theatre's stage show, were on hand to receive the giant toy in the airport amid the cheers of a large crowd that had assembled in response to the publicity surrounding the arrival of this doll. It was then put on to a car and brought to the City where it attracted much attention. The Earle Lobby is now its resting place. where it is on exhibition in conjunction with the announcement for the doll matinee,

We must admit that Harry Shaw is responsible for some mighty fine activities at the Earle, and our next move will be to induce him to send us one of his own photographs so that we can sort of introduce him in a more intimate and personal way to our many, many readers and members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB.

Cecil Vogel Put Over A Marvelous Campaign At Loews

By virtue of the fine showing made in connection with the campaign for "Holly-wood Revue" at Loew's State Theatre in Memphis, Tenn., Cecil Vogel is more than entitled to mention on the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages.

Here is a member who has a knack of laying out a most complete and thorough campaign in connection with any outstanding attraction that is to play his theatre, and then seeing it through to a successful climax.

Such planning and such successful execution most always results in a box office reaction that is pleasing to both the house manager and his superiors of the chain that the house belongs to. In this instance, Cecil has made an effort to line up every conceivable angle that the picture gave him an opening to work on, and has earned the praise of Ernest Emerling, the City Manager of the Loew Theatre in Memphis.

It would take much more space than we could possibly afford to spare for any individual story to set forth every single detail of this marvelous campaign, so we must ask our other members to take our word, that we have before us the most comprehensive layout ever called to our attention for any attraction, regardless of how big or small it may be, and we want to congratulate Mr. Vogel on the fine showing he has made.

Charlie Ryan's Anniversary Was A Gala Event In Chi.

Charles Ryan, who manages Jimmy Costons' Buckingham Theatre in Chicago has just completed his first year with their sound installation and is now entering upon their second year of perfect talking pictures.

The Buckingham Theatre, incidentally, with its 1000 seats was one of the first neighborhood houses on the north side of Chicago to present talkies to their patrons, and the success that has followed in its wake, was largely due to the fine showmanship displayed by Charlie Ryan, and we take this means of congratulating him and wishing him a very happy second anniversary.

In reproducing the front cover of his house program we do so with the idea that you would like to see how he worded his message to the patrons for this particular occasion. It struck us as being rather tactful yet forceful from the patron viewpoint but Charlie knows his audience, as witness the success of his management in this house. So if there is something here that holds value for you other fellows then your time in looking this over was not lost. How about some more. Ryan? Make it a regular habit. It's good to cultivate.

Miller Breaks A Seven Year Record —And Then Kicks

A. H. R. Miller, manager of the Opera House in Waynesboro, Pa., broke a seven year record at his theatre when he played "The Gold Diggers of Broadway." but somehow or other he still can register a kick.

"A. H.'s" objection was that the color and the music was so good that it took the edge off the black and white pictures, with the result that the first picture to follow after "Gold Diggers" suffered, and how!

Folks have continued to ask him ever since the engagement closed, when the next colored musical is coming, and he feels that unless they make more of these shows, that they are going to hurt rather than help the box office.

Listen, Miller, if I were able to boast of a seven year box office record broken, I wouldn't care a tinker's damn about a couple of kicks that follow, because everyone of those kicks are a boost for the next colored picture you run. Just build up to it and you will cash in plenty.

We want you fellows to also take a look at one of the ads he ran in conjunction with "The Gold Diggers" and you can pass judgment on it yourself especially as to the layout. We think it rather good but there are some who may not agree with us, at any rate, if you fellows in the big cities had to contend with some of the small town papers that Miller and your Chairman have had to, you would consider this a good setup for a town the size of Waynesburg.

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?

Meet Some New Members!

FRANCIS P. McDONALD manages the Columbia Theatre in Portsmouth, Ohio, for the Schine Enterprises, and has earned the peculiar reputation for being the most arrested man in the business. However, we told you about that on the CLUB pages, so we will now look forward to hearing some interesting things from Francis, and perhaps he will send us one of his photos with his next letter. How about it, "F. P."?

—IVear Your Club Pin!!!—

FRANK A. GORDON manages the Music Hall Theatre in Pawtucket, R. I., and with a 1,500-seat sound house on his hands, he should certainly be in a position to tell us a whole lot more about what we have received to date. How about it, Frank? And you might favor us with a photograph, we would like to have one on file.

-Wear Your Club Pin! ! !-

MORTON M. SHANKMAN manages the State Theatre in Reading and is number three of the group recently proposed by our old friend and member, Harry G. Stearn. We would like to know a little more about Morton and how long he has been in the show business so that we can give him a more intimate introduction on the CLUB pages in an early issue. Suppose you drop us a line as soon as you read this, Shankman, and give us the desired information.

HENRY HOFFMAN manages the Gravois Theatre, in St. Louis, Mo., a city of such theatrical activity as to make any contribution from our members out there more than acceptable. We would like to hear from this new member, as apparently his house is located in a neighborhood community and that is the type of information we are particularly anxious to publish.

-Wear Your Club Pin! ! !-

MAYNARD MADDEN is manager of the new Virginia Theatre, in Harrisburg, Virginia, for the Shenandoah Valley outfit, and with the activities going on in that section of the country, we would more than appreciate some sign of activity from him. You might send us one of your own photographs, too, Maynard.

--- Wear Your Club Pin! ! !---

LEW NEWMAN manages the Central Sq. Theatre, in Boston, Mass., for the Publix outfit, and we did not need his application blank to inform us that he is a peppy member, we already have ample evidence of this fact before us. We would like, however, to have some details of his past experiences in the business, as well as his own photograph to give him a warmer introduction on the CLUB pages.

---- Wear Your Club Pin! ! !----

MORRIS E. ROSENBERG manages the Diamond Theatre, another of the Golden Gate Chain in Oakland, Cal. He has already expressed a fine opinion of the ROUND TABLE section in the NEWS, so we are not kidding ourselves along when we claim that he will make a mighty fine member for the CLUB. How about letting us know some more about yourself, Rosenberg, so that we can write a decent introduction on the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages?

--- Wear Your Club Pin! ! !-

B. H. WALLERSTEIN manages the Broadway Theatre in Buffalo, N. Y., and in his very first letter he conveys some mighty interesting information about his activities. This will appear in early issues of the NEWS, and in the meantime we want to urge him to continue his fine start and to send us one of his own photographs with his next letter. How about it, "B. H.," can we expect it? And thanks anyway in advance.

COLOR

at the price of black-and-white

Eastman Sonochrome Tinted Positive Films were developed specifically to add color to sound pictures at low cost. They do just that. The sixteen subtle atmospheric tints, bringing new color moods to the screen, are so adjusted that they give unusually faithful sound reproduction. Yet the films cost no more than ordinary black-and-white positive.

"ONE GOOD OLD WORD-WORK"

ERBERT HOOVER today supplies this industry information which it should be glad to hear. He tells what the nation's industrialists will do to maintain days of prosperity. Billions are to be spent in 1930. That means wage levels are to be maintained. And, of course, theatres will benefit in direct proportion thereby.

The President also suggests a return to work—hard work, the good old-fashioned kind that nets results. Fine advice for our own business, that. This is how Hoover sees it:

Capital becoming more abundant in all parts of the country, the bond market is growing stronger each day and already public issues held back for months have begun to appear.

The second action necessary to maintain progress was the standard set by leading employers that so far as they were concerned there would be no movement to reduce wages, and a corresponding assurance from the leaders of labor that not only would they use their utmost influence to allay labor conflict, but would also co-operate with the employers in the present situation. These assurances have been given and thereby we not only assured the consuming power of the country, but we remove fear from millions of homes.

The third line of action has been to undertake through voluntary organization of industry the continuity and expansion of the construction and maintenance work of the country, so as to take up any slack in employment which rises in other directons.

Our railways and utilities and many of our larger manufacturers have shown a most distinguished spirit in undertaking to maintain and even to expand their construction and betterment programs. The state, county and municipal governments are responding in the most gratifying way to the requests to co-operate with the Federal Government in every prudent expansion of public works. Much construction work had been postponed during the past few months by reason of the shortage of mortgage money due to the diversion of capital to speculative purposes which should soon be released.

Beyond this a great responsibility for stability and proseprity rests with the whole people. I have no desire to preach. I may, however, mention one good old word—work.

Now read what Dr. Julius Klein of the Department of Commerce has to say. He is one of the nation's leading economists and when he talks, there is usually a noticeable absence of guess work.

All intelligent observers have noted the fact that many phases of the present business position are by no means attributable to the break of the stock market. The influences of Wall Street are admittedly numerous, but they do not account for everything. Many wildly broadcast rumors as to payroll curtailments promptly disappear as factors of disquieting alarm when it is revealed that they are part of a normal, seasonal dip.

Without belittling the many tragic aspects of the losses of both professional and amateur speculators in the recent break—and each of these groups seems to have suffered heavily—there are numerous reassuring elements in the outlook for the coming months. Dividend and interest payments in December will total almost $700,000,000, an increase of more than 20 per cent over December last year, an impressive evidence of the power of our earning capacity. Unquestionably a large proportion of this vast fund will find its way into prudent reproductive investments—not speculative ventures. Then, too, the amazing total of Christmas savings—not less than $600,000,000 and probably more—means that our Christmas trees will have about the usual share of tinsel and electric lights and crape.

When apprehension arises about a possible slackening of business, there is a temptation to dispense with, or diminish, activities that are not intimately tied up with the actual work of production and delivery of goods. Some ill-advised business men might, perhaps, regard trade research as coming in that category. Few errors could be more grievous.

Heartening news—every bit of it—to this business. Stick a couple of mental pins in the highlights and keep that upper lip stiff. Good times, an old American custom, are here to stay.

An Insider's Outlook

ILD speculation will follow closely on the heels of the latest Fox development. In the last few weeks, New York has been overflowing with stories about Fox and his financial condition. Ever since the bottom fell so completely out of the stockmarket, rumors—most of them ugly—have been circulating. But those stories concerned his personal situation almost entirely.

Then came this and that about his various enterprises. On the one hand, an "insider" would tell you Fox had lost control of the institutions he had spent twenty years in erecting. One of the astounding commentaries on a complex and involved situation had it that the Fox companies were slated to crash with a resounding smack such as even this business had never heard.

Bunk. Pure and simple. Here are some facts which are facts. Read them carefully, for when you finish, the real story will be yours:

The Dope On Profits

Fox Film Corporation will return a net profit of between $13,000,000 and $15,000,000 this year, an unprecedented earning power for that company. It is peak profit and more.

Fox Theatres Corporation will end its fiscal year with a $3,000,000 net reposing in its treasury.

Fox West Coast Theatres, under the competent hand of Harold B. Franklin, will earn about $4,000,000 this year.

Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, Inc., the destinies of which are guided by Joe Leo, is using black ink in large dabs and writing down almost $70,000 a week in earnings. And, while the profits of these last, but none the less important subsidiaries will be included in the 1929 returns for the Fox major companies, it is significant to mention the strides they are making as proof positive that the Fox structure is founded substantially and well on solid foundations.

And Those Fox Pictures

Fox attractions are doing an unusual business. Box-office reports from key cities tell the story beyond argument. Pictures like "The Cock-Eyed World," "Sunnyside Up," "They Had To See Paris" and others on the current program are cutting a wide swath all over the nation. To dwell on this in detail would be like gilding the w. k. lily.

What happened is merely this:

Fox, accustomed to lightning-like moves, determined to acquire Loew's, Inc. Then Gaumont British, which occupies a spot in the British industry akin to Loew's in the United States. Deals of this nature required money—gobs of it. Fox made his arrangements but the financing was short-term. Then what the world at large held to be impossible happened. The stock market bit the dust. Those outstanding obligations had to be met, but money was tight. The result you can figure out for yourself.

The difficulty is temporary. It has to be. There is too much at stake. Stuart and Otterson of the trusteeship committee know it. So does Fox. And, knowing it, it follows that what has to be done will be done.

Fox Stays In Saddle

The Fox name, its trade-mark value and its international ramifications in the motion picture scheme are too closely intertwined with the entire fabric of the industry for anything to happen to it. The leaders of the business, it is this forum's opinion, would be the first to tell you that.

Furthermore, Fox is still in the saddle. And there he remains. It is important to make this as emphatic as possible. The voting stock of Fox Film is vested in the "B" stock of which 100,000 shares have been issued. A survey of the corporate set-up reveals that this block is owned entirely by Fox personally. There you have rather conclusive evidence of the way the wind is blowing.

Sheehan And Grainger

There will be much conferencing. Two Irishmen, both of them important in the annals of filmdom, are going to have far more to do than ever before. And that is saying a good deal. Their names? Sheehan and Grainger. Winnie has made a reputation and a record for himself that are the marvels of the West Coast. What Grainger has done to skyrocket Fox Film sales during the last three years is known to everybody who knows his picture business.

These two men will figure even more largely in the future of the Fox enterprises. Never mind how, when or where. That's a story of the future. When what is to happen happens, remember this outlook tower told you so.

Trusteeship to Manage Fox Affairs For Five Years; "Crash" Talk Silly

Short-Term Financing Causes Temporary Stringency — Fox Film And Fox Theatre Earnings At Highest Peak

Faced by short-term financing obligations said to approximate $100,000,000 for which adequate arrangements have not been made. William Fox has consented to creation of a trusteeship committee which will cooperate with him in amicably working out the business affairs of his various enterprises.

The committee is a triumvirate composed of Harry Stuart of Halsey, Stuart and Co.; John E. Otterson of Electrical Research Products, Inc., and Fox.

This move, agreed upon early in the week, culminates the flood of rumors rampant in the industry regarding the financial status of the Fox companies.

The situation is entirely under control. From no angle is there cause for concern. The Fox companies are today enjoying the biggest business in their history. Fox Film will show a profit of between $13,000,000 and $15,000,000 for 1929. Yesterday a regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share was declared on the common, payable on January 15 to stockholders of record as of December 30.

Profits At Peak

Fox Theatres Corp. will probably return a net of $3,000,000 on the year, placing the total earnings of these two major Fox structures in the neighborhood of $15,000,000 to $18,000,000.

Fox personally finds himself in a position where short-term notes signed in acquiring Loew's, Inc., and the Gaumont British Corp. of England, could not be met. The recent stock crash is principally responsible. In common with important executives in this and practically all other lines of business, expansion plans had gone forward with no contingency made for the possibility of the slump that came.

As a matter of fact, another important organization in this business which had been extremely active in the theatre field found itself in an identical position when the market crumbled, but was apparently more successful in extricating itself.

Fox Control Unaffected

There will be no changes in management or operation under the trusteeship. Fox continues as president of his companies and, as in the past, retains entire control of the 100,000 shares of Class B stock in which is vested the full voting power of Fox Film Corporation.

Under the arrangement he will have the advantage of the counsel of the head of the banking firm which has done considerable in financing Fox activities. That individual is Stuart. Otterson enters the picture as president of Electrical Research and, therefore a subsidiary of Western Electric, which, in turn, is wholly owned by American Telephone and Telegraph Co. The A. T. and T.

Fox Calls Off Plans For Boston House

Boston.—Fox's plans for a large theatre and office building have been called off with no reason assigned. The plot, that on which the old Hotel Tonraine stood, is at Boylston, Tremont and Tamworth Sts. An effort was made to have the city close the latter as a public thoroughfare so that the project could move forward. After considerable dickering, consent was secured at an agreed upon figure and a deed prepared for signature. The period of grace expired this week and the deed returned unsigned by Fox's tocal attorneys.

is reported directly interested in view of the unconfirmed fact that it aided Fox in financing the Loew acquisition.

Fox Nears 700 Mark On Coast

Los Angeles.—Harold B. Franklin's goal of 700 houses operating under the banner of Fox West Coast, or Fox theatres as they will become known in a few weeks, is now well within sight.

The company's construction program for 1930 calls for an expenditure of $15,000,000 affecting 21 cities in seven states. California gets considerably more than half of the total amount, the sum planned for this state reaching $9,450,000, divided as follows:

Los Angeles, three honses; Hollywood, one to cost $1,200,000; and one in each of the following towns: Sacramenta, Oakland, Pasadena, Westwood, Burbank, San Jose, Santa Barbara, Whittier, Bakersfield, Berkeley, Stockton, Pomona, San Pedro and Huntington.

Other houses are to he huilt in Phoenix, Ariz.; Spokane, Wash.; Billings, Mon.; La Graude, Ore.; Kansas City, Mo., and Denver, Colo.

Fox-Midwesco Opens Paradise, 39th In Wisconsin Group

Milwaukee.—Fox-Midwesco's 39th house, the Paradise, has opened at West Allis, with R. E. Lewis managing. The Paradise, seating 1,500, is of French Renaissance design.

Fox At Grips In S. W. With Publix

Dallas.—Fox is out after Publix's scalp on the Southwest. Fox Interstate Theatres, Inc., have been organized here to supplant the Interstate Amusement Co. and, under the gentle nursing of Karl Hoblitzelle, will build de luxe theatres in major cities of Texas with Oklahoma as a Fox field for acquisition to be developed at a later date.

The move is considered here in only one light: as a direct challenge to Publix. With representation in all Texas keys and either a part ownership or an understanding with Robb and Rowley and the Dent theatres via E. V. Richards, Jr., and Saenger Enterprises, Publix is the most powerful factor in this part of the nation. The Hoblitzelle houses in Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston and Little Rock, recently taken over by Fox, will form the nucleus of the Fox campaign in this territory. Fox Interstate will operate as an individual unit showing pictures and RKO vaudeville.

The tussle, it is freely predicted, will be a rough one.

Labor Row Halts Fox Iowa Plans

Omaha.—Fox was unable to take possession of the Strand, Conneil Bluffs, on Dec. 1, because of a tilt with the local stage hands' union.

Local dailies say Fox plans an invasion in Omaha, reporting negotiations are nearly consummated for two sites.

136 Houses In Mid-West Acquired By Fox Circuit

Los Angeles.—Fox has acquired 136 houses in the Mississippi Valley in the last few months. The Miller and Rhoden theatres contributed 60, Shanberg and Wolf, 56 and scattered houses, 20. All are in Missouri, Kansas and Illinois.

Two million dollars will be spent in improvements.

Cut On Toll Rate Helps Industry

Considerable savings to the industry are seen by an announced cut on toll telephone rates, effective Jan. 1. Toll rates will be reduced ten cents on station-to-station daytime calls from 60 to 300 miles and report charges lowered from five cents to forty cents on points from 100 to 2,200 miles. A. T. & T. claims reduction will save the public more than $5,000,000 annually.

Theatre Attendance Up 15%; Sound Sends All Costs Soaring, Hays Says

Production Costs Up 22 1-2% With More On Way; Distribution 141-3; Theatre Operation 143-4, He Tells Conference

Washington.—Attendance in theatres today as against a year ago has increased 15,000,000 a week, or approximately 15 per cent; 1929 production costs have increased 22.50 per cent over 1928 and the first six months of 1930 will witness a further increase of 15.25 per cent as against the same period of 1928, Will H. Hays declared at the national business conference held here Thursday under auspices of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Hays spoke before nationally-known business leaders, pointing out how largely the industry figures in the set-up of the country's economic structure.

The conference, called for the purpose of devising methods of maintaining the confidence of the public in the nation's commercial future, expected to learn what the film industry was doing by way of increasing budgets and outlays of money for expansion.

Hays supplied the information. All of his figures proved to be increases. His data demonstrated clearly that while attendance had increased 15,000,000 weekly, operating costs were also on the rise and would continue to be.

Russian Film Held Up

Baltimore.—Second decision of state censors regarding "Village of Sin," is awaited by the Little Theatre, which was scheduled to show the Russian film this week.

Nation's Leaders See Bright Future

Washington.—Delegates to the United States Chamber of Commerce conference, called at the request of President Hoover to consider means of averting business depression as a result of the recent stock market deflation, are generally optimistic over the outlook for the coming winter, reports indicating clearly that hasic conditions throughout the country are sound.

The conference was in session all of Thursday, the morning being devoted to addresses by Hoover, high government officials and officers of the chamber, while the afternoon was devoted to reports from industrial leaders as to the ontlook in their particular fields.

Investment In The Industry Up 20%

Washington.—Capital investment in the industry increased 20 per cent in 1929 over 1928. This was made necessary by normal expansion plans and by way of further preparation for sound production and reproduction. Will H. Hays presented this fact as part of a statistical analysis covering activities in the industry to the national business conferences held on Thursday by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The figure, he added, included preparation for "expansion in the production of pedagogic, scientific and religious pictures."

Prosperity Reflected By Theatre Trade, Says Katz

Commenting upon prosperity of theatre trade in general following the stock market erash and stating that the Hoover business conferences at Washington are already effective to a marked degree, Sam Katz, president of Publix Theatres, declares:

president of Publix Theatres, declares:
"The 110,000,000 people in the United States apparently are untouched by the stock market crash, or it would have been severely and instantly reflected in our 1,200 theatres. We expected the largest gross box-office receipts of the year, during the month of December, but from present indications, it appears that our anticipated figures will be greatly exceeded."

Providence.—The Victory will bold "Rio Rita" over for a fourth week, setting a long-run record for this city.

Industry Expansion As Seen By Hays

Washington.—Text of the Hays report to the national business conference of the United States Chamber of Commerce:

The attendance in motion picture theatres today as compared with one year ago has increased 15,000,000 per week, or approximately 15 per cent. Earlier in the year, when we began to lay plans for the 1930 expansion, with which we shall steadily proceed, we had estimated that the 1929 audience increase would be 10,000,000 weekly; the facts are 5,000,000 better than we had expected.

There has been an increase in 1929 over 1928 in our capital investment of approximation.

There has been an increase in 1929 over 1928 in our capital investment of approximately 20 per cent made necessary by normal expansion and the further preparation for the production of sound pictures and the elaboration of the facilities for their reproduction. This includes the amusement field and also the preparation for expansion in the production of pedagogic scientific and religious pictures. In the entertainment field alone our exchanges in the United States handle 25,000 miles of film every day.

To conduct the normal operation and to meet the new conditions necessitated by sound and to maintain the changed condition, the number of employees today as compared to this time last year has increased 26½ per cent in production, 9 per cent in distribution and 11½ per cent in theatre operation.

The total expenditure in 1929 over 1928 on account of production has increased 22½ per cent, for distribution 14 1/3 per cent and for theatre operation 14¾ per cent. In each instance a considerable proportion of this increase is an increased aggregate of wages.

6034 per cent more was spent in 1929 than in 1928 for theatre construction and purchases; in alteration and repairs to theaters 29 per cent more this year than last.

The expenditures for advertising and exploitation increased in 1929 over 1928 by $12\frac{1}{4}$ per cent in production, $43 \frac{1}{3}$ per cent in distribution, $17\frac{1}{4}$ per cent in theatre operation.

The plans for the first six months of 1930, compared with the first six months of 1929, provide an increase in the number of employees in production of 81/4 per cent, in distribution 51/2 per cent and in theatre operation 11/2 per cent.

There will be an increase of 15½ per cent in the total expenditures on account of production in the first six months of 1930 as compared with the same period of 1929, in distribution an increase of 3 4/5 per cent, and in theatre operation 1 % per cent. Again in all three of these branches there will be an aggregate wage increase, amounting in the case of production to 25½ per cent.

Alteration and repairs to theatres will increase 10½ per cent in the first six months of 1930 over the like period in 1929; and the addition, betterment and repairs to studios and studio equipment will increase 11½ per cent. Theatre construction and purchases will not proportionately increase.

Plans for the first six months of 1930 call for an increase in exploitation expenditures over the like period in 1929 of 17 4/5 per cent in the studios, 17½ per cent in distribution, and 3½ per cent in theatre operation.

Because the increased production of the quality sound pictures of the last six months will be in circulation in the first half of 1930, there will be a still further substantial increase in the attendance. This increase in attendance and the increase in production are both significant, not only as a measure of this industry's progress but in relation to the film's value as the sales instrumentality for all other American manufactured products.

Collection Agents Armed With Legal Power Debated To Enforce Contracts

No Date In Sight

Distributors are hopeful that the formula for arbitration now being worked out by Edward P. Grosvenor, of Cadwalader, Wickersham and Taft as attorneys for the Hays organization and counsel for the Government will be approved by Judge Thacher around the first of the year. However, this is purely speculation, since what the attorneys agree among themselves to be mutual may not meet with the approval of the court. Judge Thacher is now in Europe.

No Arbitration Halt In Canada

Toronto. — Although arbitration in the States is at dead halt, there has been no slowing down of the system in Canada. Judge Thacher's decision has had no bearing on the situation here. Arbitration, as a matter of fact, is encouraged on all sides in Canada, both the Dominion and Provincial Governments urging its use wherever possible in settling disputes.

Montreal.—D. Leduc of Canadian Universal, has been elected president of the Film Board.

Toronto.—J. L. Hunter of Paramouut is new president of the Toronto Film Board.

Calgary.—Elected to serve one year, H. C. Davis of Warners is now functioning as president of the Film Board of Trade.

Vancouver.—Mrs. Viola Montgomery is new secretary of the Film Board.

January Seen As End Of Discord Over Arbitration

Buffalo.—It is an accepted belief among exchanges in this territory that the first of January will see all arbitration disputes ironed out and the practice resumed. At present arbitration is not in force, pending the Judge Thacher decision. However, all claims are being filed until final settlement.

Greta Garho will appear in a German version of "Anna Christic," immediately following completion of the English version now being directed by Clarence Brown.

Arbitration Shutdown Moves Distributors To Seek Ways Of Making Exhibitors Assign Playdates

Collection agencies, one to every key city, with a lawyer representing distributors empowered to enforce contracts through courts of law are being seriously discussed by members of the Hays organization to serve as a stop gap while arbitration is non-operative.

Insiders report that distributors are faced with the necessity of taking action of a

Double Contract Plan Seems Set

A standard contract embodying the arbitration formula as now constituted and a separate form for each distributor with compulsory arbitration clauses removed for will probably prove the highlight of the agreements now being worked out jointly by attorneys for Hays members and the Government in accordance with the desire voiced hy Judge Thacher when he recently handed down his decision ruling arbitration and the standard exhibition contract illegal. The belief prevails that this solution will prove satisfactory to the court.

Judge Thacher's objection to the present form of arbitration was predicated on the fact that it was compulsory in that all of the exhibitors of the United States were not represented at the contract meeting held in Chicago in January, 1927, at which the plan was evolved under the standard exhibition contract. Distributors, therefore, feel the way out is to continue the present form for those who want it at the same time offering an optional contract to be drawn up by the individual distributor in each case, wherein the exhibitor will agree to have disputes arbitrated by a board of three appointed by the president of the chamber of commerce in his own city, town or community.

This second contract form would mean a return of the deposit system which the distributors would insist upon as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the theatre owners. It would also permit each distributor to add his own riders. In the case of the small exhibitor, the advances thus required, it is believed in some quarters, would prove so hurdensome that a return to the standard form with compulsory arbitration would quickly follow.

Baltimore Business Holds Up Despite Depression

Baltimore.—Theatre attendance locally has not been hit by the general business depression caused in some quarters by the stock market crash.

An industry lumbering along without an arbitration machinery to keep the decks cleared is presenting a problem that is growing more serious day by day. Distributors fortunate enough to be endowed with good product are having little difficulty since spot demand is keeping the goods moving. Mediocre or less than mediocre product is causing plenty of trouble on the other hand in view of the fact that exhibitors can sidestep playdates with no arbitration boards to take them to task,

It is the playdate situation and the failure of exhibitors to assign playing time for contracted pictures with the resultant slowing down of the distribution system that is lending color to the arguments in favor of the collection system idea.

Thinks Tonal Quality Fine

A reporter for Motion Picture News sat through two demonstrations of RCA Photophone's new "Type G" equipment this week. His reactions, as a layman, follow:

By E. G. Johnston

RCA Photophone, in demonstrating its new reproducer for theatres seating 500 or less, took it upon itself to give the apparatus a severe test. "Type G' began the projection of a full length feature and, after running off a few hundred feet, "Type B," a system costing $12,825, was cut in without adjustment to the changed conditions. A slight change was noticeable. The tone apparently struck a higher pitch than that of the more expensive apparatus. At the same time it was natural and the quality was excellent.

The following day this reporter witnessed another demonstration under less trying conditions—the showing of a subject complete in itself. Several others were also projected in their entirety, the two types of equipment again alternating. It would be difficult for the layman to differentiate between the two under the adjusted conditions

South Pole Story Filmed In Sound

Reception of the first radio message to be sent from the South Pole has been recorded in sound.

How word that Commander Richard E. Byrd had flown successfully over the polar area was received and decoded in the offices of the "New York Times" and thence flashed to the world by the newspaper is covered. It goes out to exhibitors in the Dec. 6 issue of Paramount Sound News.

According to Emanuel Cohen, editor of Paramount Sound News, the pictures were obtained by placing cameras and sound recording equipment in the radio room of the "Times" where direct communication is established daily, by low wave length, with the little band of explorers 11,000 miles away in the frozen wastes of the South.

With everything set for instant use, the Paramount Sound News men, consisting of two erews, Ray Ferustrom, Claude Norman, William Gerecke and Harold Tannenbaum, stood in readiness to return at the signal from Radio Chief Fred Meinholst of the "Times."

The tip came at 10:20 o'clock in the evening and within a few minutes both camera and sound crews were at their posts. Throughout the night they remained, gathering only fragmentary reports from the cruising plane. Suddenly, at 8:30 o'clock Friday morning the flashes stopped altogether and through the day not one word was received because of adverse weather conditions.

The camera and sound men were still on the job at 5:15 p. m. Friday afternoon when the news finally came. Sound switches were thrown open. Cameras started to grind. Near Meinholst a loud speaker thumped out the message in a series of dots and dashes which meant that Byrd had reached the goal. It was in triple code but when deciphered it also included the word from two other Paramount cameramen on the expedition, Willard Vandeveer and Joseph Rucker, that Harold June, flying with Byrd, had obtained more than 1,000 feet of film of the polar region. June had been trained to handle the motion picture camera by the Paramount man because when the great flight was made they necessarily were left at the base for lack of room in the plane.

Warner Theatre Plunge Impending; $100,000,000 Rests In "War Chest"

Grappling

Oakland, Cal.-San Francisco may be the big town in these parts, but when theatres projected for Oakland are finished the noise of the battle will ring clear across the bay. Fox West Coast is strongly intrenched here. Now not only are the Warners planning a $1,500,000 house here, but Publix is as well on a site just across the street from the proposed Warner houses on Broadway near 19th.

Some of the Wiseacres say they are going to watch the fur fly-but from the sidelines.

W. B. Not A Trust H.M. Warner States

In a letter sent to all stockholders yesterday, H. M. Warner pointed out that the action brought by the Government against the company sought to nullify control of First National and not charge his organization with being a trust. He said so many inquiries had been received that a statement of elarification had become necessary. The Government was under a "misapprehension" as to the facts, he added.

First National, he continued, was a comparatively small part of the Warner enterprises, intimating perhaps that if divestment of control were finally adjudged by trial, the Warner stockholders need have no qualms about the future. He also sought to disabuse the thought apparently created by joint filing of the Government suits that Fox and Warners were co-related.

Continental Plans 40 Offices In U. S.

Continental Theatre Accessories, Inc., a Warner subsidiary, is aiming at 40 offices in the United States by 1931. Its activities will probably be extended to England as

Oakland and 'Frisco Set As Part Of Coast Expansion—Two For Cleveland On Way With Others To Come

The Warners are about to swash their way into the theatre field with a bang. It is understood $100,000,000 have been set aside for the acquisition or construction of new houses to augment present holdings which total in the neighborhood of 400 theatres. The Stanley Co. of America is the backbone of the chain.

Warner Net For 1st Quarter 5 Millions

Current earnings of Warners indicate a net profit of more than $5,000,000 for the first quarter, ending Nov. 30, as against $2,917,724 in the corresponding 1928 threemonth period.

Gross fixed assets as of August 31, end of the last fiscal year, totaled $110,870,822, against $5,009,177 in 1928.

$7,000,000 For Two Cleveland Theatres

Cleveland .- Overseated Cleveland is to have two new theatres with a combined seating capacity of 8,000 built at a cost of $7,000,000. The Warners are to erect them, thereby signalling their entry into the Cleveland first run situation.

One theatre will have 6,000 seats and will be the largest in the city. The other will have about 2,000 seats and is being designed for long runs. Actual locations for these theatres have not been announced, but it is known that Warners have an option on property at the northeast corner of Euclid Ave. and East 17th St. Other sites under consideration are said to be the site of the present Union Club, Euclid Ave, and East 12th St., and the property now occupied by The Kinney and Levan Co.

Announcement of the Warners' expansion in Cleveland was made prior to filing of the Federal suit in New York. It is possible that the program will be curtailed in the light of this suit.

Warners To Build 5,000 Seat Theatre In Newark

Newark, N. J .-- A 5,000-seat theatre is to be built at once by the Warners on a $1,250,000 plot owned by the company for some time in the downtown section, and about a block from Loew's State. According to plan and estimates the theatre will be one of the most beantiful in America. John Eberson is the architect.

With its completion, the Warners will control the Mosque and Branford, both large houses, and the Capitol, Rialto and Godwin, downtown, as well as a number scattered through adjoining suburhs. Fox operates here as do Loew and R-K-O.

On the heels of the exclusive story published several weeks ago in Motion PICTURE NEWS outlining plan of the company on the West Coast comes telegraphed word that the Warners will build two houses in bay district of San Francisco.

> One, in Oakland, is planned on the east side of Broadway, between 19th and 20th Sts. to cost $1,500,000. The second will be built in San Francisco as soon as a site can be obtained. The old Columbia Theatre property on Ellis St., between Powell and Mason, is favored at the mo-

Jack Warner stated this week the immediate objective is 75 to 100 theatres. Plans for 20 houses are understood to have been already prepared.

Moe Silver, for over 15 years associated with Moe Mark in the operation of the Mark Strand circuit in New England and latterly an executive for the Stanley Company and the Warner theatre division, will handle the development of the company's theatre plans on the Pacific Coast. He leaves with Jack Warner for Hollywood, his future base of operations, on Sunday to get into harness.

Milwaukee, Wis .-- According to reports, definite announcement concerning the erection of a 10 or 12 story theatre hailding in the downtown section by Warners will be forthcoming in a week. The proposed theatre is expected to have a seating capacity of not less than 2,500 and will he located on the site now occupied by the Butterfly and several other business buildings. The new house will mark the first direct entrance of Warners into Milwankee.

Treat 75 Theatres Weekly For Acoustical Correction

To increase the acoustic quality of Western Electric wired houses, 75 theatres are now being acoustically analyzed weekly by the acoustic department of Electrical Research Products under supervision of S. K. Wolf. In every case where the analysis shows that the theatre is in need of treatment, a specific acoustic recommendation is made.

In making the surveys, engineers are required to determine the exact volume and seating capacity, nature and thickness of all surfaces in the theatre, type, thickness and amount of draping and decorating material used in theatre, exact nature of all seats and furniture, etc. It also includes a noise survey and recommendation for climinating all noises in the house.

Seek Open Field In Amplification

Chicago.—A more wide open market for sound amplification, making accessible equipment of a higher quality at a lower price is the object of the Audio Research Foundation, just incorporated in Illinois by a number of radio manufacturers.

Investigation of practices in the radio industry and allied fields will be undertaken at once. The movement has for its purpose the determination of the validity of various patents in an effort to climinate current conditions, which it is charged, may prove to run counter to the anti-trust laws.

Sound equipment enters the picture through the incorporation of radio parts and mechanisms based on radio patents.

Ad Specialist To Talk Before AMPA

Industrial payroll and employment conditions throughout the country, with reference to box office receipts, will be discussed by Roy Dickinson, associate editor of Printers' Ink, at the regular weekly meeting of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers on Thursday, December 12.

Dickinson has just completed a national survey through several hundred important channels, including executives of many concerns that are large employers of labor, to determine with accuracy in behalf of a series of articles being published by Printers Ink, just what business leaders actually intend to do with respect to continued production in 1930.

The information he has obtained is said to give very clear indications of what leading husiness administrators anticipate as the results to their particular enterprises of the recent Wall Street crash.

Dickinson is known as one of America's best informed specialists on advertising as a science in the merchandising of product. His position as an associate editor of Printers' Ink gives him intimate contact with the theories and practices of many of the country's largest users of advertising space. Hence, his talk to members of the AMPA is expected to reveal a surprising degree of similarity between the advertising and merchandising problems of the directors of advertising for motion pieture producing, distributing and exhibiting organizations, and those of concerns in the so-called staple commodity fields.

Protection Hits Government Snags; Three Actions Filed in One Year

"Hell's Heroes"

Hollywood.-While the industry was monywood.—While the industry was watching Universal's preparations for "All Quiet On the Western Front" and "The King of Jazz Revne," Carl Laemmle, Jr., it now develops, sneaks through with an apparently unpretentious picture that will command plenty of consideration as one of the fine productions among 1930 releases.

"Hell's Heroes" is the picture—a talker remake of Peter B. Kyne's story,
"The Three Godfathers." It is another splendid demonstration of what can be done with characterizations in talking pictures. The picture has a definite and universal audience appeal in a gripping and humanly intresting story that brings forth both laughs and

Allied-M. P. T. O. A. Accord Likely; Committee of 15 Meets on Tuesday

Myers Sees Kent And Way Is Paved For Deliberations-Exhibitor Merger Plan Looms, As Confab Nears

An end to exhibitor strife through accord reached by Allied, the M.P.T.O.A. and the Hays association is in sight.

Abram F. Myers and S. R. Kent held a private conference this week at which mutual problems were discussed. Kent is known to have advised Myers that the offer of cooperation extended by him at the recent Columbus convention still stands and that he was ready to work day and night in an effort to reach an amicable settlement of differences.

Myers left the meeting with the understanding that he would prepare a tentative program to bring into the conference which starts in New York on Tuesday. This agenda will not be final. Neither will it be inflexible. Myers will merely set forth what Allied feels must be done in important matters such as arbitration, the uniform contract, and protection and with that program as a basis the meeting will get actively under way.

What actual machinery will evolve from the deliberations cannot be foretold at this time. The identity of Allied may be submerged. Likewise, that of the M.P.T.O.A. It is probable that the first step will concern ways and means of bringing into formal existence one national exhibitor body where two now exist so that in the deliberations which follow with distributors, there will be no cluttering of issues because two distinct associations remain in the field to be dealt with.

The Myers-Kent discussion, it is learned by Motion Picture News, was entirely friendly and sympathetic. Kent impressed as emphatically as he knew how the sincerity of his offer. Myers, on the other hand, told him in reply that he, too, was most anxious for it provided the mutual problem of all groups could be solved as he thought they could be.

The Myers group will consist of five Allied members. Will H. Hays will name a group of five representing affiliated theatres and Lightman, five for the M.P.T.O.A.

Pathe "Rep" To Havana

F. W. Knocke, Medal Film president, is en route to Havana to survey conditions for Pathe. Medal handles Pathe in the West Indies.

R. V. Anderson Heads M. P. Congress Sales

Richard V. ("Dick") Anderson heads the M. P. Congress distribution department. The organization, an exhibitor cooperative unit, will handle product made by Equitable Pictures, an affiliated company.

Anderson has appointed Henry Clay Bate director of advertising and publicity. Bate handled Universal trade press material for many years.

Equitable's produc-tion plans, to be announced in detail before the first of the year, embrace twenty features to cost not less than $100,000 each, on an average, for release through Motion Picture Congress from April to September, 1929. Productions for the succeeding year also are being lined up, many of them being already in hand in story form. For each feature there will be a complement of short subjects.

The company believes the market for picture and production talent in Hollywood was never so favorable to the independent producer as now.

Quebec Tightening Juvenile Measure

Quebec .- For more than a year Quebec has been rigidly enforcing the act which prohibits admission of children under 16 into picture theatres. A move has now been made for a curfew law to compel children under 16 to be in their homes by 8.30 P.M. during winter and 9.30 during the summer.

Raise Dues To Offset Chain Withdrawal

Detroit.—The M. P. T. O. of Michigan has increased its membership dues fifty per cent to offset the withdrawal of producer-affiliated theatres from its ranks. Michigan is one of the rock-ribbed supporters of Allied.

Minneapolis.—The Northwest Exhibitors' Association is considering a ten per cent seat levy on its members to counteract the withdrawal of Publix from its membership. The chain withdrew a few weeks ago in a move to fight Allied via one of its strongest exhibitor units.

Steffes Says Allied Must Be Dominant

Minneapolis.—Allied will consider a merger with any other exhibitor organization only if it is dominant in such a proposed step, W. A. Steffes declares.

Allied intends to retain its identity regardless of what may develop at the 5-5-5 meeting in New York Tuesday to discuss an amalgamation with the M. P. T. O. A. in an effort to iron out exhibitor differences, Steffes continued.

"Allied," he said, "was disbanded in a sincere way for harmony and was revived when it became certain that it offered the one means of safeguarding the independent exhibitor."

Representing the organization at the forthcoming deliberations will be H. M. Richey of Detroit, James Hone of Seattle, Nathan Yamins of Fall River and H. A. Cole of Marshall, Tex., with Steffes as chairman.

Boston.—The Independent M.P.T.O. of New England, Inc., an Allied affiliation embracing Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Vermont is about to lannch an intensive membership drive. No Chance For Admission Tax To Pass In Missouri

Jefferson City, Mo .- The Missouri Survey Commission will not recommend a tax on amusement admissions as a means of creating new revenue for the state. It is known that Governor Caulfield would promptly reject any "consumption" or "amusement" tax measures. Scnator William R. Painter a member of the commission recommended that it not consider any such tax. Any additional revenues needed by the state will be raised through the present methods of taxation.

R-K-O Reviving National Vaudeville Chain; Now Lining Up Forty Weeks

In Bankers' Hands

The inter-related banking interests behind RKO and Pathe are held accountable for reports current that a merger between the two organizations is on the way.

Expansion plans of RKO in the theatre field will make it necessary for its producing affiliations eventually to step up production output to 60 pictures annually. Pathe, therefore, may figure in on this basis. However, if a deal is made-at the moment there appears to be nothing to it-it will be a bankers' merger rather than a picture merger.

In other words, the companies would remain as they are with the banking interests dictating a policy to which both organizations would necessarily subscribe.

Kennedy To Model Pathe After U. A.

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News) Hollywood.-A completely reorganized Pathe, producing a limited number of pietures yearly and built along the lines of United Artists is the plan of Joseph P. Kennedy who has, in the short period of time he has been in Hollywood from New York, practically revamped the entire studio organization.

Quality, in the place of quantity, seems to be the new Kennedy formula. Indications of the new order are seen in the intention to produce only ten pictures in the next six months, each to be made on a big scale in order to compete with other major companies in bids for first runs.

In the interim, the cleaning out process continues. Options on players, directors and writers are not being taken up, except in a few cases which include William Boyd, Eddie Quillan, Ina Claire, Constance Bennett, Harry Bannister, Ann Harding, Helen Twelvetrees and Fred Scott. The only directors to remain are Paul Stein and Tay Garnett, and the present writing staff is being disearded completely.

Although Kennedy refuses to confirm it, others are to be dropped very shortly, these reported to include William Sistrom, Ralph Block and William Conselman, producers; Carl Hovey, head of the story de-partment; George Berthelon, production manager and others.

Benjamin Glazer has joined Pathe and may produce two of the ten specials now proposed, although the deal is not yet set. There is no intimation as to who will produce the balance nor who will assume charge of the studio after the first of the year.

Edwin Carewe, however, may be the producer in charge. He has just signed with Kennedy to make a series of specials, the first to be a remake of Rex Beach's "The

"Intact Vaudeville" The New Idea For Combination Houses -20 Weeks In Eastern And Western Routes

A national chain of vandeville theatres is the latest development at RKO. "Intact vaudeville," composed of five act units, is being developed. One unit will start from New York and work its way through to Chicago, and another from the coast which will terminate its bookings in the Middle West.

Spoilers" for which rights were closed vesterday. Carewe admits his arrangement with Kennedy, says he will work at Pathe, but refuses to talk about distribution. He does, on the other hand, discount reports that he will assume charge of Pathe production. Kennedy has Gloria Swanson under contract, yet releases through United Artists. An outside release for the Carewe series may be planned.

Kennedy, it is known, wanted to keep Alan Hale, Robert Armstrong and a se-lected list on a six months' contract, but the suggestion was turned down enmasse. Hale, it is understood, is negotiating with two major companies and will prohably sign with one of them momentarily.

Leo McCarey may switch to Paramount. The deal is being discussed and may go over heeause of McCarey's record with Pathe. Ina Clair who signed a two picture eontraet has made one, "The Awful Truth" for which she received $75,000. The second. which nets her $100,000, is yet to be made.

Hollywood.-E. H. Allen, general manager of Educational studios, has been appointed to a similar post with James Cruze, Inc.

RKO has only three theatres which play big time vandeville exclusively. These are the Palaee and Riverside, New York and the Palace, Chicago. Its other theatres operate on a combination picture and vaudeville policy and it is for this group that "intaet vaudeville" is being designed.

Both the eastern and western routes will offer twenty weeks. Each house will be charged on a pro rata scale and every fourth week will be held open to permit holding over pietures which may prove worthy of a second week. The plan will be elastic enough to permit each house to fill in its own headliners.

The expansion in the vaudeville idea will supplement the twenty houses now operated by RKO exclusively for extended run pie-

Gloria's $199,000 In Four Weeks; Pickford-Fairbanks Opening Big

The Thanksgiving holiday naturally helped the box office along Broadway. The one exception was the Roxy with "Nix on Dames" which took a distinct flop, getting $90,247 on the week or the first time in a month that the receipts dropped under the $100,000 mark.

The thrill is the remarkable sustained box-office strength that Gloria Swanson is showing in "The Trespasser" at the Rialto where, in her fourth week, the figures were $41,100 or a total of $199,500 on the run. It is certain that the picture will hetter the $250,000 mark on its six weeks' run. Mary Pickford and Douglas Fair-banks in their joint starring vehicle, 'The Taming of the Shrew," opened strong at the Rivoli, following "Welcome Danger," which got $32,800 in its sixth and final week. Mary and Doug managed to draw $24,101 in two and a half days over the week-end.

Holdovers Only Fair

The two holdovers, "The Kiss" at the Capitol and "The Saturday Night Kid" at the Paramount, both held up fairly well. Garbo drew $76,936, giving a total on two weeks of $159,868, while Bow, in her final week, played to $70,900 for an even $155,-000 on the two weeks. Considering that she had Rudy Vallee with her this latter figure does not show great strength. Universal beld over "The Shanghai Lady" for a third week at the Colony, pulling $11,905 for a gross of $43,033 on three weeks. "The Sacred Flame," which played the Strand for six days, the run being shortened to permit the house to switch its opening dates policy from Friday to Thursday, drew $34,117.95, which is very good. "The Dancer of Barcelona," at the Cameo with Lily Damita's name played up, did $6,324 on the week.

"Show Of Shows" $33,886

"The Show of Shows" on its first full week at the Winter Garden, turned in $33,-886.75, which proves it a solid hit. Of the others, "Disraeli" held up nicely for eight days at Warner's, getting $28,386.50, before moving to the Central to make way for the new Barrymore opus, "General Crack," which opened Tuesday night.

The others sluffed off, with "The Hollywood Revue" down to $13,930 on its fifteenth week at the Astor, making a total gross for the run to date of $296,074. "Paris" in its third and final at the Central, did $10,930, with "Rio Rita" Carroll, ended nicely with $16,937 to its

"The Love Parade" at the Criterion is another solid hit. On the first full week $20,100 was chalked up while Rudy Vallee in "Vagabond Lover" in five days at the Globe showed $20,436 which is the first big money at the house in some time.

"Condemned" continued nicely at the Selwyn with $15,200, while at the Gaiety "Sunny Side Up" is lingering on with $12,-809 to its credit last week, the best that it

Holiday Boosts Los Angeles B. O.

Los Angeles.—Among the newcomers this week "It's A Great Life" at the Criterion topped the per center's list, getting $15,200 or a rating of 152. Harold Lloyd's "Welcome Danger," after shattering a house record the previous week, held strongly, turning in $37,000 to the Paramount, or 148 per cent. Another strong showing was made by "They Had To See Paris." After running nine weeks at the Carthay Circle it was removed to the Palace where it grossed $12,400 for a rating of 138 per cent. Practically all houses showed to satisfactory attendance, Thanksgiving trade helping to swell the cash registers.

Other reports for the week include Grauman's Chinese with "Sunnyside Up" at $18,900, or 118 per cent; the second weck of 'Rio Rita' at the Carthay Circle with $17,000, or 137 per cent; the State with "So This Is College" at $31,500, or 117 per cent; the 4th week of "The Trespasser" at the U. A. with $18,500, or 137 per cent; the RKO with "Jazz Heaven" at $20,400, or 128 per cent; Warners Downtown with "Foothights and Fools" at $16,-500, or 110 per cent, and Warners Hollywood with the fourth week of "Disraeli" at $11,800, or a rating of 81 per cent.

Trade In Pacific N. W. Holding Up

Seattle.—Although the recent stock market upheavals may have affected the sale of high-priced commodities, it has had no effect on the sale of theatre tickets in the Pacific Northwest, according to a second Motion Picture News check-up. Nathanson's Own Canadian Chain To Combat Famous Is Seen Taking Shape

The Inside Out

Toronto.-What appears to be some of the inside of the Famous Players Canadian situation is now coming to light. N. L. Nathanson, former managing director, charges his resignation came about solely because the stock-holders were not given an opportunity to voice their views.

In a public statement, Nathanson

"I proposed to convert Famous Players Canadian Corporation into a tremendously bigger thing than it is. I went to England to form a company big enough to tell Adolph Zukor that Canada or any other part of the British Empire was no longer a spoke in his wheel. My resignation was solely due to the fact that Canadian shareholders were not being given an opportunity to voice their views. I. W. Rayart Seeks Receiver For American Film Of Seattle

Seattle.—A petition requesting a receiver for the American Film Company of Seattle, a state right distributor, has been filed in Superior Court by attorneys for Rayart of New York, whose product was formerly distributed in the Pacific Northwest territory by American.

The petition was filed as a result of the sentencing of Dalton C. Millward, president of the company, to fifteen months in the Federal penitentiary of Washington, on a charge of using the mails to defraud. Millward was a youthful "movie Ponzi" of the Northwest who obtained many thousands of dollars from friends and acquaint-ances on illegal theatre and film operations, according to claims.

The petition asserts American failed to pay royalty on films rented to them by the mintiff, and is in danger of dissolution since the recent financial difficulties that landed Millward in the penetentiary.

expected that for the time being he will stay away from exhibition and confine his activities to Regal Films, Ltd., of which he is president.

It is considered significant, however, that when he resigned from Famous Players, Sir Herbert Holt, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, and the Honorable William D. Ross, governor of Ontario, likewise walked out. Holt is the wealthiest man in the Dominion, and a warm, personal friend of Nathanson's. That's the tie-up.

In the meantime, his former company is going ahead with its plans. With 196 theatres in its control as against 146 last year, a mark considerably over 200 has been set for 1930.

Extensive building announced by the corporation prior to the market crash and resignation of Nathanson, will be continued without alteration, according to the new managing director, Arthur Cohen, who was formerly appointed at the annual meeting this week.

Plan Canada's Biggest

Among the plans is one calling for the largest theatre in Canada. The house will cost about $4,000,000, and seat about 4,000. It will be on Toronto's main stem, with offices and stores connected and be key house for the formation of unit shows under direction of Jack Arthur. These will play either the new house or the Uptown here and the F. P. ace houses in Ottawa and Montreal.

Plan for the Yonge St. house had been announced by Nathanson. Wrecking of present buildings will commence in March.

The company is already demolishing ten houses in Sudbury, heart of the Canadian mining belt, where it will build at once.

Both these schemes were originally planned by Nathanson who, since his resignation, has kept the press speculating as to his next move.

Earnings at Peak

The annual report of Famous Players Canadian showed highest earnings in the history of the company at $6.24 a share. Annual dividends are at $2, leaving both a comfortable margin in the treasury and a return of eight per cent to dehenture holders. These holders may exchange their 61/2 per cent honds for stock at $25 a share and 12,000 shares have been purchased in this way since the market break. This automatically retires funded debt and gives the eompany additional capital of $300,000. The stock taken at $25 is currently quoted at $45. Profits for 1929 were $3,376,845, or an increase of 124 per cent.

In addition to acting as a musical unit for Radio Pietures the organization is in a position to popularize songs and other composition through National Broadcasting.

is a Canadian college man who got into pietures as a critic on the "Toronto World," a now defunct morning sheet. Following his critical work he became a lawyer by the scholarship route and made his first reach eash in pictures when he saw "Mickey" in 1912, bought exhibition rights for Canada, personally distributed and exhibited it and cleaned up. He established the long run record for all Canada at the Grand, Toronto, and held it until Charlie Chaplin's "The Circus" came along.

Indications that Nathanson will not come back to Famous Players is provided in a law suit brought against him in Montreal v his former outfit. Action arises over some valuable property purchased for the building of a combined theatre and office building during the Nathanson regime. Nathanson says the property was bought or optioned by himself personally. The company say it was bought or optioned on their behalf. The case has not yet come to trial, but people wise in the trade say that Nathanson would show no tenacity to hang on to the ground unless he was working in with other companies who will erect a theatre there.

Leo's Chain Now Showing Profit

Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, Inc., is returning a net profit of between $60,000 and $70,000 weekly. This chain, a consolidation of eight or more former independently owned circuits in Greater New York, was organized about six months ago when William Fox began to exercise the options he held on those various properties.

The acquisition became effective when warm weather had hit New York. Many of the houses had been permitted to deteriorate by their owners who momentarily had expected Fox to pick up his options. Many of them were unequipped with sound and the circuit, as such was regularly in the red.

Today the situation is considerably dif-ferent. Joe Leo, now president of Fox Metropolitan, was brought on from Milwankee where he had been handling Fox Midwesco to organize and whip the chain into shape. The territory was divided and in each a division manager placed with Leo overseer of the entire operation.

St. Louis Strike Lands On New Snag

St. Louis .- On again off again seems to be the order of procedure in the local music strike. A tentative settlement was rejected during the week because, it is claimed, the New York office of Warners insisted that the Ambassador and Missouri employ 45 musicians instead of the 46 agreed upon.

Charles P. Skouras places the responsibility for the new rift on the musicians. The agreement, he said, called for 46 men in the Ambassador and Missouri, 62 in the houses of the St. Louis Amusement Co. and 37 in the smaller theatres of the city, the men to return to work on Dec. 13. He claims this agreement was signed, the only contingency being whether or not New York would approve 46 musicians for the deluxe houses. This was done by telephone, Skouras maintains, but Max Gottschalk of the musicians organization says Skouras informed him only 45 were ac-

NEW FOX THEATRE

San Diego, Calif., gives that city the third largest picture playhouse on the Pacific Coast. The theatre has a seating capacity of 3,000. The auditorium is divided into four parts—the orchestra sections, the orchestra lones, the baleony loges and the baleony proper. It has a stage affording ample space for pretentious scenic spectacles, and is equipped with the newest type of appliance for manipulation of these and drops. The orchestra pit is large enough to accommodate a band of fifty pieces or more and a large pipe organ.

THE latest playhouse to be completed by the Fox Company was formally opened in San Diego, Cal., on the evening of November 8, with an attendance which filled every one of the 3,000 seats and which included the society leaders, representatives of official and civic life, and scores of men and women prominent in the motion picture field from Hollywood.

The interior decorative motif, in cast acoustic plaster, metal, color, form and general, effect is typical of the French Renaissance. Many of the details have been copied from original designs in chateaux in France.

The house has two entrances, one on Seventh Street, leading to the balcony, and one on B Street, for patrons of the orchestra seats. The vestibule leading from B street is flanked with a rich pink marble. The upper walls are of limestone, with poster panels, enclosed in carved ornamental frames. The intricately patterned wood ceiling is of rich walnut color, and is reminiscent of Italian architecture in details. The ticket booth and lighting fixtures in the vestibule are finished in gold, polychromed in color, harmonizing with the ceiling. The doors are paneled with etched glass. One interesting detail of the outer lobby is a carved stone fountain, richly inlaid with tiles in red, blue, ivory and green.

Entering the fover, there appears on the wall opposite the auditorium a large stone fireplace, in French period design. Large mirrors and polychromed torch standards occupy other spaces. There are several ornamental drinking fountains, and rest rooms and a first aid room lead from the foyer.

The Showman section, a special department devoted to the equipment, building and operation of the theatre plant, is published once a month as a regular feature of Motion Picture News, appearing in the first dated issue of each month, Motion Picture News Publication, Editorial and General Offices: 729 Seventh Avenue, New York City. Fiew Main 1000 FOX THEATRE, SAN DIEGO, CALIF.

Two stairways lead from the main foyer to the mezzanine, these winding through corridors with vaulted domes and decorated ceilings. The foyer on the mezzanine has walls of warm amber, with pilasters of mellow green and gray on a beige background. There are three entrances from here to the balcony of the auditorium.

The side walls of the auditorium have large columns with gold capitals, with rich red draperies in back. Beneath the balcony the lower walls have two fine murals, with subjects and colors harmonizing with the balcony ceiling, which is in ivory, beige and gold, with suggestions in tint of jade green and vernillion.

Hanging from the large gold dome of the auditorium is a luge electric fixture, studded with small lamps to imitate pearls, behind which are a number of large reflectors which throw a variation of colored lights on the ceiling of the dome.

The proseenium arch is elliptical at the top and splayed towards the organ screens. On either side are tall slender arches, characteristic of the style of architecture formerly used in Salamanca, Spain. From the tops of these arches graceful stiles carry to the bottom of the main arch, terminating in a large cartouche, decorated in gold, red and shades of blue.

Flanking the prosecuium are the two organ lofts, which have been designed with pierced ornamentals. Lights have been provided to give a tone of light and color shining through the open spaces. Heavy silk draperies are hung behind the gold grille which is placed in front of the organ. These drapes are of the same c doring and jeweled in the same manner as the main curtain of the prosecuium. The screen is one of the largest in the west, and gives clear-cut brilliance to the pictures without interfering with the free passage of sound through its fabric. The floors throughout the house are heavily carpeted, thus bringing to a minimum the sounds which might conflict with perfect rendition.

THE REGAL, CHICAGO—DESIGNED FOR COLORED PATRONS

A De Luxe Theatre in the Moorish Style Caters to Large Negro Population in South Side Section of City—Designed by Alex. L. Levy and Wm. J. Klein

THE Regal Theatre Building at 4721 South Parkway, Chicago, was conceived as an ideal location for the purpose and use of the great number of colored people in the city's south side, as a place of amusement of their own, built especially for them.

Heretofore they had their amusement in buildings outgrown and handed down to them by the white people, but here is a magnificent building dedicated to them; new and fresh and designed for their particular needs.

Here the wonderful colorings of the Orient furnished the inspiration for the grandeur, life, spirit of gaiety and melody so close to the Negro's heart. Everything is palatial on a grandeur scale, rich in ornament and colorings. A fairy land exclusively theirs, in their own neighborhood, catering to their whims and tastes.

Previously, in every theatre they visited, they were generally sent to the balcony or gallery, but here the architects endeavored to eliminate that idea.

The main floor of the Regal has a larger seating capacity than any movie theatre in the city. There is no balcony, but a mezzanine floor that extends around the Auditorium walls like a horse shoe, seating over 800. There is easy access to these seats; up a short flight of steps, spacious platforms and interesting details. All the tiresome winding in and out and up to great heights for a good view from the balcony has been eliminated. The main floor seats about 2,300 people, with a good view of stage from every seat.

The entire value of this project including the ground and equipment is well over a million dollars.

The planning of the service portion of the theatre was different than usual, as provision had to be made for both the white and colored help. The white manager, switchboard operator, projection room operator have separate quarters from those of the musicians, porters, ushers, etc., who are colored. This involved clothing more space for these purposes than is usually necessary in a house of this size.

The front of the theatre is done in terra-cotta, suggestive of the Italian Renaissance design. It is brilliantly lighted and the main feature is a deep recess over the marquee which frames a bronze circular window. This window gives a vista through the large lobby, featured by ornamented columns which support highly decorative cornices and dome.

From the interior of the lobby, vivid in decoration and with an imported marble floor, the eye is led to the grand stairway leading to a multiplicity of foyers, nooks and recesses in the mezzanine level.

The auditorium features a ceiling arranged in the form of a tent, with flapping folds and openings, or reveals, through which a sky effect is seen. This arrangement allows for the handling of unique lighting effects. The entire decoration is distinctive in its rendition of features suggesting old Moorish palaces.

A huge stage allows for all types of production. The stage is equipped with every device necessary for the presentation of elaboratic scenic spactacles, including a huge switchboard.

The Regal has a complete installation for service features. There is a modern type of ventilating and refrigerating system, and an automatic sprinkler system.

The building is of fireproof materials. It was designed by Alex. L. Levy and Wm. J. Klein, Architects of Chicago.

NETOCO OPENS NEW COLONIAL THEATRE AT NATICK, MASS.

THE new Colonial theatre, located on a corner site at East Central and Hayes Streets, Natick, Mass., was opened this week by Netoco. This elaborate new house is another link in the fast-growing chain.

The Colonial was designed by John Edmund Kelley, Architect, of Boston, It seats 1,500 persons with 1,000 in the orchestra and 500 in the balcony. The front of the building is one story in height and is done in Colonial style, treated in Indiana Limestone, granite and red brick.

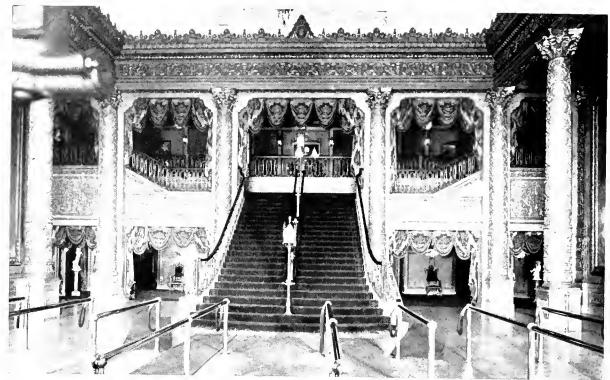

The main entrance is 20 feet wide and is protected by a broad marquee, studded with lights on the underside and supporting the large display signs. From the roof of the marquee the front of the building with its deep niche will be brilliantly illuminated with a series of flood lights.

The outer vestibule is also in the Colonial style, with richly ornamental ceiling and marble walls. Built into the wall on either side are bulletin boards for the display of attractions.

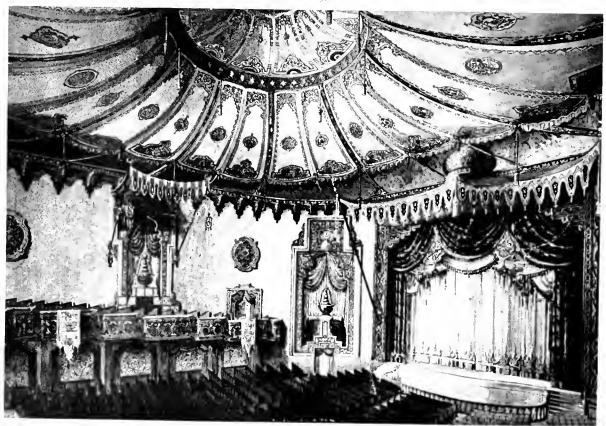

The floors of the vestibule and lobby are of rich marble terrazo, with polished brass strips and polished base.

The foyer is irregular in plan with nooks for the accommodation of waiting groups. The walls are panelled and treated in rich colors of buff and gold with a rich carpeted floor, which same material leads up to the balcony at each end of the foyer and also into the auditorium.

The auditorium is after the same colonial style of architecture and is especially artistic and beautiful, with richly decorated dome ceiling and heavy cornice.

GREATER NEW YORK'S NEWEST ATMOSPHERIC THEATRE

Loew's Pitkin Marks Further Invasion of Neighborhoods by Major Type House

OPENING of the Pitkin Theatre in the upper Brooklyn section of Brooklyn, N. Y., on November 23, added another lavishly decorated atmospheric house to a constantly expanding chain of de luxe neighborhood theatres in the Greater New York.

Like its companion, Loew's Kings Theatre in Flatbush, the Pitkin offers the neighborhood in which it is located the type of picture playhouse which measures up in size and appointment to the downtown Metropolitan house. The presentations from screen and stage are circuited from the Capitol on Broadway.

In structural splendor this new theatre represents what Thomas W. Lamb, its architect, considers one of the most gorgeous examples of atmospheric theatre art. It is designed in the Hispano - Moresque style, suggesting in many of its interior features productions that distinguish the famous Alhambra and other noted buildings of old Spain.

The Pitkin is located on the corner of Pitkin and Saratoga Avenues. The main entrance is from Pitkin Avenue, passage into the house being through a large foyer featured by a very colorful ceiling, a polychrome value of coffered design worked out in elaborate ornamentation. The toyer is richly carpeted with a heavy floor covering colored in henna and peacock blue. Spacing the walls are handsome throne chairs, pottery and ornaments. The walls are decorated with majudica placques and embroidered banners.

To the left of the auditorium doors is the ornamental staircase leading to the mezzanine floor with its loges and balcony seats. This handsome promenade is enriched with Spanish furniture, splendid paintings and tapestries. At one end is a high and elaborately decorated fountain of brilliant-hued marble and tile.

The ladies suite on the mezzanine floor is in Persian style, with furnishings imported from the Orient. The men's suite is Moorish, with an interesting collection of African tribal weapons in the smoking room.

The visitor next enters the auditorium where the wealth of Hispano-Moresque decoration reaches its apex of magnificence. The polychrome color scheme here softens while the decorative design fairly leaps into more striking intricacy of detail.

The effect is that of a vast garden, beneath a domed blue sky, enclosed by high sculptured walls which are surmounted with elaborately carved towers and balcony. The front wall is penetrated below the proscenium arch, and there as the curtain rises, in comfortably upholstered seats one can surrender himself to imalloyed enjoyment of the performance.

Among the innovations are:

Accoustics—Special materials developed from laboratory experiments have been used throughout in the construction of the theatre auditorium. All drapes and decorations have a specific accoustical value, Projection—The screen is a newly perfected Transvox enlarging screen, about three times the ordinary size, the patents of which are owned by Loew's theatres.

Air Conditioning-A modern plant prepares and purifies all air entering the theatre, cooling and washing it in summer, providing warm air in winter, and distributing it evenly throughout the theatre. Regulation of apparatus is thermostatic.

Seating System—To facilitate seating an automatic telephone system has been installed for intercommunication by ushers.

Stage—The opening of the proscenium arch permits the staging of elaborate presentations exactly as they are presented at the Capitol Theatre in Manhattan.

Lighting equipment for the stage is automatic. Lighting switches are eliminated and lighting effects can be arranged ten sets in advance, a complete change for each set requiring only the pressing of a button.

As master of ceremonies the theatre presents Leon Navara, Vitaphone star and film theatre entertainer. Navara make his initial bid for Brooklyn favor at the head of his "Aristocrats of Jazz," a stage band of young musicians.

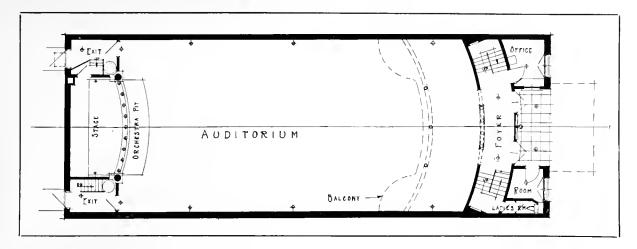

Conducting the Pitkin Grand Orchestra in the pit is Gerard Carbonara, whose service to film music has long been distinguished.

The Robert Morton organ in this theatre is an excellent added feature of the shows. At the console of this $100,-000 instrument is John Gart, youthful and brilliant artist who has established himself in New York favor by previous engagements at the Capitol and Valencia Theatres.

For the first feature on its screen Loew's Pitkin offered the first Brooklyn showing of "So This Is College."

The premiere stage presentation was Arthur Knoor's "Cafe de Paree," headlined by Emile Borco, comedian who won American fame in the first "Chauve Souris." Other features of the flashy revue was the Lassiter Brothers, comedy acrobatic dancers, Duffin & Draper, Follies Bergere adagio artists, Jeanne Walton, singer, Jack Hanlen, eccentric dancer, and the twenty Chester Hale girls.

Opening of the Pitkin was hailed by Upper Brooklyn as an impetus to civic growth. In recognition of the event community leaders, merchants and officials united with the officials of Loew's Inc., in making the inaugural a gala event.

SMALL TOWN PROJECT COMPLETED AT COST OF $27,000

Theatre in Cheney, Wash., Seats 475 on Main Floor and Balcony—Designed by Charles Wood, Architect, of Spokane

L UXURIOUS furnishings and fixtures in a setting of striking simplicity, the result of a design which eliminates great detail and ornate treatment, are distinguishing features of an unusual small town theatre which recently opened in Cheney, Washington. The new house is called The Melodian and in all features of its design and equipment is up to the new standards for the modern talking picture entertainment now in demand by the public of the small towns as well as metropolitan theatregoers.

The Melodian was built by P. C. Hansen, of Cheney, especially for the use of Miss Lulu Nielson, who has operated theatres in Oaksdale, Garfield, Cheney and Alberta. Miss Nielson has taken a ten-year lease on the new building.

The theatre was built at a total cost of approximately $27,000, including the cost of equipping and furnishing, the latter items consuming about $15,000 of the total expenditure. The equipment is the property of Miss Nielson.

The dimensions of the theatre are 32 by 88 feet. A basement under the rear portion measures 12 feet by 31 feet. The ceiling is 24 feet. Construction is of brick and tile, with concrete for the lower floor and wood for the balcony flooring. The roof is of metal tile and composition. The exterior is executed in cream colored stucco for the facade. Auditorium ceiling is covered with an accoustical material and the walls are of rough cast plaster.

The interior is attractive, ly decorated. Interior finish is of pine, painted in stipple finish.

Heating is by automatic forced warm air. Charles Wood, Spokane architect, designed and supervised building of this Spanish type theatre centrally located on Cheney's main street. Stucco in a two-tone effect with a metal tile roof was used for the exterior. The interior, lower floor, balcony and loges have walls of rough acoustic plaster and decorative ceilings, finished in Spanish leather brown high-lighted with Roman gold—a combination utilitarian from an acoustical standpoint and artistic. Rugs, drapes, and figured velvet-backed seats with air cushions, carry out the Spanish color note.

One large arch in the foyer is flanked by two smaller arches, the curtains being crimson velvet with gold-trimmed lambrequins. Colorful Spanish silk curtains at windows and glass doors add a beauty touch while decorative lamps in Spanish design hang from the ceiling below the balcony.

Spanish detail is carried out in the lighting scheme with ornamental shields under decorative iron lighting fixtures. Twisted columns flank the sides of the Proseenium arch.

The seating capacity is 475 with slanting floors arranged to give all an unobstructed view. There is a rest room and a drinking tountain at the front.

A departure from the usual motion picture stage is a moveable stage which slides out above the orchestrl pit and enlarges the smaller stage so that it may be used for home dramatics. The stage curtains are in keeping with other rich furnishings of the theatre.

The booth is fire and sound proof.

STAGE LIGHTING

IN THE NEW AMSTERDAM THEATRE

IN THE New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, has been presented, under the direction of Florenz Ziegfeld, many an outstanding musical comedy success. The recent hit, "Whoopee", with the inimitable Eddie Cantor, held sway for over 400 performances, proving one of the greatest Ziegfeld attractions in years.

Ziegfeld shows have always been known for their outstanding use of color and light as an essential part of successful stage presentation. "Whoopee" was no exception. An interesting and varied array of colorful stage lighting effects contributed definitely to the value of the show as a box office attraction.

It is worthy of note that Ziegfeld hits, famous for color and beauty of lighting, rely on Ward Leonard Vitrohm (vitreous enamelled) Dimmers. The New Amsterdam, where Eddie Cantor held sway in "Whoopee", and the magnificent new Ziegfeld Theatre, are both using Vitrohm Dimmers.

Bulletin 75, describing Vitrohm Dimmers and their applications to stage lighting, will be sent upon request without charge. Remember that Ward Leonard Vitrohm construction is backed by 38 years' experience in the design and manufacture of equipment for the complete and accurate control of lighting.

THE PYRAMID of the Sun, at San Juan Teohuacan, is as large as that of Cheops, measuring 216 feet at the base. It was built some time before the Toltecs occupied the Valley of Mexico, and was originally crowned with a huge obsidian monument to the sun.

THEATRE CHAIR BUILDERS TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS

A Theatre Specially Designed for Wide Screen Pictures

New Schine Theater Under Construction at Cortland, New York, Has Special Reserved Section With Amplification For Those Hard Of Hearing, And Other Innovations—Offices Above Stores In Theatre Building Designed As Town's Medical Center—Designed by Victor A. Rigaumont, A. I. A., of New York City.

ESIGNED especially for the presentation of wide screen Grandeur Pictures, the new Schine Theatre at Cortland, New York, will have a reserved section with special amplification for those hard of hearing and other innovations prompted by the latest progress made in audible screen entertainment.

Victor A. Rigaumont, A. I. A., of New York City, is the architect and he is supervising the construction now under way.

This theatre will be semi-atmospheric but designed in good taste and simplicity, avoiding extra ornate effects. Architecturally it will be French Mediterranean, reminiscent of Southern France and the Cote, D'Azur and the blue shores of the Mediterranean.

A very desirable feature of this fire-proof theatre building will be the arrangement of offices, over some of the stores, designed to be a Medical Center for the town. The unit of rooms consist of a general waiting room, a nurses' room, secretary's room and various offices for the doctors. This plan should immediately make the Schine Theatre building an edifice of importance and service to the community.

The plans call for four medium-sized stores and two large stores, with the Medical Center offices to be located over the smaller stores and the larger stores also occupying the floors above them.

The exterior results are to be tapestry brick and limestone.

The thirty-five foot theatre entrance will be flanked on each side by a pylon, with pylon light above. Over the entrance a full-width marquee will carry changeable letter signs and an upright Neon Tube sign on the front of the building will sell the name of the theatre.

The main lobby which is to run up two floors will serve as a lounge as well as a lobby. The grand staircase will be located here. An indirect system of beam lighting should prove a particularly attractive feature.

A large smoking room for men and women will be built below the lobby. The rest rooms will be off this main room, also serving as a lounge and made cozy by a large open fireplace.

Ample standing, as well as scating capacity will be provided on the main floor. And plenty of exits and exit courts will insure safety. The stage will be of regulation construction with trap doors, border lights, fire tower and dressing rooms. A gridiron and counterweight system and a stage ventilator will be taken care of in a fly loft.

The Proscenium Arch has been especially designed to accommodate the Grandeur wide screen pictures.

The semi-atmospheric auditorium will have a small balcony reached from the Mezzanine to which the Grand Staircase leads from the lobby. The balcony will be set back in the auditorium so as not to form a great overhang, thereby permitting a view of the sky effect ceiling. Stars and signs of the Zodiac will be the ceiling decoration, together with Allegorical groups depicting the progress of the Moving Picture Industry.

Special attention is being paid to the accoustical properties of the auditorium and the sound carrying qualities of the walls so as to reach every seat with clarity. The entire ceiling and the back walls are to be treated with acconstical sound absorbing plaster. In the center of the balcony in front there will be a reserved section for persons hard of hearing. A device will be installed to permit those so afflicted to hear completely all of the talking pictures, as well as any act on the stage.

The projection booth is to be built outside of the building entirely. It is designed as a large, well ventilated and airy room especially to take care of the electrical apparatus involved in the projectors and current capacities of the projection machines necessary for the Grandeur pictures. The battery and generator rooms will be planned adjacent to the booth. The exhaust fan system will be located on the same level, together with locker rooms and toilet dependencies for the operators.

Considerable progress in construction has already been made and it is anticipated that the theatre will be completed in a comparatively short space of time.

New and Improved Equipment

A Review of the Latest Developments in Theatre Engineering

Usher Signal System Speeds Seating 10 to 15 Per Cent

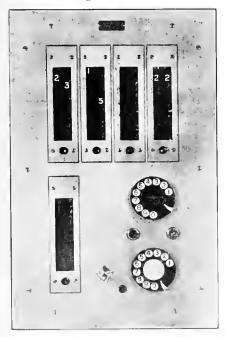

THE Strowger Tele-Chec System made by Automatic Electric, Inc., Chicago, is a highly developed electrical signalling system designed for use by theatre ushers in signalling to their floor directors the number of seats vacant in their respective sections.

The use of the system eliminates the necessity for telephone conversation and hand signals between ushers and directors, thereby affording quick and accurate transmission of information as to available seats in a quiet, expeditious manner.

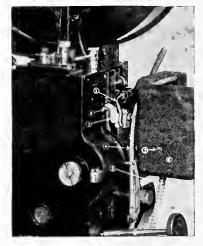

The Tele-Chec System was placed on the market after research in this field which is said to have shown that from ten to fifteen per cent more patrons can be admitted and seated on a busy day when this system is used.

The design of the equipment eliminates the possibility of wrong numbers through misoperation or mismand and on the part of theatre patrons. It is constructed the same durable apparatus as is used in the automatic telephone equipment made by the same company, and carries the same service and guarantee.

The equipment at each aisle consists of an automatic telephone dial, the operation of which sets up the number transmitted in actual figures at the receiving unit. These figures are brilliantly illuminated and consequently easily interpreted. Only those figures displayed are visible. The display can be erased by either the usher or the director and the director has access to a recall buzzer for signalling purposes at the aisle. The equipment is not excessive in price and installation is simple.

New Dynamic Unit Designed Specially for Talkies

A NEW dynamic reproducer, known as the Racon Type "A" Giant Dynamic, has been developed especially for talking motion picture work. The new dynamic is specially designed to reproduce the human voice with fidelity. It is brilliant and possesses a frequency response covering the entire band of audibility from 60 to 5,000 cycles, according to the makers.

It is stated that a single horn equipped with the new type "A" unit and placed behind the screen, furnishes more than ample volume for a 1,500 seat house.

The reproducer combines the advantages of horn-type speakers with the good features of cone-type dynamics. It uses a very light metallic diaphragm. The Racon Dynamic it is claimed possesses the clear, distinct, response of the horn, combined with the complete range of the dynamic.

The resonant point of the Racon diaphragm is above 10,000 cycles and hence cannot interfere with reproduction. Sound can be directed to any desired point by merely changing the angle or "tilt" of the horn.

The diaphragm of the type "A" Giant Dynamic is made of an extremely light metal, utilizing a new patented method of cloth suspension. The diaphragm is dome-shaped and has great strength. The cloth used for suspension is chemically treated and is fastened at several points. Due to this new type of suspension, the diaphragm is capable of relatively great movement, without cracking.

It is designed to operate on an output up to 30 watts of undistorted power. It requires a field supply of 1 ampere at 6 volts direct current. The unit can be used in connection with any well-designed horn, although the makers declare best results are obtained by using the special process Racon air-column exponential horns.

New Sound Porous Screen Developed in England

A new sound screen constructed entirely of asbestos and therefore fireproof, has been developed in England. The material is perforated, the holes being spaced at intervals of about 34 of an inch, to allow for the passage of sound from speakers located back of the screen.

EQUIPMENT AND OPERATION

Double Channels and Service

by John F. Rider

S a double channel talking picture installation necessary for satisfactory operation?... The question we find is very interesting. Some of the representative organizations have installed innumerable single channel systems with perfect satisfaction. Others assure trouble free operation, yet recommend the emergency channel.

The selection of a criterion is extremely difficult because single and two channel systems are equally popular. However, if the single channel system is proving satisfactory, is the double channel worth while? Is the added expense of an emergency system worthwhile?

The problem is one with two angles—economy and the safety factor. Picture an installation sold under the most phenomenal guarantee, free service for one year. Just what does this free service mean. Certainly the sales organization does not make the promise because they feel philanthropic and like to maintain a service department. They guarantee free service because they feel certain that the tolerance values allowed in the manufacture of the component parts of the installation are such that the operating life of the apparatus will be long and healthy.

It is difficult to compare the talkie field with any other. Perhaps the railroad is the only one field in which a slogan similar to that of the show husiness may be found.

Unlike other fields employing service men, temporary repairs are unsatisfactory in talkie installations. The listener is not an individual with the pride of possession. He in his home is satisfied with a temporary repair of his radio, even if the quality of reproduction is poor or if the sensitivity is low. He in his home is satisfied with an emergency repair of the vacuum cleaner—of the electric refrigerator... Not so with the theatre fan. He has paid his money and he wants his money's worth.

Were it possible to limit the forms of trouble encountered in sound installations, matters would be quite simple. Unfortunately, however, troubles sometimes are more serious, for reasons which are quite numerous. The simplest of defects may produce disastrous results. The most frequent trouble is tube trouble—a defect in the tube, or natural demise. However all forms of ailment are not tube troubles. In some instances units burn out or rupture. In such cases emergency repairs are difficult. The service man is of little utility other than to determine what is wrong and to later replace the defective part. Many parts of a talkie system are vulnerable, subject to electrical strains imposed upon systems when some other unit becomes defective.

The type of installation is of importance in deciding upon the need for an emergency system. The finer the design of an installation, the easier it is to locate a defect. Successful diagnosis and isolation is half the battle. If we are to compare the efficiency of design of an installation so constructed that all the parts are easily accessible and the various circuits are metered so as to enable determination of operating conditions, with an installation all encased with the covers riveted and all meters excluded, the former need not be a two channel system. whereas the latter should be a two channel installation.

The amplifier equipped with electrical meters or indicating instruments so neccessary for good maintenance of electrical equipment is of inestimable aid to the service man. As a matter of fact it is of immense value to the operator.

MANY contend that an emergency stock of parts of the vulnerable parts of the installation—obviates the need for a complete second channel. Such a stock of parts is an excellent idea. Of course, the cost of such a stock is not cheap, and the application of the new for the old part requires a man who can first locate the trouble, and then effect the repair.

Another interesting point is the type of emergency channel. Should the emergency system be a duplicate of the original? Three factors control the decision.

I. The proximity of the service man. 2. The ease of securing replacement parts.

J. The type of installation. Of these three we believe that the paramount consideration is the type of installation. By type we mean several things, such as the power output of the regular system, whether or not the total output is required for the house and if the various parts are accessible to the man who is going to make the repair.

All three considerations enumerated above are interlocked. Of the three subjects mentioned in connection with the type of installation, we feel that the second is of utmost importance because it concerns economy—the financial expenditure consistent with satisfactory performance. All things equal, if the size of the house is such that only half the power output of the regular amplifier is required to fill the house with good audibility, the power output of the emergency channel may be less than the regular; its maximum being equal to the normal power level employed to fill the house with the regular channel. If the power requirement is less the number of components in the amplifying system is less and as such, its cost is decreased.

If we now accord thought to the other items, we must consider the possible period of operation of the emergency system. This consideration entails the proximity of the service man and the ease of securing replacement parts.

Supplementing the ease of securing the service man, it is necessary to consider the ease of repair in addition to replacement. Replacement parts may be available upon short notice, yet actual replacement of the defective part may be a matter of days. Under such conditions duplication of the original channel is imperative.

Thus far we have said but little about the economical aspect of the matter. Duplication of channels, no matter what the power rating of the emergency system, costs money. How can we reconcile the duplication of amplifying channels with a single channel system which has been in use for a long period of time without any trouble? Comparison of the two systems is possible only in the event of trouble.

The talkie field can learn a great deal about service from the radio industry.

The service problem passed by the radio industry some time ago has not yet been reached by the talkie field. The tremendous demand for equipment left little room for the consideration of service. The important thing was to sell the equipment. Service would follow later. In contrast to the radio field, talking equipment stays sold without service because the movie public demands the talkie. It is true that a talkie amplifier represents the highest calibre design found in audio amplification, but one cannot say that the design of a complete amplifier, neglecting quality of reproduction, has reached uniformly high standards.

The Theatre Building Business Map Shows—

Over Five Million Expenditure for 24 New Theatre Projects

Central States lead in number of new theatre buildings announced and total amount of investment—10 theaters seating 16,000 and to cost $2,880,000—being scheduled for that section during the period of this report. Closing period of year indicates 1929 building program below predictions at outset of the year-Construction phase of theatre industry not accurately pictured by new projects alone in view of exceptionally heavy program of remodelling and renovating—Influences working toward greatly increased new building activities during 1930 indicated—Attendance averages sustained in key city theatres in face of unseasonable weather and stock market crashes—Two holidays as favorable factors offset by added competition from football games shows continued prosperous box office business is on stable basis.

THE 1929 theatre building program has had more than its share of ups and downs. Our last ten monthly reports covering alternately indicated complete collapse of the building program and then following immediately would show a recovery to the volume which was enjoyed during 1928. But in general, 1929 will have to go down as a year of depression in theatre building, though it can be felt from analyzing the monthly building reports for this year, that our second period of heavy theatre building can be expected momentarily to get under way.

There are many underlying conditions which have restrained theatre building for 1929 and there are an equal number of influences working towards an exceptionally heavy program of building to commence during 1930, possibly in the very early part of this coming year.

However, a true picture of the construction phase of the theatre industry for 1929 is not to be had through an analysis of only the new theatre projects as the real activities in this field have been in remodelling and renovating. Never before in the history of motion picture theatres has remodelling been carried forth on such an enormous scale as during 1929. This remodelling, to a great extent, has supplanted the requirements for new houses. It may further be predicted that remodelling will also continue for 1930 even with a heavy new building program.

The figures for new theatre building, derived from an analysis of the reports received by MOTION PICTURE NEWS for the thirty-day period ending November 15th, are as follows:

In the United States $5.370,000 will be invested in twenty-four new theatres, one of which will cost over a $1,000,000, and three between $500,000 and $1,000,000. These twenty-four theatres will have a combined seating capacity of 35,900. The averages for these buildings show each theatre representing an investment of $223,000, seating 1,500, giving an average cost per seat of $144,000.

The Central States lead all other territories both in number of theatres and total amount of investment. Here ten theatres will cost $2,880,000 and seat 16,000. One of these theatres will cost over a $1,000,000 and one between $500,000 and a $1,000,000. The averages per theatre for this territory is $288,000. average cost per theatre, 1,600 seating capacity and a cost per seat of $180.00.

The North Atlantic States have had the most consistent building program of any territory in the country for the year. This report shows $1,400,000 to be invested in four new houses, seating in the aggregate 8,600. Two of these theatres will cost in excess of $500,000. The averages for these theatres are—Cost, $350,000; seats, 2.150, with a cost per seat of $160.00.

The Western States show a relatively large program where $480,000 will be invested in three houses seating 4,800. The averages for these theatres are $160,000, cost per theatre, seating 1,600 with an average cost per seat of $100.00.

In the Northeastern states, two theatres will be built, which together will cost $380,000 and seat 2,900.

Three houses are planned for the Southwestern States. The total investment required to cover the cost of 1,900 seats is $160,000. This gives averages for this territory of $51,000, cost per theatre, seating, 630 with an average cost of $85.00 per seat.

The Southeastern and West Coast territory report only one small theatre each.

Illinois leads all individual states in new theatre activities for this report, where three houses will be built, calling for a total investment of $1,260,000. New York reports three new theatres, which together will cost $900,000. No other state reports more than one new theatre project.

The sale of equipment generally has continued on a very heavy volume with no indications towards any easing-up of sales.

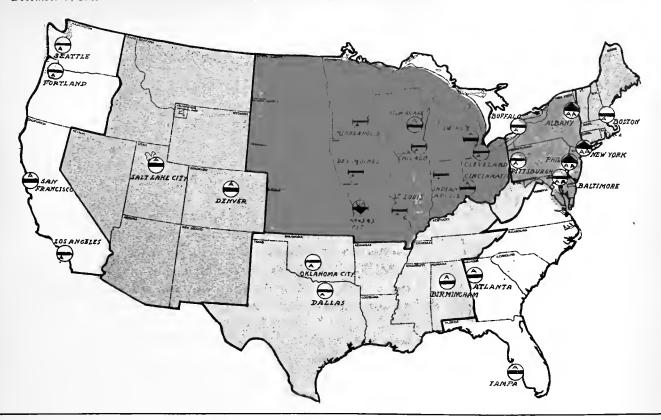

NQUESTIONABLY the most important factor connected with theatre attendance averages during the period of this report was the conclusive evidence, in the continued prosperity at the big key city houses, that the picture shows are not to be classed among the "luxury lines," which, according to majority opinion, were certain to reflect the tumble in security prices with the resultant billions in paper losses to stockholders throughout the country. The sustained character of business at the film theatres made it certain that business was not merely the result of people's search for distraction of mind from what losses had been suffered in the market. Business did not spurt, nor did it let down immediately after the markt crash, thus showing the sound character of the merchandising enterprise in which the motion picture exhibitor is engaged.

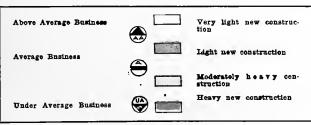

As the indicators on the map show, a general level of highly satisfactory business was done in the majority of cities on which reports are made. There are three key cities with an Above Average rating for the period, twenty-four at Average, and only one Under Average.

Good pictures, of course, are necessary to attract good business, but as the records from many houses proved, a really good picture today can gross more money than ever in the past.

Among the significant box office grosses rolled up by bigger films current during the period was the performance of "The Cock-Eyed World" at the Warfield in San Francisco. The Fox soldier comedy earned the distinction of turning in that theatre's best gross except one—which high mark was made the week Al Jolson made a personal appearance.

And this during the time when market quotations were falling with each transaction reported on the ticker tapes.

The map of the United States shown here is divided into seven territories, with colored shading indicating the division of new proposed theatre building as represented for the period from Oct. 15th to Nov. 15th. This new construction is represented in valuation of dollars and cents rather than number of projects.

The shading is in four densities; solid, which represents the greatest value of proposed theatres; heavy stipple, which is second in valuation of new construction; medium, which areas represent conservative building; and the very light areas, where the investment in new theatre projects is very light. The information used in compiling the statistics visualized by the map was obtained through several reliable sources, and the map is to be considered as very nearly accurate in representing comparative theatre building activities in various sections of the country.

The circles shown on the map are located in key cities and illustrate averages of theatre attendance during the period from Oct. 15th to Nov. 15th, 1929. The diagrams indicate the relative attendance at the first-run theatres in these cities during the period covered. These are given by "averages," with symbols to indicate "Above Average" and "Under Average" box office returns. The term "average" as applied in this gurrant indicate "Above Average" as applied in this survey indicates satisfactory box office returns, based upon theatre expectancies, which, in turn, are governed by past earnings under similar or nearly similar conditions.

These attendance statistics were compiled from an analysis of the Box Office Check-up, published week by Motton Picture News, and other sources of information gathered by this publication.

Two holidays occurred during the period, and they no doubt contributed importantly to the general good business which the key cities totaled during the October 15 to November 15 span. Election day and Armistice Day brought brisk trade to the bigger houses in a great many cities. However, to offset the advantages which accrue from such special occasions of benefit to the theatres, during this period there were played on many gridirons of the country football games which commanded great national and local interest, and naturally took great crowds away from the theatres on Saturday afternoons. The theatres, nevertheless, held their own by getting an even bigger than average "play" during the other nights of the weeks in this period.

The pictures which scored the highest box office averages at the first run key city houses during this period are as follows:

- 1. "Flight"
- "Gold Diggers of I
 "The Trespasser"
- 4. "The Virginian"
- 5. "Sweetie"
- "Flight"

 "Gold Diggers of B'way"

 "The Trespasser"

 6. "The Cock-Eyed World"

 7. "The Saturday Night Kid"

 8. "Welcome Danger"

 - 9. "Marianne"
 - 10. "The Great Gabbo"

THER attractions which, while not playing a sufficient number of engagements during this period to be rated in this department's monthly check-up, did an excellent business in a number of cities are "The Taming of the Shrew," "The Mighty" and "The Girl from Woolworth's." Reports on these pictures clearly indicate that they are headed for high rating among the notably successful offerings of the season.

More and more the picture business is becoming more like the show business of which it was at one time merely a little brother and which it now dominates completely. The outstanding pictures, like the stage hits, make bigger money than ever, while the less successful in gaining public favor find themselves left to languish despite heroic efforts to ballyhoo them into the success class.

Longer and longer grow the runs of the outstanding pictures, as one-week policies fall away in the face of demand at the box office. Weekly-change houses are becoming more scarce for this reason, and a changed policy with regard to motion picture merchandising and theatre operating plans seems in course of being developed rapidly.

Sound Research

Laboratories

SILENCE....

What is Silence? . . . Silence is simply QUIET relative to normal sounds to which we are accustomed. ¶ Now that sound pictures are here the requirements for RELATIVE silence in your theatre are enormously increased. You must shut out street noises. You plead with the audience for silence. ¶ You MUST have ventilation and air conditioning. If the fans and air rush are noisy do you shut down the system and let the audience suffer, or do you amplify the sound to the extent of DISTORTION AND BAD REPRODUCTION? ¶ Carrier Engineers have anticipated these requirements and now, after most thorough laboratory research, have MASTERED the noise problem. All Carrier Systems that are now being placed in sound stages and theatres are guaranteed as to sound level; that is, guaranteed NOT to produce sounds disturbing to recording or reproduction.

HE Carrier System for Air Conditioning is the only system guaranteed on a scientific db. basis as to sound level. Added to all the well-known Carrier perfected features of control is now the sound limit guarantee.

DON'T BLAME THE BOOTH FOR THE BACKTALK

Nine times out of ten - providing sound equipment is good—unsatisfactory talkies are the result of poor acoustics. In these days of perfected talking pictures the public is rapidly getting more and more insistent on clear, distinct voices.

The problem of getting good acoustics in the average theatre, fundamental as it is, is fortunately not as great as it might appear to the average exhibitor.

Expanses of hard echoing surfaces—alcoves and sound pockets—responsible for most of the echo. The veneer seats replaced with upholstered chairs, draperies scientifically hung, and floor spaces properly carpeted will go a long way toward the complete elimination of echoes, and poor sound distribution in your theatre.

National Theatre Supply Company's Acoustical Experts will gladly cooperate with you in a solution of this problem.

Dead Spots-Loss of Intelligibility		dition where the hearing is un due to almost any of the above

NE of the greatest difficulties that the sound picture industry has to face is the lack of an adequate vocabulary on the part of the unscientific listener. Even those theatre men who are careful enough to listen and criticize faulty reproduction or defective acoustics seldom are able to express themselves in language intelligible to the engineers.

Probably because the organs of sight are used so much more frequently than the organs of hearing, the average individual is much better equipped to describe the former type of sensation. Each new development of civilization, however, demands more and more of the ear. It seems desirable, therefore, to try to develop a terminology which will be intelligible to people of all classes in order that sound reproduction may be opened to intelligent criticism. Such terminology is available, but it is to be found only in technical books or papers, or in the laboratory jargon of the engineers. For example, what the acoustical engineer calls reverberation the average individual usually calls echo. What the engineer defines as echo is most often described by the listener as a "dead spot." And this so-called dead spot is normally produced by a form of resonance which the ordinary person is quite likely to call reverberation!

The following paragraphs are a preliminary attempt on the part of the writer to bring the theatre-man and the sound engineer to a common ground.

Let us assume, then, that we are attending a sound picture. Or if we own the theatre perhaps we are standing in the back of the house trying to determine how it is "going over," and what defects may be in evidence. Probably the condition which we are most likely to observe is that there is something wrong with the volume of the sound, (faulty loudness distribution is the technical term). If there is too much sound it is in all likelihood due to an incorrect adjustment of the "fader," a volume control which is operated from the projection booth. The adjustment should really be made from the floor of the house, preferably in the center, by a person stationed there to signal the projection booth.

If there is not enough sound, that is, if the speech or music sounds muffled or dead, it may again be due to an incorrect "fader" adjustment, but is more likely due to the acoustics of the house. The shape of the house may be such that sound does not reach all parts in proper proportion, or there may be too much absorbent material present. The former condition is often produced by a deep over-hanging balcony. Sound can only enter through the throat of the balcony, and by the time it has passed over a number of rows of people or upholstered seats absorption has considerably reduced the amount of energy available to the ear.

It may be worth while at this point to digress for a moment and explain this phenomenon of sound absorption. Sound, like heat, light, electricity, etc., is a form of energy. It may be converted into other forms of energy under certain conditions. Thus, as light energy disappears as such when it strikes a dull black surface, sound also disappears when it strikes a certain type of surface. The phenomenon is not actually one of absorption, but of conversion into heat or some form of kinetic energy. Most people have encountered it in some form or another, as in a closet full of clothes or in a room piled high with rugs or furniture. In direct contrast is the effect produced in the empty rooms of an unfurnished house or between theatre walls or a hospital corridor. Absorption is produced by the porosity or flexibility of the materials involved. For this reason heavy carpets, curtains, felts, etc., are good sound absorbers, and hard, bare walls are very poor absorbers.

Returning now to our discussion of loudness distribution, another fertile cause of difficulty is over zealousness in the use of sound absorbent materials. Because 90 per cent of acoustical problems can be cured by introducing absorbent material, very often the amateur thinks that the more absorption installed the better. This may possibly be true, but it always necessitates a compensating increase in the power of the source, and this is not always possible.

One other possible cause of incorrect londness adjustment might be mentioned; namely, faulty location of horns. If the horns are not faced in the right direction and at the right angle, some parts of the house will find the sound much londer than others. This is more true of horns than of other types of speakers because most horns are more or less directional; that is, they cast a "beam" of sound out into the house for a considerable distance. Incorrect horn adjustment also produces in some cases the sensation that the sound is coming from some point other than the screen. This is termed loss of illusion.

Next in frequency of occurrence comes a defect which is to be attributed solely to the theatre itself. It seldom is apparent to the average listener, except possibly at the end of a phrase or sentence. At such times it manifests itself as a tendency on the part of the sound to linger, or in the words of the acoustical engineer, to reverberate. Actually this condition exists after each syllable of each word, but succeeding syllables mask the reverberation so that the only sensation of which the listener is conscious is an indistinctness in the words.

P ERHAPS the best description is to say that the sound assumes a sort of blurred, indiscriminate loudness, giving the sensation that more people are talking than really are. At the same time it loses some of its directional qualities. If the listener shuts his eyes he begins to have the sensation that the sound is all around him. The writer has sometimes heard such houses described as being too "lively" or too "bright." This is because the same lack of absorbent material which produces excessive reverberation permits the sound to build up to an abnormally high intensity. In such cases a large organ or orchestra may almost overpower the house. In a similar fashion the miscellaneous incidental sounds of people coughing, scraping their feet, moving about, etc., will appear to be magnified to an unusual degree.

In aggravated cases reverberation may be quite plain, as when one speaks in a long bare corridor, or in the main waiting room of a railroad station. It may be equally plain in a theatre, if the investigator will stand on the stage, clap his hands or knock two boards together sharply and determine how much sound follows the actual clap. Many houses are reverberent in the empty condition and quite satisfactory when an audience has introduced a large quantity of absorption in the form of clothing, etc. However, if there is cause for suspicion, it is worth while to have an experienced engineer check the amount of absorption present and determine the reverberation. A number of well-known acoustical companies offer this service free.

In order that it may be entirely clear how the reverberation is related to the quantity of sound absorbent material present, it may be well to note that there is a definite formula by which the time of reverberation is calculated from the sound absorption and the volume of the room. In other words, the length of time that any sound "lingers" before dying away to inaudibility will depend directly on how rapidly the sound is absorbed. Lengthy laboratory research has established the sound absorption coefficient of all types of interior finishes, and the fundamental formula has been used in thousands of rooms of all kinds to check experimental results. The ideal period of reverberation has been determined by tabulating results obtained by measuring halls and auditoriums which were generally recognized to have satisfactory acoustics. It is possible to calculate in advance of construction what the reverberation will be and to make the necessary revisions in the plans to render conditions ideal. In a similar fashion the calculation can be made from the plans for an existing theatre, and it is not necessary for the person making the calculation to inspect the house at all.

W^E next come to the discussion of echoes, as following naturally from the subject matter above. Though somewhat more difficult, it is also possible to analyze houses for echoes without actual inspection. This may be done because certain combinations of shape and size must exist before an echo will occur, and it is possible to determine quite accurately from the plans whether these conditions exist. As a matter of fact, it is sometimes easier to discover an echo by such analysis than by actual test, because of all acoustical problems echo is the most elusive. In mild cases the phenomenon is barely discernible even to the trained ear, and sometimes can only be discovered by comparing conditions in other parts of the house. An echo never affects more than a restricted area, sometimes only a few seats and seldom more than ten or a dozen rows. In more pronounced cases, the condition begins to make itself evident through a certain stuttering or indistinctness in the words. An echo always causes the effect of repetition, but it normally requires very careful attention to discover the actual repetition since the time interval is so short. Brief staccato sounds and high pitched sounds such as "s" and "z" are most readily heard. The hand-clap test is applied for reverberation is helpful, except that in this instance the investigator must take pains to differentiate the sounds which he hears. An echo will cause a secondary clap the merest fraction of a second after the first-so close, in fact, that the two may be almost impos-sible to distinguish. There may very likely be other secondary sounds following, which are caused by reverberation, but these will not be so close in point of

S OMETIMES an echo produces what we have described as faulty illusion. Being caused by a secondary reflection of sound from some focussing surface, it often gives the listener the impression that the original sound came from that direction. In the whole, perhaps the best solution is first to examine carefully whether or not the other possible defects listed are to blame. If areas of poor audition ("dead spots") still remain unaccounted for, it is then time to search for an echo.

One more common acoustical fault deserves mention here, for in spite of its obvious nature it is of very frequent occurrence. This is extraneous sound or noise. It occurs everywhere-a squeaking door, a broken seat, noise in the ventilating system, noise in the audience, noise in the lobby, noise in the projection booth, even noise in the street.

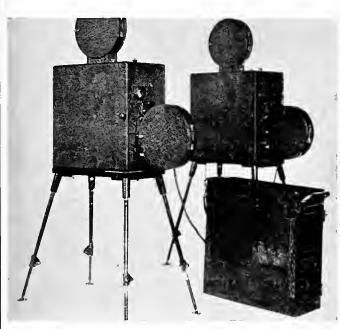

The above paragraphs have been devoted almost exclusively to possible acconstical defects in the theatre proper. The problem of distinguishing these faults from defects in the long chain of recording and reproducing apparatus is not an easy one. The writer can only suggest that tests be made comparing first the apparatus, and then an actual spoken voice. These tests must be made, of course, from the same point in the house and under identical conditions as to audience size, location of listeners, etc. Certain faults found in the apparatus, however can in no way be blamed on the acoustics of the house.

NONSIDER, for example, the roughness or scratchiness which occasionally occurs in reproduction. This is known as surface noise. It may be caused by a worn needle or imperfections in the wax of the record (if it is a disc), by flaws in the film, by the presence of dirt in the sound gate, by amplifier noise, etc.

Or again, we sometimes find faulty This is almost never synchronization. due to mechanical defects, but it may be caused by incorrect setting on the record,

House for Plot 90 x 40

Dear Mr. Rigaumont:

Dear Mr. Rigaumout:

We intend huilding a theatre in a town of 25,000 population. There are two first run houses and the one we intend to build will be the third. The size of the lot is 90 ft. x 40 ft. We would like to have from 500 to 600 seats with one center aisle and two wall aisles. One floor only. What size and kind of stage would you suggest? Entrance? Exits? This theatre is to he wired for sound. What height would you suggest? How many ventilators will we need? Give us all the above information and whatever advice we failed to ask.

P. S.—We would like an attractive front, and a nice stage of heauty. Answer by mail and in the News.

G. K.

Answering G. K.:

Your lot is not large, it is narrow. You can get 17 seats across the auditorium, with a center bank of nine seats and an aisle on each side and seats at walls, there being four seats at each wall bank.

The platform stage can be twelve feet deep, the lobby twelve feet deep, and the standing room six feet deep. This arrangement would produce twenty-four rows of You will then have 408 seats, less a loss of 18 at sides of stage, or 390 seats on the main floor.

The only way you can get about 600 seats is to have a balcony of say, about 170 seats. The stairs leading to the balcony being in the lobby.

The auditorium would be about twentyeight feet high at the ceiling. The rest room would be in the basement under the lobby, and small dressing rooms under the stage if permitted. As to the exits, place them at the front and rear, and check up if the authorities insist on side wall exits

The ventilation is simple. Blow the fresh air in at the stage end, and take the foul air out at the street end; but be certain that the fans are quiet in operation, so as not to interfere with Movietone.

Above all, don't forget that the Grandeur Screen involves a wide screen and proscenium arch, so provide for it. make the projection room large enough to take care of all installations necessary for the showing of Movietone and Grandeur Pictures.

Problem of Narrow Theatre Plot

Dear Mr. Rigaumont:

Dear Mr. Rigaumont:

We are planning a new theatre building and would appreciate some information. Wa have a lot with brick building on each side, we own a half interest in each of these walls. The measurement between said walls is 24 feet, 4 inches and the lot is 116 feet deep. Could we build a theatre on this lot to seat 450 people, if not what is the limit of seats we could have?

Would a theatre of these dimensions be satisfactory for sound pictures? Oan you tell us how to build so as to have the best possible acoustics? Have you an architect that would draw us a rough sketch of how to build in order to give us the best advantage of what space we have?

Owning the lot and the walls on each side, what would you estimate the cost of such a building be? It is our intention to build a nice theatre, but nothing elaborate.

Thanking you for an immediate reply,

F. F. Mgr.

Answering F. F.:

The most you can get is about 350 seats, allowing a 15-foot platform, 12-foot lobby, 8-foot foyer, two wall aisles, all on one floor.

You could get more in a balcony, about 125 more, this would let you have 450 seats.

About $35,000 for the building, not ineluding equipment, should see you through.

Frankly, I believe anyone building a narrow show room is making a mistake. It is hetter for everything, including acoustics to build wider, but since you own the walls, you are limited.

You can deduct the value of these walls from the estimated cost.

You can gain 32 seats by using one aisle in the center; but this is poor for control, and puts seats against walls.

Remodeling Flat Floor

Dear Mr. Rigaumout:

M. M. B.

Answering M. M. B.:

Your improvement is not an expensive one to carry out. Leave the first rows flat, but slope the last twelve rows one inch to the foot. Any good local carpenter can do this job. There is no trick to it.

The auditorium walls can be draped, or banners and hangings placed at nice locations. This will produce a change and that is what the patrons want. Whatever you put up, let it all be of good quality. This pays for itself in results.

Stages for Sound Picture Theatres

Dear Mr. Rigaumont:

In planning a new theatre building, I am puzzled regarding the importance of a stage since sound pictures compose today's shows. Do you advocate that stage be omitted in new buildings intended for the showing of sound pictures? If it is your opinion that a stage is worth building in these days, what size do you consider practical? consider practical? F. J. S.

Answering F. J. S.:

Sound picture entertainment has moved the stage into the projection booth. There is no question about that. Projection booths of today are far more important than ever and too little attention has ever been given them. I recommend a large booth with plenty of space because no one knows what tomorrow will bring out.

The same element of doubt exists regarding stages. You or I or anyone else cannot tell if stages are in the discard. Therefore, I suggest that you do construct a stage or leave space for one. There is but little money involved in constructing the shell and foundations. And you will have it if your particular town demands stage entertainment. You can place whatever equipment you think you can afford, when the occasion arises. By all means build your stage,

Accommodating Wide Screen Pictures

Dear Mr. Rigaumout:

How wide should a proscenium arch be to accommodate Grandeur Pictures? How about the size of the projection booth?

Answering G. S.:

The prosecnium arch should be 35 feet wide. Every theatre should be equipped to show wide screen or Grandeur pictures. Showmanship today demands that patrons be provided with the last word in entertainment and the live showman keeps арасе.

The projection booth should be slightly enlarged in new theatres and the wiring and generators made ample enough for the load.

Do not forget that your orchestra and dressing rooms and actors are located in the projection booth, on the film, and that it takes several operators. Therefore, the modern projection room should be large, airy, comfortable, and as sound-proof as possible, not forgetting the workshop, toilets, battery room and electrical room.

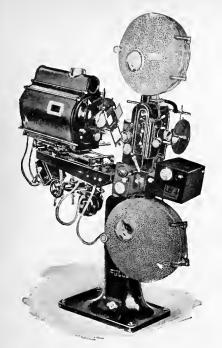

Stores and Offices Source of Income

Dear Mr. Rigaumont:

We have sufficient ground for a theatre and have an option to purchase additional ground fronting the street. Do you believe it would be practical to construct stores and sacond floor offices? L. A. B.

Answering L. A. B.:

There should be no reason for not building these stores and offices provided the town needs them. Generally it is easy to rent stores near a theatre and if the offices can be rented you, no doubt, will find it much easier to use this income producing unit as a medium to obtain financing assistance for the construction of the theatre.

Western Electric Sound System

The Avalon Theatre of Milwankee, Wis. is equipped with a pair of Fulco Projectors mounted on Western Electric Universal Base units. Installation was in the hands of Mr. Hollins.

Mr. Lower and Mr. Ryan are the projectionists in charge. All three of these men are thoroughly experienced in their respective lines.

Their letters, appearing on this page, are typical of many received by us. All of them emphasize the particular fitness of the Fulco Projector for "Sound Pictures."

I want to compliment you on your Fulca Projector es being second to none for sound projection. Having had the honor of making one of the first Installations of the Fulco Projector on Universal Bese of the Western Electric Sound System. It has proven successful in every test that can be given a projector for sound.

I have made numerous installations on sound equipment using different makes of projectors but I haven't found any that has the special points of interest and value that the Fulco Projector has. I will name e few of these good points:

Film Cooling System;
Force Feed Oiling System eliminating excess oil on film;
No Gear noise through Movietone System;
Perfect Pickup on start;
And many other features too numerous to mention.

Wishing you all the honors that can be bestowed upon you for having a perfect projector.

Very sincerely yours, A. HOLLINS Installation and Instructing Operator on Sound.

MR. HOLLINS' LETTER

E. E. Fulton Company, 151-7th St.,

Milwaukee, Wisconsin

Gentlemen:

We wish to take this opportunity of telling you how well pleased we are with the two new Fulco projectors that were installed in this theatre on the regular Western Electric talking equipment. They are throwing a picture that is so perfect and still that one would think it was painted on the screen.

We were running some old film this morning and were very much surprised to find that a piece of this film over two feet in length on which the sprocket holes were entirely gone on one side went through the machine as perfectly as if it had been a new piece of film. We cannot recommend these machines too highly to any of our fellow crossetimates.

We are proud to be the first ones to operate Fulco pro-jectors in Milwaukee and will be very glad to show this equipment to anyone who cares to see same.

Yours very truly AVALON THEATRE COMPANY F. Lower-J. T. Ryan Projectionists.

An Unselfish Service Pays its Way in Protecting M-G-M Sound Product

Based on an Interview With

J. S. MacLeod

Director, Sound Service Department of M-G-M

XHIBITOR complaints that imperfect discs, or poor recording, or any number of other causes of difficulties connected with sound reproduction, and the problems which confront distributors due to such complaints, are one of the prices the industry has paid for the new feature of motion pictures which we know as "sound," and these same business problems are responsible for the establishment by one of the large distributing companies of a most unique example of "unselfish service"-about which so much has been said in the higher councils of modern business. This is the Sound Service Department now being operated as an arm of sales and distribution by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

It is an "unselfish service" insofar as trained technicians, specially educated at the company's expense and paid salaries by the company, are available to theatre men in every territory served by a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer exchange for advice and suggestions on how they may improve the quality of sound reproduction in their theatres—such service being entirely free of charge or any obligation so far as the theatre is concerned.

It was created for the entirely selfish and very business-like reason that experience showed that inadequate equipment, poor acoustics, faulty operation of the sound apparatus was giving large numbers of picture patrons an entirely erroneous impression of the company's sound product, and therefore loomed as a serious menace to the prestige of the company's productions.

Many complaints that "recording was bad," the "discs supplied were in bad condition," etc., on product that was known to be well recorded and discs which were in perfect condition when shipped from exchanges, brought the M-G-M sales and production heads to the conclusion that something very practical would have to be done in order to protect the company's product.

The necessity of doing something practical resulted in a determination to establish a staff of technicians, qualified by proper training and experience, to work in conjunction with exchanges to help theatre men straighten out the difficulties which were at the bottom of their sound troubles, and at the same time, guarantee the proper presentation of the company's product, where that was used, though the service would necessarily have to be free to all.

Going about the job in thorough fashion, Felix F. Feist, head of sales, and his associates, arranged to have the studio in Culver City conduct a course of intensive training in the fundamentals of sound recording and reproduction, the right method in handling films and dises, and acoustics.

THE course was attended by thirteen young men. They received their final instructions, before assignment to territories in which they were to serve, from Mr. Feist and Mr. MacLeod at a meeting held in Chicago, and then proceeded to the posts they now fill in the field force of the M-G-M Sound Department.

The importance of this free service

The importance of this free service supplied by the company to all theatres is indicated in the departmental slogan: "Protect Our Product."

These thirteen technicians have been in the field for more than 2 months, and they have rendered service to a great number of theatres in which managers and operators were encountering difficulties they were unable 10 overcome without expert advice.

One man is attached to each sales division. There are 3 supervisors and 10 technicians, and the company is prepared to put a man in every exchange should conditions warrant that extension of the department's personnel.

An idea of the thoroughly practical value of this service to the theatre is to be found in one of a large number of letters from exhibitors expressing their thanks for the assistance given by one of the M-G-M technicians, this came from a California town and told how the advice given over the 'phone by one of the technicians at the exchange resulted in eliminating trouble in his system. "As suggested," the writer declared, "the magnetic pickup was out of alignment with disc and turntable and correction of this ended the difficulty we were having."

THE personnel of the organization, which is under the direction of Mr. MacLeod, includes the following: Charles B. Fogle, Mid Western territory; Leo S. Moore, Southern territory; Ernest Whitley, Eastern territory; Supervisors. Charles L. Berry, Washington, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Charlotte; Ralph H. George,, Chicago, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis; Jack Valpey, Michael Stinore, Los Angeles, Portland, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Seattle; John Redmond, D. S. MacLeod, New York, Albany, Buffalo; Edward Dobkin, Boston, New Haven; John Ward, Atlanta, Dallas, Memphis, New Orleans, Oklahoma City; Jerome Porter, St. Louis, Des Moines, Kansas City, Omaha; Selwyn Levinson, Detroit, Cincinnati, Cleveland.

In order to obtain the services of these specially trained technicians all the exhibitor has to do is to request his exchange to send a man out to help him. The technicians are instructed to make thorough investigations of the apparatus, the acoustics of the theatre, the method of operating the equipment.

To the sales department of the company, this new service feature contributes to the work of both salesmen and branch offices; provides ready source of reliable information about sound and sound problems; insures best possible sound service to all customers; gives the benefit of the most approved methods of inspection, storage, handling and shipping of records and prints; permits extending practical aid to customers; minimizes conditions which prevent obtaining quality reproduction of product; aids co-operation between sales and theatre men and projectionists; protects and popularizes the company product, and assures the public of better entertainment.

or even by faulty recording. It produces that old situation where the actors' words are out of step with his actions.

Another phenomenon that sometimes occurs is known as "flutter." As its name indicates, it describes a sort of tremolo or flutter in speech or music which quite ruins certain effects. This also is an apparatus defect, due to a variety of causes. Among these may be listed faulty adjustment of the film takeup, vibration of the exciting lamp, faulty speed control, etc. There is one case on record where such a tremolo was produced by two sets of concentrated reflections in the house itself, but this house was something of a freak.

FINALLY, we come to what is probably the most frequent criticism leveled against the sound pictures, namely, distortion of sound quality. To the listener this distortion may evidence itself in a dozen different ways. He may characterize it as dullness or lifelessness, or he may comment on the predominance of low notes—what the radio broadcasters calls "going bass." If the above conditions exist the probability is that the upper frequencies have been wholly or partially destroyed. If, on the other hand, the effect is one of sharpness, shrillness or harshness, it is the low frequencies which must be reinforced.

It should be noted that a similar type of frequency distortion may be produced by "selective" absorption of the materials used in the finish or furnishing of the theatre. Many of these materials are much more efficient sound absorbers for some frequencies than for others. In consequence, these frequencies are damped out more rapidly. In general, distortion from this type of absorption is much less aggravated than that first mentioned.

There are other possible causes of this change in quality, but in general they are too technical to discuss here. Suffice it to say that wherever there is loss of naturalness, either in speech, in music or in sound effects, some sort of distortion in the apparatus is probably to blame. A great deal of progress has been made in the elimination of these various types of distortion, but it is nevertheless desirable to be able to recognize them when they occur.

In regard to the solution of the various difficulties mentioned, certain generalizations may be made. Defects in recording, in synchronization, and in frequency range are rapidly being overcome in the laboratories. Some of these are much larder to overcome than others, and it will, no doubt, be a considerable length of time before anything approaching perfection is attained. The time will come, however, within the near future when further development of the talking picture will require a certain amount of skilled and experienced criticism on the part of the listener. At present many of the defects are quite obvious, but as time goes on and more improvements are effected, there will be a necessity for increasingly accurate and intelligent criticism.

In the correction of difficulties inherent in the acoustics of the house itself a number of simple and efficient remedies are available. A half dozen or more large companies are engaged in the manufacture of materials for acoustical correction, and practically all of these companies maintain engineering departments which will perform theatre analysis. Research has developed the art to a point where theatre analysis can be made very complete. There are no acoustical faults which cannot at least be alleviated and few which cannot be completely cured. In a large number of cases the solution lies simply in the installation of absorbent material in the correct quantity and in the correct areas. Excessive reverberation can be controlled by the use of sound absorbent materials and echoes and interfering reflections of all kinds may be to a large extent climinated in the same manner. In cases where the remedy does not lie in the installation of acoustical material, minor changes in shape, etc., will generally effect a remedy.

It is worthy of note that the development of acoustical materials has progressed within the past few years to a point where they are fully as attractive for their decorative possibilities as for their acoustical value. The acoustical engineer, architect and decorator, working side by side, have produced products that not only imitate the age-old decorative treatments, but actually offer new and practical decorative possibilities heretofore undiscovered.

Correst acoustical materials can be so adapted to every size, shape or form of surface as to greet the eye with unlimited variety in color, tone value and structural effects. If unbroken surface and planes are desired, they can be obtained in any desired finish, stone textured, sanded, fabric applied, and imitation wood veneer, etc. Even a perfect background for the application of murals can be supplied.

Westinghouse Engineer Demonstrates "Television for a Room Full"

T ELEVISION which can be viewed by a room full of spectators rather than by one or two was announced recently by Dr. Vladimir Zworykin, research engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, to members of the Institute of Radio Engineers. The use of a cathode ray tube as a receiver gives this new type of television many advantages over the well known scanning disc method of visual broadcasting.

The inventor is already in position to discuss the practical possibility of flashing the images on a motion picture screen so that large audiences can receive television broadcasts of important events immediately after a film of these is printed. These visual broadcasts would be synchronized with sound.

The cathode ray television receiver has no moving parts, making it more easily usable by the rank and file of the radio audience. It is quiet in operation and synchronization of transmitter and receiver is accomplished easily, even when using a single radio channel.

Another advantage is that, using a fluorescent screen, the persistence of the eye's vision is aided and it is possible to reduce the number of pictures shown each second without noticeable flickering. This in turn allows a greater number of scanning lines and results in the picture being produced in greater detail without increasing the width of the radio channel.

The pictures formed by the cathode ray receiver are four by five inches in size. They can be made larger or brighter by increasing the voltage used in the re-

The transmitter of this new television apparatus consists of a motion picture projector rebuilt so that the film to be broadcast passes downward at a constant speed. This film is scanned horizontally by a tiny beam of light which after passing through the film is focussed as a stationary spot on a photo-electric cell. The scanning motion of the beam is produced by a vibrating mirror which deflects the light from one side of the film to the other.

Dr. Zworykin was forced to develop an entirely new type of cathode ray tube for his receiving apparatus which he calls a "kinescope." In this tube a pencil of electrons is bombarding a screen of fluorescent material. The pencil follows the movement of the scanning light heam in the transmitter while its intensity is regulated by the strength of the impulses received from the transmitter. The movement of the scanning beam, consequently of the cathode ray pencil are so rapid that the eye receives a perfect impression of a continuous miniature motion picture.

A reflecting mirror mounted on the receiver permits the picture to be observed by a number of spectators.

Analyzing the New
for the

THE new type of theatre an expression of the showmanship and technical requirements which are products of the era of sound—is discussed in detail by Harold B. Franklin, general manager and executive head of Fox Western Theatres, in an article he has prepared for the Motion Picture News Theatre Building and Equipment Buyers Guide, to be published December 28.

Sound Era

The many changes brought about through new technical developments affect every department of the theatre, and the adoption of the new ideas to the established principles of sound showmanship are many—a fact realized more forcibly when an authority like Franklin discusses the highlights of the motion picture theatre of today.

The picture business, due to the new dispensation of sound, has broadened to an amazing extent, and this very fact will have an important bearing on the type of theatre that will prove successful in the near future. Every form of theatre entertainment, from burlesque to opera are now within the range of the motion picture medium, and the varied audiences that must be appealed to, bring a new problem for the showman to cope with.

The type of architecture that appears best adapted to the new requirements, the equipment necessities, all must harmonize with the specific requirements of sound. Even lobby display undergoes change as a result of the popular establishment of talking pictures.

The element of "theatre personality" more than ever is of vital importance, directly associated with the success or failure of the enterprise according as it is properly applied to please the showman's particular clientele.

Provisions for the future trend in the matter of screen sizes are another feature which further complicate the problem facing the builder and operator of a motion picture theatre that is equipped to compete successfully in the present and the near future.

All these are matters which receive consideration from the theatre executive today. They are discussed with characteristic clarity and force in the article which Mr. Franklin has written on a subject of which his acquaintance is large and on which he is recognized throughout the industry as a leading authority.

Double Channel Amplifier Systems and Servicing for Sound Installations

Factors for Consideration in Determining Need for Reserve Equipment—Apparatus Checking Devices

angle. Therein lies our interest. Service is imperative and the past problems of the radio industry are the present problems of the talkie field. Of course, several exceptions are present. Acoustics as found in theatre installations were never approached in radio. The average radio receiver installation does not involve as many units in addition to the amplifier proper, as a talkie system. But notwithstanding, the amplifier problems are the same in both. Hum, distortion, poor quality of reproduction, lack of operation and other such difficulties are attributable to identical defects. Perhaps the magnitude of a radio installation does not approach a talkie system, but the ailments of the midget and the giant are the same in character-if not in scope.

· Checking Operation

The paramount consideration in radio service has been measurement of operating potentials, such as filament, grid and plate voltages and plate current. Not only do these observations furnish an indication of the conditions of the sources of potential and the actual operating potentials, but the measurement serves as a circuit continuity test, which when interpreted is the most rapid method of arriving at the existing trouble. Some of the public address systems installed in theatres are already equipped with the required indicating instruments, but thousands of installations must be serviced in a hit or miss way.

A great deal of talkie equipment is very similar to that employed in radio installations. With perhaps two exceptions, although one (R.C.A.) is not wholly so, vacuum tubes employed in talkie systems are the identical tubes employed in radio. The sole exception without qualification is Western Electric, who employ tubes of their own manufacture. Since the other tubes are of the type employed in conventional radio installations, they are employed in identical manner under like conditions.

Testing-Sets Speed Service

Consequently, testing devices developed for radio work are wholly applicable for the testing of talkie amplifiers. One such unit has proved a tremendous boon to the radio service business.

Adaptation of similar apparatus to the uses of the theatre sound installation may offer the means that in the future will facilitate checking and servicing talkie systems.

This unit is known as the set analyser and consists of an arrangement of meters, switches and inserts, whereby amplifiers can be tested under load. The inserts provided with the set analyzer enable connection to the tube socket and measurement of operating voltages and tube currents without interruption of service or disarrangement of the wiring or the apparatus. The meters employed in the testing device obviate the need for equipment upon the amplifier panel, because it is possible to determine grid bias voltage filament voltage, plate voltage and plate current by simply removing a tube at a time from the amplifier, inserting the tube into the correct tester socket and inserting the correct tester insert into the vacant amplifier tube socket. After that it is a mere matter of turning a switch or two to secure the desired operating potential and current values. Such equipment is of vital importance to the service man called upon to work with unmetered amplifiers and is likewise of tremendous value to the operator who is responsible for the perfect performance of an unmetered or not completely metered sys-

THE BULLETIN BOARD

Notes, Reports and Ideas That Keep You Posted on the Trend of the Trade from Month to Month

BUSINESS as usual—mostly better than usual at the de luxe theatres throughout the country—was the only aftermath of that event which stole the headlines in newspapers during the past month—the market smash-up. While suggestions and advice to business on how to steer clear of any serious slump have emanated from all directions, the simple formula prescribed by trade commentators and film executives that showmen can maintain their box-office averages by providing real diverting entertainment and by advertising, still appears to be the soundest advice for application in the picture theatre business.

In an editorial in last week's MOTION Picture News, Wm. A. Johnston, again pointed out the necessity for "working cheerfully and advertising." As a matter of fact, what seemed to be one of the most convincing arguments advanced by those with suggestions for stabilizing business was the recommendation by Earnest Elmo Calkins, of New York, in a letter to Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the board of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, that advertising men be included in the business stabilizing council to be formed at President Hoover's request, because, the writer states "We are dealing with that strange force, mob psychology. Already a tremendous whispering campaign is under way. People are telling each other stories of the aftermuch of the slump-losses, suicides, unemployment, cancellations-and these stories are grossly exaggerated, like the atrocities of the late war. It is peculiarly and emphatically an advertising situation."

An Advertising Situation

As that of others whose prosperity is necessary to continued profit at the theatres, the showmen now can apply the force of advertising with great effect. As is being pointed out by many theatre executives, it will not do to wait for business to lag before instituting a strong advertising program for the theatre. Several important theatres now are putting on extra exploitation pressure, despite the fact that there is no sign of a slowing down at their box offices.

Diversion, comfort, healthful surroundings, are being stressed in these campaigns, with the institutional angle being worked in connection with the quality of the house service and the scientifically ventilated and heated auditoriums. The latter feature more than ever is making a marked impression on the public, which has become "atmosphere" conscious through theatre advertising, the advertising of restaurants, department stores, and now through business, because so many industrial plants are installing ventilation and air conditioning systems as a means of increasing efficiency in production.

Theatre Building Boom

by this department on the prospects for new building operations during 1930 replied that from actual calls for plans by big circuits and independent operators, there appears to be under way a program of heavy theatre construction for next year. This information was sought prior to the White House conferences of business and industrial leaders to support President Hoover's program for speeding construction work, a program which is certain to give impetus to theatre building for which there is a need, as well as other projects warranted by conditions.

A Los Angeles dispatch by Universal Service, which appeared in last Sunday's newspapers, quoted Harold B. Franklin, general manager and executive head of the Fox Western Theatres, as announcing an elaborate construction program involving plans for 24 theatres, the announcement being made in response to "President Hoover's appeal for support of the program for national industrial stabilization." The building program announced by Mr. Franklin, calls for the expenditure of $9,450,000 on theatres to be built in San Jose, Sacramento, Oakland, Santa Barbara, Bakersfield, Berkeley, Stockton, and other California cities.

Much of the new building to be done next year, according to architects who are preparing plans under commission of several circuit operators, will replace older houses obsoleted because of changed conditions of location, age of building, etc., while a great number will carry certain operators into territories where they are not now represented, and which therefore, will bring new competition into many cities and towns.

Provision for Big Screens

RCHITECTS state that all com-A missions for plans from the larger operators call for design to allow for the enlarged screen. The big screens, which are now regarded a certain development of the near future will have a decided effect on auditorium design. Proscenium openings will be much wider, of course, and balconies will be much higher, to allow for sight lines from the rear portions of the auditorium. This is a reversal of practices which were in vogue a few years ago, when the so-called "de luxe" style of auditorium was in demand. The idea was to achieve a feeling of greater intimacy by including a loge under the main balcony, thus breaking the distance from floor to balcony top.

The Capitol's Birthday

D URING the month past the tenth anniversary of the Capitol in New York was celebrated with special exercises in the theatre itself and by Major Bowes and his Capitol Family in one of their regular Sınday evening radio broadcasts. When it was built, this picture theatre, with its 5,000 seats, was regarded by many as a most daring, if not a little foolbardy, adventure in showmanship. "Too large for a picture theatre on Broadway or anywhere else" was the verdict of many. Since which time there are houses of equal capacity in many cities and some of greater capacity.

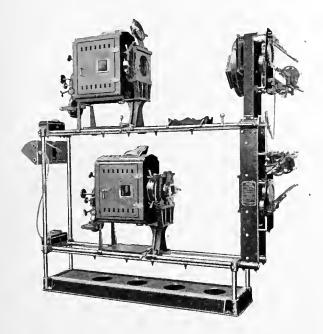

As well as being a pioneer in the 5,000-seat class, the Capitol is one of the youngest old theatres to be found in the country. Through the ten years of its operation, the Capitol has been kept strictly up to date. New equipment, facilities for presenting the various types of shows which have come into vogue from year to year, and a constant vigilance to maintain standards of service have enabled the Capitol to hold its place in the forefront of Broadway's great motion picture institutions.

Under Roxy's tenure of office as its director, the Capitol moved ahead with the times—in highly important matters really ahead of the times—and the same

THE VACUUM TUBE

THE successful application of the vacuum tube is based upon the phenomenon that when a voltage is applied to the grid it influences the value of current in the plate circuit. This can be comprehended when one realizes that a change in the charge applied to the grid is the same as an amplified change in the value of voltage applied to the plate. Thus the vacuum tube possesses the property of converting input voltage into output current. Mention is made in item 700.11 that a tube possesses an amplifying power. Since this is available with a steady voltage applied to the grid it is available with an alternating voltage applied across the grid and filament. Under such conditions, the variation in plate current in the circuit will be in accordance with the variation in applied A. C. across the grid and filament circuits, hence alternating current is produced in the plate circuit.

As stated in the foregoing paragraph the three or four element vacuum tube is possessed of a property known as the current output per volt input, which means a certain plate current fluctuation in the plate circuit for each voltage fluctuation in the grid circuit. If the grid voltage is changed 10 volts and the plate current changes .001 ampere or 1 mil for each volt change on the grid, the total plate current change is .001 a 10 or .01 ampere or 10 mils.

At this time we must consider that factor which governs the action of the grid voltage upon the plate current, in other words the grid circuit upon the plate circuit. One controlling factor is the structure of the tube, that is the relative position of the elements. The flow of electrons from the filament to the plate, entails work on the part of the electrons. The greater the separation between the filament and the plate, the greater must be the distance of travel and the greater the work done by the electrons in overcoming the affinity of the filament and the effects of collision and repulsion during passage. This work is manifest as heat and is the equivalent of a resistance in the plate-filament circuit, known as the plate resistance. This resistance is inherent within the tube and is a variable factor depending upon the plate voltage, grid voltage and filament temperature and is a non linear quantity varying inversely with the plate voltage (although not in exact proportion) increases with negative bias and increases as the filament temperature or electronic emission is decreased. It is also a function of structure increasing with the amplification factor.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

THE value of mutual conductance expressed in Mho or Micromho is the best method of comparing tubes intended for the same use in an amplifier. This is so because the value of Gm (mutual conductance) involves all of the elements of a vacuum tube and all of the controlling constants.

We mentioned that the value of mu involved the structure of the tube, hence the relative position of the elements of a vacuum tube. The plate resistance on the other hand also involves the structure of the tube, and in addition the various voltages, such as filament, grid and plate and at the same time, the condition of the filament, that is, electronic emission. Thus if the structure is satisfactory and the voltages are normal, but the condition of the filament is poor comparison on a mutual conductance basis will bring to light the defective condition.

As is evident in the formula (item 700.12) for Gm, the higher and amplification constant with a fixed value of plate resistance, the greater the current ontput per volt input, which means the better that the as an amplifier. Also the lower the value of plate resistance for a fixed value of amplification constant the hetter the tube as an amplifier. However, it is necessary to remember that comparison according to mutual conductance is applicable only to tube designed for the same purpose that is for the same point of utility in an amplifier. If this law is not followed, the result will be misleading.

The reason for the advantageous utility of this hasis of comparison is that the tube is tested or compared on an operating basis. Current ontput per volt input is the equivalent of actual performance under the conditions indicated by the amplification constant and the plate resistance.

It is possible to check a tube by noting the individual values of mu and rp, but each of these alone is not an indication of the degree of efficiency of a vacuum tube. This is particularly true of the amplification constant (mu) because this value remains practically constant under all operating conditions, that is with normal or insufficient electronic emission and over a very large range of plate voltages, both of which factors influence plate resistance.

Unfortunately the average talking picture installation does not make provision for a mutual conductance test, but it is possible by simply varying the grid bias by ahout 5 to 8 volts and noting the difference in plate current without disturbing any connections in the amplifier.

RETARD AND CHOKE COILS

800.81

ONE of the important requisites of amplifier design and maintenance is to keep the signal current in their correct circuits or path. Intermingling of currents or passage of signal current through elements which should be beyond their path results in poor operation of the system, distortion, howling and other peculiar forms of disturbances and aunoyance.

Such limitation of current paths is secured by means of choke coils, frequently referred to as retard coils. Both designations are descriptive of their function. They either choke back the signal currents so that they cannot flow through the undesired paths or they retard the flow of these signal currents in undesired circuits.

This property of the coil, which is a winding consisting of a large number of turns on either an iron or an air core, is due to the action of alternating current flow through a winding. The flow of current through a coil creates a field around the turns. The greater the number of turns, the stronger this field, because the field around one turn augments the field around the adjacent turn. When alternating current is caused to flow through a coil or wire, the current increases and decreases, periodically reversing itself, so that the field surrounding the turns increases and decreases. However, the property of this flux variation (variation in intensity of the field) is to retard the change of current in the coil. In other words, the flux variation exerts a limiting force upon the magnitude of current flowing through the coil. The more rapid the flux variation or the frequency of the current which produces the flux, the greater this hindrance effect. This reaction on the part of the coil is known as its reactance, usually designated as X and because it is allied with a coil, the subscript L accompanies the X as in XL designating "inductive reactance." The formula for inductive reactance is $X_L = 6.28 \text{ x F x L}$ where F is the frequency of the current and L is the inductance in henrys. The constant 6.28 is equal to 2 pi. X_L is expressed in ohms.

According to the formula, the reactance of the coil, that is, its hindering effect due to the flux variations increases as the frequency is increased and as the inductance is increased.

CONDENSERS AND CAPACITY

THE electrical condenser finds frequent application. Essentially it is a device which stores electricity. In structure it consists of two or more plates, square, rectangular or semi-circular in shape and insulated from each other. When a battery is connected across, say a two plate condenser, a difference of potential, due to the hattery, exists across the two plates. However, this potential difference does not last for a long period. The application of the hattery causes a redistribution of the electrons in the circuit, so that after a momentary lapse, during which time a current (charging current) flows through the condenser, the two plates are at the same potential as the hattery and current flow ceases. If the battery is now removed, the condenser plates remain charged but if a wire is connected between the two plates, a charging current will flow and the potential difference between the plates will again become normal.

The important consideration in this discussion is the momentary current flow when the voltage is applied. When the charge upon the condenser is the same as that of the hattery, current flow ceases. Thus in a D. C. circuit a condenser functions as an insulator after that momentary period of charging current. We find a quantity of electricity during that period required to raise the potential difference of the plates to a certain level. A measure of the quantity of electricity which will flow to raise the potential difference of the plates to a certain value is known as its capacity. In other words, the term capacity denotes the characteristic of storing electricity. The unit of capacity is the farad, but since it is too large for all practical purposes, the microfarad and the micromorofarad are employed.

If we now arrange that the potential applied remain constant for hut an instant, we have a continuous charging current flowing in and out of the condenser. It is logical that the magnitude of charging current will increase if the voltage is increased. If the capacity is increased the charge is increased. The continual charging and discharging of the condenser constitutes the current. Hence the greater the frequency of charge and discharge, the greater the current.

has been true of the Capitol's career since Major Bowes took over the active direction of its affairs.

A few year back, when stage presentations of the elaborate type established themselves as the popular form of added attraction of the motion picture performance, the Capitol was equipped with a stage that was far ahead of those in many of the most elaborate theatres built during that very year. The enterprise involved a luge expenditure, but the clevating stages, with an elevating orchestra pit, in three sections, rigging and more elaborate lighting system, all proved their worth and vindicated the judgment of the officials responsible for the undertaking when the public responded in great crowds to the new style of entertainment the Capitol had to offer them.

Picture Theatre Ushers

POR some time the "motion picture usher" was the object of considerable humor, jest, and often derision. They were too polite for words, according to many wags, and many a yard was written telling how the young men with the West Point manner of standing at attention were prepared for their very polite duties in the lobbies, the fovers and the aisles of the theatres. Nowadays, the observer finds a far different reaction on the part of those who write pieces for the newspapers, and we find also that 1,500 members of Equity, in a resolution which said "no" to the manager's proposals for a seven-day week in the legitimate theatre, held up New York's motion picture theatres as models of courtesy and service for emulation by the managers, whom the actors criticized severely for their methods of doing business. The discourtesy toward the public by box office attendants and house personnel, the Equity members declared, were importantly associated with the poor business conditions in the legitimate theatre of which the managers complained and on which they based their appeal for Sunday performances because of economic necessity.

The dramatic critic for the New York Sun, Mr. Richard Lockbridge, had occasion to call theatre ushers to task in his column recently. He paid a left-handed compliment to the "motion-picture theatre ushers" but one suspects that had it not been for the same picture theatre ushers the commentator would never have felt he had any reason to expect other than the kind of treatment of which he complains in the following, which we quote:

"Of course, the motion-picture theatre ushers are funny, with those pretty bows and snappy salutes. And, of course, the customer is left feeling rather as though it would have been in all respects simpler and less trying to have slipped in at the

Publix Theatres Sound Train

Sound Used for Show Advertising

This Sound Train is the most complete advertising automobile ever built. It has a bell, a whistle, and smoke can be made to come out of the smoke stack simply by manipulating a control on the instrument board, which floods the carburetor so as to make this exhaust smoke issue in large black clouds.

In the passenger compartment, there is a record turntable using an electric pickup and an amplifier. In addition to this there is a microphone.

On the observation platform in the rear there is a Wright DeCoster Reproducer enclosed in a cabinet which is set in the middle of the rear seat on the observation platform so that it separates the seat, making room for one person on each side. On top of the cabinet housing the reproducer is another small speaker.

The man driving the truck pulls up to the curb and the man inside will start playing a record reproducing the theme song of one of the movies showing in the city where the truck is advertising. During the playing of this record, the man on the inside will talk through the microphone and tell what the theme song represents, etc.

back door and merely had a little chat with the cook. But still and all—There was a very nice opening the other evening at a theatre which would never think of housing motion pictures. Those who attended were, presumably, very nice people, unaccustomed to the manners of subway guards. And the ushers were spruce enough young men. They would make lovely traffic cops. They seized your ticket stubs as you reached the head of the aisle. They looked you over with unconcealed contempt. They plunged down the aisle and stopped at your row. They sneered you into your seat, making it quite clear that if you had any sense at all you would have found it for yourself without troubling them. . . ."

The Fans Tell Roxy

OF course, the showman must listen to criticism, but before he allows his sensitive feelings to make him retreat from a stand which he took in the belief that he was right, he must check the criticism levelled at him and find out, if possible, how right it is and how wrong he is himself.

A recent instance in connection with Roxy's Sunday afternoon radio broadcasts offers a case in point. It seems that sometime ago Roxy was informed by several critics that his Sunday air programs were much too highbrow for average consumption, that the symphony concerts went way over the heads of the ordinary mortal who sits before a loud speaker to enjoy some free entertainment in his home. So, Roxy decided to find out how right the critics were. He put the question squarely up to those very radio fans in a little conversation through the microphone. The response was in the form of thousands of letters from hamlets, villages, farming communities, cities, all over the country with the vast majority protesting against any change in the programs. It was conclusive evidence that the showman was right, and Roxy is going right on with his excellent programs of symphony music.

$4,000 Window Display

THE value that merchants put on window display is rather strikingly illustrated by the report that Saks' 5th Avenue store paid Archipenko, modern Russian sculptor, $4,000 for designing displays for each of the six windows of that smart New York shop. And it may serve as a bit of food for thought by the showmen who offer merchants a few stock posters and an argument and then wonder why they are not successful in obtaining "co-operation" from the local business men.

DeForest Defines "Bootleg" as Applied to Equipment

Irresponsibly Manufactured and Sold in Local Markets Only

Dr. Lee De Forest defined the muchused term "bootleg" machine as applied to sound equipment, during the course of his speech at the Ohio Exhibitors' Convention in Columbus, in the following reference which we quote from his prepared address:

"The word 'bootleg' as applied to machines assembled by irresponsible manufacturers, is very apt. It is interesting to note that not one of the machines has national distribution, but each has its own particular district like the wellknown bootlegger of liquid fire, and undoubtedly gang warfare known to the original bootlegger will ultimately enter the field of talking equipment to the detriment of those exhibitors who have installed this type of equipment.

Equipment Decides Success

"The history of every business has shown that failures, in almost every instance, have been due to the stagnation or inability to keep abreast of the march of progress. This has been especially demonstrated in the realm of the theatre. Exhibitors are now starting on an even footing in the new art of talking pictures, and I venture to say that I can look in the booth of a theatre and determine whether or not that theatre is going to weather the storm of competition."

Chicago Cinema Now Sells Direct to the Consumer

After many years of distribution through regular channels, announcement is made by the Chicago Cinema Equipment Co., 1750 N. Springfield Avenue. that henceforth its line of booth and projection sound equipment may be purchased direct.

According to the announcement the company has perfected plans which will assure prompt service to all sections of the country, as a result of increased facilities afforded by the new factory recently built.

Showmanship at the Organ Consoles of Two Leading Theatres in Northwest

Organ Music Continues Appeal to Numbers of Patrons—Ron and Don in Seattle, Shelley in Portland, Have Large Followings

PROOF that the motion picture theatre organ is far from an instrument of the past regime is being offered in Seattle, Wash., every week at the Publix Seattle Theatre, largest playhouse in the Pacific Northwest territory, where Manager Robert Blair makes a big feature of his organ concerts and his specialties in that line. Presided over by "Ron and Don," (Ron Baggott and Don Moore), the giant Seattle Wurlitzer is used each week as an actual business-builder for the house.

Since the opening of the Seattle a year and a half ago, Ron and Don have been featured at the organ console, either together or as individual performers. Part of the time one of the pair works on a tiny keyboard at the opposite side of the pit, which has been hooked up to the main controls and stops of the big instrument. Weekly specialties, including the use of slides and songs synchronized through the house's "talkie" apparatus, are presented, and the two organists are popular favorites with Seattle audiences.

The biggest feature of the house's organ, however, is its use in the "Ron and Don Organ Club" offered every Saturday morning for the kids of Seattle under 14 years of age. The "Club" is in reality a get-together for both boys and girls when they indulge in community singing, song contests, etc. It is held every Saturday morning from 10:30 to 11:30 and admission is 10c, entitling the club "members" to remain for the complete show beginning at 11:30. With each 10c admission, the child receives a membership card. When the card is punched five times, showing attendance at five Saturday meetings, the child is entitled to admission the following week without charge.

In addition to the community singing, during which various sections of the child audience compete against each other, any of the kids who so desire may compete for prizes as soloists, singing songs that are selected by Ron and Don and played on the pipe organ with accompaniment of slides. Prizes include boxes of candy (donated by local firms), books, etc. A recent award was the book, "The Virginian," which was given away several weeks prior to the showing of that film at the theatre, and which acted as a great advance ad among all the children.

After just a month of sponsorship, the

Three drawing cards at the Seattle theatre, Seattle — Ron and Don and the pipe organ

last Saturday meeting attracted an audience of 600 children, and also 73 adults who paid the regular 50c admission. This "Organ Club" is an idea that can be put across by any house at practically no expense, according to Manager Blair, who is exceptionally enthusiastic about the use of the theatre organ as a real box-office asset.

NOT a supplementary part of a sound film program, but a human, live and at all times enjoyable feature, is the inimitable organ solos of Glen Shelley, master organist at Tebbetts' Oriental Theatre, at Portland, Oregon.

Upon the completion of this atmospheric theatre some two years ago the Rudolph Wurlitzer company placed one of their finest units in this setting of Oriental splendor, equipped with three manuals, four and ten sets of pipes, a most beautiful set of London Cathedral chimes, forty notes of a Marimba, a full set of xylophone notes, a full set of glockenspeil, and the majestic staccato sounded by the chrysoglott. It was placed on an ascending platform and on account of the great height of the house is one of the highest installations on the Coast.

Glen Shelley, featured organist at Tebbetts Oriental, Portland, Ore.

Shelley first became associated with Mr. Walter Tebbetts, one of the Pacific Coast's most successful independent exhibitors, some ten years previously when he operated The Alhambra and a small chain of houses. On the completion of the East Side house, Mr. Tebbetts again secured Mr. Shelley's services as organist, where he has had an opportunity of displaying his musical accomplishments.

In announcing this house policy, Mr. Tebbetts promised his patrons the finest or organ music, and now, after 42 years of successful operation and the continued co-operation of Mr. Shelley, he has more than made good that promise, and this department of the theatre as much as any other has contributed to the building of a permanent clientele that has few equals.

The Oriental management continues frequently to run a silent film, such as "Mawas," and Mr. Shelley then has an opportunity of drawing on his unique library for just such occasions.

Mr. Shelley, is credited with many innovations in organ interpretation, adapting them to the seasons, the holidays, and special events, the music ranging from popular to grand opera selections. A recent offering was of an instructive nature: "Voice of the Organ." In this concert number he illustrated the many stops on the giant organ as used in film interpretation.

He opened with a selection marking a church scene, starting off with the processional, "Onward Christian Soldiers," then the cathedral chimes, and closing with a well-known recessional. A splendid interpretation of the steam calliope follows, reminding one of the big circus street parade, accompanied by the hubbub of the side show and the hum of voices in the "big tent." The German band, with its squeaky cornet, discordant trombone and the time-worn "Augustine": a symphony orchestra, and the modern jazz band with its banjos, saxophones and necessary discord; shrieks, howls and spooky sounds, augmented by witches and arched-back cats flashed on the screen, all of which was brought out

Stage Opening for Wide Screen Feature of New Fox Theatre in Atlanta

MONG the first examples of thea-A tres designed with a view to the adoption of wide screens is the new Fox Theatre, in Atlanta, which is scheduled to open on Christmas Day. The stage will be 80 feet wide—4 feet wider than the stage of the Roxy Theatre in New York, which has a seating capacity of 6,200, while the Atlanta house will have seating accommodations for about 4,500 in the auditorium.

The theatre is located in the new $3,-000,000 Yaarab Shrine Temple. It is Moorish in design and decorations, which will cost about $56,000, carry out the style in every detail. An atmospheric effect is given by the domed ceiling, with lighting and cloud effects to simulate the sky.

The stage will have 3 elevators-two upon which entire ensembles of stage artists may be raised to the stage level and another for the Movietone towers. The asbestos curtain is one of the largest in use in America, being 80 feet wide and constructed at a cost of $10,000.

The back drop, or cyclorama, measures 84 by 44 feet, and cost approximately $7,500. Peter Clark, famous stage builder, has equipped the New Fox with one of the most complete counterweight systems developed for the modern theatre.

The orchestra pit in the new Fox, said to be the largest, is 66 by 19.2 feet, and is equipped with a special elevator. To assist the orchestra a large organ has been installed.

A feature of the new theatre will be the elevator service. Two large passenger elevators have been installed, at a cost of $35,000, to carry patrons from the street level to the mezzanine floor. While behind the stage elevators have been installed to transport entertainers to and from their dressing rooms.

The theatre is equipped with 16 dressing rooms containing every convenience for actors.

Western Electric sound equipment is used throughout the theatre, and, in addition to this, a public address system will be installed, picking up the entertainment through the five microphones concealed in the footlight trough and enabling even a whisper on the stage to be carried to the audience.

The new Fox will be managed by R. T. Rocky" Newton and, in addition to showing motion pictures, will present the Fanchon and Marco "Ideas" stage shows.

jection room, even though past experience clearly indicates to the projectionist that laboratory-developed equipment brings with it trouble, added worry and more work.

The projectionist is more of an idealist than a working man. He looks upon motion picture projection as a "specialized art" and is ever striving to improve the quality of screen entertainment even though it entails a personal sacrifice.

He approaches his task, not from the standpoint of a worker who is to receive a monetary consideration in the form of wages for a given number of hours of service, but rather from the standpoint of an artist, mechanically etching upon the silver screen a series of beautiful photographic images that are unfolding to his movie audience a visual impression of a beautiful story told with the aid of his mechanical pen. And at the same time he deftly manipulates the projection sound equipment in a manner so as to give proper modulation to the spoken voice in synchronism with the photographic images, so that the illusion of actually giving life and voice to his story book characters may be complete.

An able projectionist must be a good mechanic, but it does not naturally follow that a good mechanic would be an able projectionist. My impression of the matter is that real showmanship is one of the most essential qualities for the real projectionist. He must be show-minded in all that the term implies, with a background of theatrical experience which will imbue him with that inherent theatrical spirit—"The Show Must Go On," no matter what may happen.

The essentials for good projection are not to be learned out of books alone. True, the theoretic approach will be of value to the novice and will be highly beneficial to the experienced projectionist; no man ever lived who knew as much as he ought to know. When any man reaches a point where he imagines he has all the knowledge he should have, it is a certain indication of his need of it.

upon the three manuals and the pedals manipulated by Glenn's nimble fingers and trained feet. Another concert selection which pleased his patrons was "Boquet of Flowers," bringing in the many flower songs.

Some newspaper reviewers in viewing film offerings at this house have at times found errors in screen offerings, and their weekly criticisms would have been entirely derogatory, but for Shelley's excellent arrangements of seasonable music, which invariably leaves a most pleasant and lasting impression,—in other words, they seem to remember the melodies long after they have forgotten the screen performers.

Not only has Mr. Shelley demonstrated that he is an outstanding master of the organ, ever keeping pace with the modern theatre, but withal Glenn possesses numerous human and likeable qualities; has a host of friends both in and out of the musical profession, and therefore has been able to inject to a remarkable degree the really human element to superior screen and organ programmes at Tebbetts' Oriental Theatre, known also as the "Temple of Mirth."

Modernist Design and Wide Screens Vogue in 1930

Facilities for wide screen projection included in the original plans for proseenium openings and projection rooms, and modernistic style of architecture will be features of the more pretentious of the initial crop of theatres to be opened early in the new year.

One of the first of these houses to be opened will be the new theatre now nearing completion on Broadway at 51st St., New York, for Warner Bros. The theatre was designed by Thomas W. Lamb.

An enlarged screen will be placed in the theatre as part of its original and permanent equipment. The architectural style features French designs, with the entrance treated in the modern school and executed with mirrored marble walls enriched with bronze. A marble floor and plastic ceiling decorations will feature modern French designs.

The grand foyer and the auditorium are in the French baroque style, with a mural depicting "the Symphony of the Motion Picture" one of the decorative features of the foyer. The house will have a seating capacity of about 1,600, and is scheduled to open early in 1930.

Oro-Tone Export Dept. to Speed Deliveries Abroad

The Oro-Tone Co., of Chicago, makers of sound equipment, has created a new export department to handle affairs pertaining to the merchandising of the company's products in the foreign field.

Rapidly increasing demand for the Oro-Tone equipment, both in the domestic and foreign markets, necessitated the establishment of the export branch to facilitate delivery of items in the line, which includes tone arms, pick-up arms, reproducers, as well as Oro-Tone turntables and synchronized talking picture systems.

PROGRESSIVELY ENGINEERED!

The

STAGE SWITCHROARD

In constructing a stage switchboard, the all important thing is engineering. Meticulous care in the selection of materials, skill in workmanship and rigid inspection, all have their place, but unless co-related by sound, progressive engineering, they lose their value.

The creative thinking that makes the Wurdack Stage Switchboard such a satisfactory piece of equipment is the product of an engineering staff whose minds are free from the shackles of obsolete traditions and whose talents are given free reign to re-design and re-constructevery detail where research, experiment and practical use show the possibility of improvement.

That the product of such a group of men, keenly sensitive to the switchboard requirements of the modern theatre, school or auditorium, is daily winning an increasing success, is only to be expected. The switchboard illustrated above, recently built for the Colfax Theatre in South Bend, Ind., is indicative of the advanced design, neat workmanship and thoroughbred quality construction of the Wurdack Stage Switchboard.

Hot For Paris

(Fox-All Dialogue) Rough, But Entertaining

Rough, But Entertaining (Reviewed by Red Kann)

OOKS like male divertissement. The formula used in "The Cock-Eyed World"

Was a bare by Raoul Walsh, "Hot was followed here by Raoul Walsh. for Paris" is episodic to the last. Of story, there is little dealing as it does with a lottery prize won by Victor McLaglen and the efforts to keep him quiet long enough to tell him it is money that is to be fastened on him, not a jail sentence as he believes.

McLaglen plays a sailor—rough, he-mannish and fond of both liquor and women. Fift Dorsay supplies the heat—and succeeds—and El Brendel, the comedy. The episodes are merely strung together with wisecracks, all of them plenty rough and double-barreled in meaning until the final scene. McLaglen sings-not so well-as do Dorsay and Brendel.

It's rough, no doubt about that, and yet it is funny in exactly the same manner as "The Cock-Eyed World." Questionable stuff for women and out of the running for children.

Caucasian Love

(Amkino-Silent For Art Houses Only

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader) A NOTHER of the type of film that will get raves or near-raves from the allegedly highbrow crities, but which won't mean a nickle at the box-office. It is a picture that only an art theatre can play and hope to get by with. The picture was shot on the borderland between Russia and Turkey, and is enacted by an all native cast. That is quite apparent from the manner in which the roles are portrayed.

The story is laid in one of the border settlements and is based on the desire of the military governors to force the populace to vacate their homes and migrate into Turkey. They trick the inhabitants, who cannot read, into placing their marks on a petition which asks permission to move to Turkey, although those signing it believe that it is in reality a petition to permit them to retain their homes. Finally they are shown in an endless chain marching over the mountains to settle in a foreign land. There is praiseworthy photography, but other than that there is naught about the film to recommend to regular picture theatres,

For the "arty" houses any good comedy will help this one along.

Cameo Kirby

(Fox—All Dialogue)
Of Fine Program Calibre (Reviewed by Walter R. Greene)

ALTHOUGH finely done, this picture demonstrates that it is not practicable to attempt a musical background for a straight dramatic story. Several song numbers-all excellent-are spotted during the unfolding of the story. In themselves, they are fine, but each number slows up the dramatic tempo in a manner that detracts audience interest from the plot. Regardless, "Cameo Kirby" rates program calibre.

J. Harold Murray sings several songs, and puts over a highly satisfactory performance as the romantic lead. Tab Murray right here as having a splendid voice with a personality that should carry him far in filmusicals.

Stepin Fetchit wanders in and out of the story, climaxing with a comedy song that gets plenty of laughs. The balance of the cast is satisfactory. The story is a romantic musical drama with a Mississippi background, with the river gambler falling in love with the daughter of the plantation owner.

Use slapstick or broad comedies.

Figaro

(Franco-American-Silent) Pretty Costume Drama

(Reviewed by Freddie Schoder)
(Reviewed by Freddie Schoder)
(PIGARO" is a French made production apparently shot in Spain. It is based on the play by Beaumarchis, is beautifully photographed and nicely played, but withal a costume picture and for the most part of the type that does not click with the average run of picture house audiences.

Figaro, the barber in a Spanish city, assists one of the nobility to woo and wed a maid who is about to be joined with an elderly doctor. At the opening of the picture he manages to trick the doctor, who wished to marry the girl for her wealth, and later weds the maid of the bride. But not until he has discovered that the nobleman, who is something of a rake, has insisted that the maid come to him in the temple of love on his estate before he will give his consent to her marriage. How-ever, he in turn is tricked, for his wife keeps the rendezvous. She later has an "affair" with her attending page, who is sent off to the wars and killed. There is an issue to this affair, and when the husband becomes aware of it storms madly until reminded that he too has much for which he might be reproached.

A strong comedy bill will be necessary with the feature.

Untamed

(M-G-M-All Dialogue) Fair Program Feature

(Reviewed by Freddie Schoder)

THIS is heralded as Joan Crawford's first talking film. It is far from having the box-office draw of "Dancing Daughters," but it is possible that it will pull a certain amount of business on the strength of the former successes this star has had. Miss Crawford's performance does not get underway until late in the picture, and only once does she really strike a real note as an actress. That is in a scene with the hero, just prior to the time she shoots The balance of the cast is good, but it is him. The balance of the cast is good, but it is really Ernest Torrence who carries the picture.

The story is laid in the tropical jungle of Central America and in New York, which gives the star a chance for a diversified characterization. First as the wild untamed daughter of an oil prospector and then as the ward of her father's pals.

It is on her way to New York that she meets a young man on the boat and falls in love with him. A series of theatrical events finally brings them together.

There is considerable music and jazz in this, so attendant comedy numbers would be best.

(IV orners-All-Dialogue) Almost A Special

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

J UDGING from the production values in this nicture the Warners picture the Warners must have started out to make a special of it. Somehow or other it fell by the wayside and the net result is a program production, which while not extra strong on story or acting, looms as somewhat above the average. Dolores Costello is the star and supporting her are James Kirkwood and Grant Withers. Miss Costello gives a corking performance and Kirkwood is adequate. The story is laid in Russia. Miss Costello is the daughter of a fish peddler and, although in love with a young student, marries a nobleman. He is later sentenced to Siberia. On the way, he runs across the former sweetheart of his wife. They change identities because the younger man has but two years to serve and the husband twenty. Sea Fury

(Tom White-Dialogue) Terrible

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

SEA FURY" is a silent production to which dialogue was added after the picture had been made. The result is a terrible confusion of talk and action, little of which matches. The picture was independently made and directed by George Melford. The chances are that had it been left without dialogue it would have been far more acceptable than in its present shape. There is little or no chance of getting by with this picture except in the cheapest of houses where double feature bills are the routine.

The cast contains a few names that are fairly well known, including Frank Campeau and George Rigas. But in the main their work is made ridiculous through the added dialogue.

The story takes place aboard an old threemaster presumably running contraband from Mexico to the States. The skipper and first mate refused to pick-up a girl and boy from a shipwreck, the crew led by the second mate mutinies and saves the girl. Later the crew kills the captain and first mate because of their cruelty, and the second mate is saved only tonavigate the ship. In the end the girl, the second mate and the faithful negro cook are rescued from their hulk after a fearful sea storm.

Pandora's Box

(Moviegraphs-Silent) Sexy Stuff Cut By Censors (Reviewed by Freddie Schoder)

THE management at the 55th Street Play-house makes an apology in its program for this picture. It states that the New York Censors prevented them from showing the picture in its original form and that they were forced to "add a rather saccharine ending for which we crave pardon." At that the picture is above the average of the usual foreign-made production shown in this type of theatre. It has a fast tempo which in itself is unusual. Undoubtedly Louis Brooks, who is starred, is largely responsible for this.

The heroine is a girl who drinks too freely from the cup of life. All who come in contact with her seemingly come to a bad ending. First she is the mistress of an editor, whom she shoots and kills. She is tried for this but manages to escape jail, runs off with the son of the man she killed, with a trio of former admirers trailing along. One of them is a woman who uses masculine attire so your conclusions are your own. The present ending has the girl and boy regenerated or about to be so.

Fast moving comedy with lots of laughs needed with this,

Tanned Legs

(Rodio—All-Dialogue) Suitable, Light Fare

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader) NOOD light entertainment. A story is about on the par with the usual so far as musical comedies are concerned, with a couple of flash moments of chorus dancing, some fast moving comedy, a couple of songs, and a dramatic punch at the finish. That sums up "Tanned Legs." Box-office possibilities are about average. The story is that of a flapper-crazed daddy whose wife is a flirty mama. They have a couple of daughters, one of whom becomes involved with gentlemanly "con-man," whose accomplice is the dashing widow about to fleece the girl's father by selling him worthless stocks. It is the younger daughter who permits herself to become compromised in an effort to save the balance of her family from being tricked. She enters the con-man's suite at a summer resort hotel to try to secure some letters which her sister foolishly wrote him. She is seen leaving the room and almost loses her sweetie, but everything works out happily.

There is enough music and comedy in this to make it logical to show a travel film or a scenic novelty with it.

Produced and distributed by RKO. Story by George Hull. Directed by Marsball Neilan. Lyrics by Sidney Clare, music by Oscar Levant. Photographed by Leo Sovar, Length, 6,377 feet, Running time 1 br. 9 mins. Release date, Nov. 10, 1929.

The New Babylon

(Amkino-Silent)

Propaganda Not Entertainment (Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

SEEMS like those Rooshans have run out of material within their own territorial confines with which to excite the world against the capitalistic classes, so they have started to pick themes from the history of the rest of the world. "The New Babylon" is that sort of a world. "The New Babylon" is that sort of a picture. It is laid in Paris during the Franco-Prussian War of 1870-71, However, the chances are that it is a picture that the highbrow poseurs will rave over much after the manner that they raved over "Potemkin."

Paris is shown during the flush of patriotic enthusiasm in the first days of the war with Prussia when it looked as though victory might rest with the French. Then in defeat, when the Government moves from Paris and the workers undertake to defend the city, only to have an inglorious peace sued for over their heads, after which the wealthy class utilizes the provincial troops to recapture the city from the communistic workers who have seized it.

The average audience will demand something outstanding in shorts with this.

Many Fine Shorts In New Product

"Santa's Toy Shop"

(Pathe Novelty—I Reel)

Fine Xmas Novelty

PATHE has an unusual novelty, a musical marionette subject, to offer for the holi-day season. It is unusual in the respect that all the characters, with the exception of Santa, played by Robert Fran, are puppets dexterously manipulated by Sue Hastings, of the Hastings Marienettes. It was produced in the Pathe studio by Terry Ramsaye and directed by Tom Ilogan. The score is tunefully synchronized, there is occasional dialogue and a well-rendered duet of "Love Is A Dreamer." Action is in a toy shop where the marionettes, as toy doll characters, dance and otherwise display their talent.

Will add the holiday flavor to ony sound bill.

"The Madhouse"

(Educational—2 Reels)
Has Plenty Of Laughs

THERE are a lot of laughs packed away in this dialogue two reeler from Jack White, featuring Eddie Lambert and Monte Collins, with Addie McPhail and Lucille Hutton as other members of the cast aiding action and dia-It's more anti-noise propaganda, this time in an apartment house, properly described as "The Madhouse." It is a house where bedlam reigns supreme most of the time. Monte, Eddie and their wives agree to trade apartments. Both have a lot wrong with them, and each thinks that they are unloading something. Most of the comedy action centers around the transfer of furniture from one home to the other. The result of this is that the short-comings are discovered and both families demand the return of their apartments.

Safe booking. Fits easily into regulation program.

"Pathe Audio Review No. 33"

(Pothe-I Recl) Will Fit Most Any Bill

T HIS number begins with the Pathe quartette singing "Old Paint," song of the cowboys. The boys are in costume and put the song over well. The next subject will interest the women—all kinds of trick gadgets that the smart shops are showing. The third subject under the caption of "an assortment of bells" brought a lot more interest than was looked for. It's an exhibit at the Mission Inn, Riverdale, Calif., where there is a collection of bells from all over the world. A demonstrator sounds and explains the various instruments.

Will blend nicely with any light picture.

"Uppercut O'Brien" (Educ'l, Sennett-2 Reels) A Wow Comedy

E DUCATIONAL has a knockout of a two-reel comedy here, featuring the well-known team of Harry Gribbon and Andy Clyde, to say nothing of the excellent aid from comedienne, Marjorie Beebe. It was fashioned in the Sen-nett studio, and directed by Earl Rodney, with story and dialogue by John A. Waldron, Earle Rodney, Hampton Del Ruth and Harry McCoy.

Grihbon plays the part of a pseudo-ex-champ of the prize ring. From a flop in that field he turns to a medicine show act with a couple of Jap fight boys, working them both during a match by hiding one under a long robe between rounds. In pre-medicine show days he was under the management of "Pop" (Andy (Continued on page 73)

(Continued from page 72) Clyde), who now has a promising "boy" in his care. The two meet at a carnival, and a wager is made that the Jap champ can lick "Pop's" boy. The double fighting act is finally exposed, attended by some rip-roaring comedy.

It's difficult to tell just which of the Gribbon-Clyde team gets away with the honors, so evenly are they divided.

Go the limit and promise a lot. It will lift any show right out of the overage closs.

"A Little Friend Of All The World"

(Bray-Columbio—1 Reel)
O. K. For Holidays

COLUMBIA has arranged with the Bray studios for distribution of this Xmas nov-elty, directed by David Kirkland. The picture was made about four years ago by Bray and distributed in silent form by Red Seal. Today it is presented with synchronized score and duped dialogue (or rather monologue) by the youngster who is featured. A review of the original as published in MOTION PICTURE NEWS, issue of December 19, 1925, still stands—"attractive winter-time shots of a variety of woodland creatures being treated to Xmas tid-bits by a benevolent youngster. The kids will like this one; in Iact, it's a good all 'round subject for the holiday season." Unquestionably it has been made more attractive by the addition of music and dialogue.

Acceptable holiday offering.

"Station S-T-A-R"

(Tiffany-1 Reel) Quite Funny

THIS is a sort of a "Screen Snapshots" idea worked out along different lines. A radio broadcasting station is utilzed, and the stars are introduced in front of the "mike." In this one they have Lloyd Hamilton, who is good for a laugh, Arthur Lake and Olive Borden, Bennie Rubin and several others. Robert Frazer acts as the announcer. The reel is interesting and very amusing at times. Running time 10 min-

Novelty reel, therefore O. K.

"Trail Of The Pack"

(U Silent Western-2 Reels) Fast Action Western

TED CARSON'S latest Western featurette for Universal will fill the bill of any ex-hibtor looking for this type of attraction. It's packed full of action, deals with the rounding up of a pack of criminals by the mounted police, and contains some crackerjack Western backgrounds. The usual mixture of gunplay, fast riding and fighting that make the kids and others straighten up in their seats. The film can't miss in its class.

Will supply action for slow-moving feature.

"Grass Skirts"

(Educ'l. Hamilton Comedy-2 Reels)

Good Comedy

E DUCATIONAL has turned out another Lloyd Hamilton two-reel all-talkie right up to the standard of this series. That means it's good entertainment. Alf Golding directed, the story is by Will King, and Western Electric can be credited with a good piece of recording.

This time we find Hamilton sojourning in a hula-hula community with a newly-wed mate. The latter falls under the influence of a crook doctor, who, seeking to put some pep in the bridegroom, conspires with the wife to do away with him. A lot of fun follows in the wake of the plot, friend wife eventually reaching a de-cision to keep her husband. Beach and café scenes, hula dancers and other atmosphere make this a pleasing bit of work. Other members of the cast include Ruth Hiatt, Fred Peters and Beatrice Blinn.

Fills comedy spot satisfactorily.

"Finders Keepers"

(Vitophone No. 3179-80-2 Reels) Corking Comedy Sketch

GEORGE KELLY is the author of this sketch, which was long a standard vaudeville attraction. It is a comedy offering with a moral. It is humorous and yet drives home its lesson. As played on the screen by Helen Ferguson, John B. Litel and Janet Adair, it is quite as effective as on the stage. That is saying a lot, for most vaudeville writings lose much of their value when they are transplanted.

It is the tale of the woman who comes home from a shopping tour elated over the fact that she has found a purse containing $400, and informs her husband that she doesn't intend to return it to any claimant unless it can be posi-tively identified. It was lost by a neighbor, who tearfully tells her story, and then the husband plaus to teach his wife a lesson and compel the return of the money. The manner in which this is done is sure-fire Ior laughs. Running time

Fine short, suitable for any type of show.

"Harlem Knights" (I'itaphone No. 879-1 Reel)

Mildly Funny M ILLER and Lyle, colored comedy team, are the principals of this short. They are, as usual, broke, in the opening scenes. The manner in which they obtain funds to attend a cabaret in the heart of the black belt and the difficulties that beset them there through two bad men threatening their lives, brings a few laughs. Not too hot. Running time 10 minutes. Good for any type bill, although not very

"Pathe Review No. 48" (Silent-1 Reel) Regular Run 'O Mine

TWO subjects are included in this number of particular interest to those of French and Irish lineage—"Les Halles," where Paris goes to buy its green groceries, and several shots of the famous Tipperary section of Ircland. Additional subjects include a microscopic study of the growth of the mosquito and the transpire of a leonard in Roppen. The latter trapping of a leopard in Borneo. The latter is also shown in a recent Pathe Audio Review. Selections are regular run 'o mine of this Strong surrounding numbers required.

"Moments Of Mimicry" (Vitophone No. 882-1 Reel)

Sound Imitations

HIS is the sort of a short that should be amusing to children. It is just one of those "imitations of birds and beasts of the forest" idea in new clothing. Roger Williams imitates with his mouth the sound of an areoplane, auto horns, a five-piece jaz band, etc. Running through it is a line of comedy chatter.

Will get by where they are not too particular. Running time 9 minutes.

Average short. Needs strong supplementary

"Pathe Review No. 49"

(Silent—1 Recl)

Up To Standard

A N up-to-standard silent Pathe magazine which includes shots around Dorchester, England, Thomas Hardy's home; the lauding of supplies at Wolf Rock lighthouse (also included in the Audio Review); Pathe's jungle cameraman shooting some funny looking animals in the Auguste country and a collection mals in the Amazon country, and a collection of American bars throughout Europe. The latter subject was also shown in a recent Audio Review. A fair enough number. Nnice number for usual bill.

"Sport A La Carte"

(Pathe Sportlight—1 Recl)
Acceptable

THIS is No. 14 of the Grantland Rice series and includes the West Point cadets in a demonstration of horsemanship, an interesting exhibition of a small boy football game, showing where future gridiron talent comes from, and "Riding to the Hounds," staged by the Star Ridge club of Brewster, N. Y. A satisfactory little number.

Strong complementary feature advisable.

"Kounty Fair"

(U-Oswold Cartoon-1 Reel) Amusing Cartoon

OSWALD, the rabbit, takes his sweetheart to the "Kounty Fair," where the pair contend for a huge cup offered as a prize for the best dancers. Lots of competition from a variety of animals, but Oswald and the girl friend carry off the honors. Plenty of "fair" atmosphere is provided. A welcome number for practically any sound bill.
